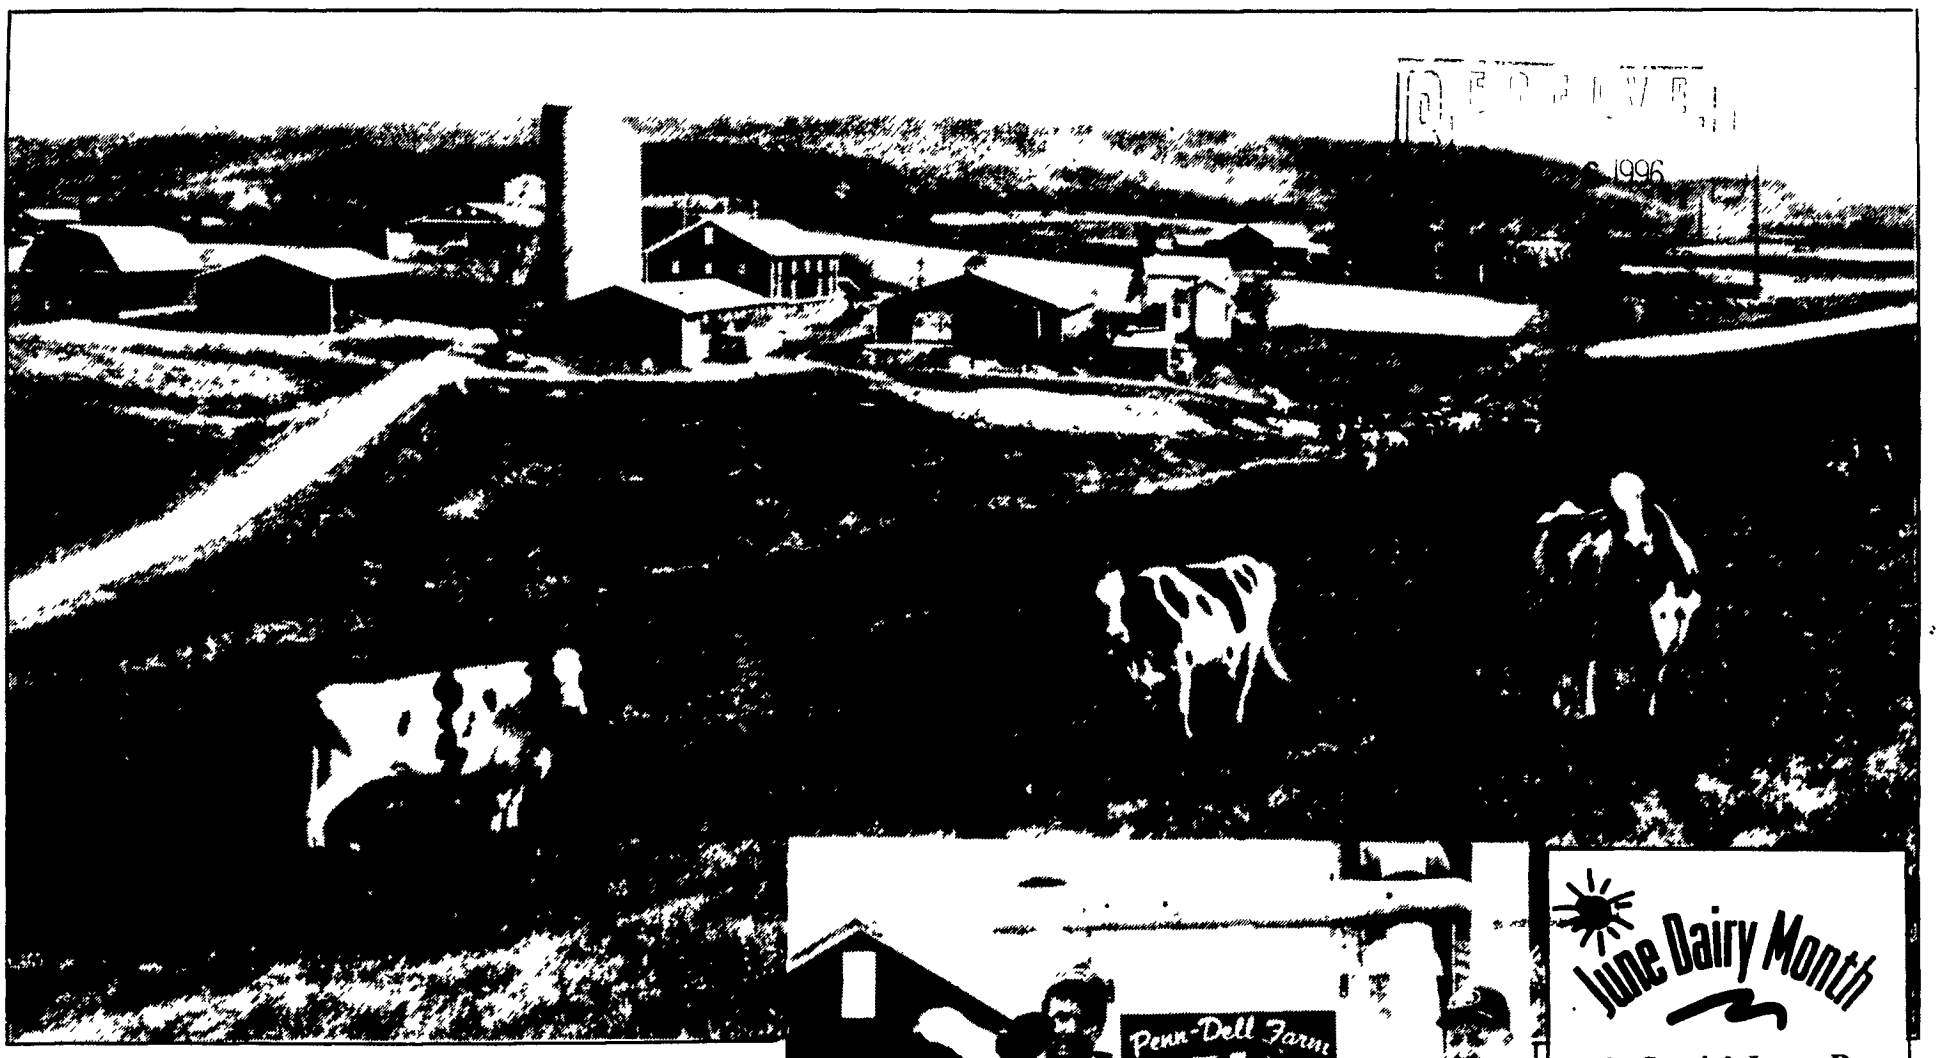
Vol. 41 No. 30 | 60¢ Per Copy | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, June 1, 1996 | Five Sections | $27.50 Per Year



On the hill overlooking Jay and Mary Houser's Penn-Dell family farm, Spring Mills, three of their beautiful registered Holsteins take one last nosey look at the photographer before hightailing it to the barn to join the others who were being taken off the spring pasture in mid-morning. The day was so nice and the pasture so lush that nobody wanted to go into the barn, but necessity called.

Jay Houser, president of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, and son Jim at the halter show Penn-Dell Leadsman Haley Ex, a member of one of two sets of five full sisters in the same cow family that all classify VG or EX and have production over 25,000. Photo by Everett Newswanger, managing editor.

At Penn-Dell, Offspring Show Cows' Worth

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

SPRING MILLS (Centre Co.) — Walk into the beautiful herd of registered Holstin cows at the Penn-Dell family farm of Jay and Mary Houser and you will find generation after generation of good cow families. Most cows in the herd can be traced back to the first registered Holsteins Jay's dad bought in the early 1900's.

Nestled in the herd that averages over 25,000m 1,000f 800p and 106 BAA, are 10 excellents up to EX-93 (nine bred here); 36 VG or better; four generations of excellents all over 1,000f; five full sisters (3 EX, 2 VG87-88) all over 25,000m 1,000f; and another group of five full sisters out of one of the other full sisters that are on the same track and they milk over 30,000m.

Jay is the newly elected president of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association. And his dairy farming enterprise started with his dad before he was married. The family moved from Mifflin County in 1959, and in 1960 Jay and Mary were married.

At the time the new president said he wanted to farm on his own so badly he could "taste it."

Working with little money in 1963, the newlyweds started to buy the cows and machinery. The finance companies turned them down, but several private individuals had confidence in the young couple and loaned them money to get started. After Dad had a serious farm accident that left him an invalid and later led to his death, Jay HARLEYSVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — Have a problem marketing your product? Start your own processing business!

That's what Wayne Marcho, president of Marcho Farms, did more than 15 years ago.

Since then, he has transformed a small veal farm into a $35 million-per-year veal production and processing enterprise.

In 1969, the Marcho Family started marketing a few veal calves a week. Sometimes it was difficult to find a way to market the veal they raised.

In 1978, Marcho worked at a local poultry processing plant. "I knew some of the meat business and we were having a problem marketing our meat," he said.

When the calves are ready for market, according to Marcho, veal is similar to pork. "You need to market them within a couple-week period.

"There are a few times when I had trouble selling my product," he admitted.

For many years, the Marchos sold only about 30-40 calves a week.

Fortunately, Marcho realized that he lived near Philadelphia — a large market with many customers. He began to wonder: what if we owned our own processing plant?

In 1986, a plant a few miles away, in Franconia, went for sale. The Marchos purchased it and began to heavily expand the veal business. They added more calves and began to sign up other growers to serve their processing enterprise. In the mid-1980s, most of the veal industry began to grow almost exponentially.

When Marcho purchased the Harleysville farm in 1971, it was READING (Berks Co.) — Tom Dietrich is chief executive officer of a family owned milk products business north of Reading.

Last week, back at his office after trying to attend portions of the combined conventions of the Pennsylvania Milk Dealers Association and the New York Dairy Products Inc. held in Hershey, he began talking about change — how he thrives on it, but that lately it's been sort of overwhelming.

But in walking around the red brick building that houses the Dietrich Milk Products Inc, Reading Plant, he discussed all the changes to the dairy industry, and how they are reflected in the structure and nature of the family business.

It's been a Dietrich family business since Tom's grandfather Claude purchased the original small dairy business in 1926 for $2,500.

It began as a business of delivering fresh milk to homes and corner grocery stores in the Reading area, along with many other small dairies in other parts of the Reading area.

As the dairy industry changed so

New York Egg Market

MAY 29, 1996

Prices were unchanged. The market tone was steady for the large sizes, and barely steady to steady for mediums. Demand was mixed and mostly moderate. Supplies of extra-large were about adequate, large were adequate, and mediums were adequate to ample and offered. The New York state inventory was 10% greater than last week, and the New Jersey inventory was 8% less than last Monday.

PRICES TO RETAILERS, SALES TO VOLUME BUYERS, USDA GRADE A AND GRADE A, WHITE EGGS IN CARTONS, DELIVERED STORE DOOR, CENTS PER DOZEN.

RANGE EXTRA LARGE 83-85 LARGE 80-83 MEDIUM 71-74

National Egg Market

MAY 29, 1996

Prices were unchanged to lower for brown mediums in New England, higher for large in Virginia, and generally unchanged elsewhere. The market tone was steady to instances fully steady for the large sizes, and steady to weak for mediums. Demand was fair to good, best into retail specials, and food service. Supplies of the large sizes continued to range from tight to adequate, and lighter weights were adequate to ample. Breaking stock supplies were adequate from regular suppliers, and inquiry for extra eggs was minimal. Spent hen offerings were at least sufficient to run desirable schedules.

Delmarva Broiler

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was good for the barely adequate to short supply of 3 pound and smaller sizes; about moderate on the adequate to fully adequate offerings of heavier sizes. Live supplies were moderate, instances light; weights were desirable to heavy. Processing schedules were moderate to heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 68 to 80 cents. Trade sentiment was fully steady to firm. In the parts complex, all items were clearing well. Leg items were short at several plants. Breast cuts were adequate and well balanced. Wings varied from well cleared to adequate.

NE Chicken Pts 1&2

Trucklot buying interest was mixed as dealers became selective in their limited buying activities. Offerings were usually at least adequate with traders attempting to obtain premiums. Retail and distributive movement was quickly returning to a more mediocre type demand. The market tone was unsettled with underlying sentiment becoming increasingly cautious.

NY Phil Frozen Eggs

MAY 24, 1996

Yolk prices trended higher, generally unchanged for whole egg, and the majority of sales for whites were unchanged in an unchanged to lower range. The market tone was steady to firm for yolks, steady for whole, and about steady for whites. Demand was moderate as buyers approached holiday weekend schedules, and continued to purchase for immediate needs only. Floor stocks remained no more than adequate. Edible liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed under federal inspection in the Eastern region for the week ending May 18, 1996 were 8% less than last week, and 7% more than the same week last year.

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
MAY 29, 1996

Grain and soybean bids fell sharply lower in volatile trading. Heavy profit taking on the board and some optimism on the traders part drove bids downward. Wheat 25 to 30 cents lower. Corn 9 to 17 cents lower. Sorghum 21 to 40 cents lower. Soybeans 10 to 27 cents lower. Winter wheat harvest continues in Texas and moving into Oklahoma where fair yields have been reported. Spring wheat planting in the Northern areas has made some headway due to recent sunshine. However, they are still behind the norm and rain is in the forecast for this weekend. Heavy fund selling on the board today was a pressure factor. Corn bids fell sharply due to profit taking on the board. The corn crop is looking good so far with beneficial rains offering weakness to bids. Eastern Corn Belt got a few more acres of corn planted over the holiday weekend but parts of Illinois and Indiana fell further behind and many are giving up on corn for this year. Tornados, torential down pours and floods covered some of the corn that was up and looking good back over into the Western Corn Belt. The continued lack of export business this week, weighed on all commodities. Bean bids followed wheat and corn lower due to profit taking. Planting was noted in some areas of the Midwest after a drying spell. Ohio and east faired better than Illinois and Indiana. Heavy rains this past weekend flooded fields in many places, including parts of the Western Corn Belt. Plenty of time yet to plant soybeans but many farmers are getting antsy. The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

JUNE 3-9, 1996

WORLD ENVIRONMENT DAY, JUNE 5.

HOW NOW, BROWN COW?

June has been designated National Dairy Month since 1937 Long before then, cows were known as weather prognosticators, especially in predicting rain Old-timers expected rain when cows didn't give milk, when cattle wanted to lie down on going out to pasture, when cows stretched their necks in their milking stalls or were generally restless Cheesemakers went by this rule of thumb: "If you will have a good cheese and hav'n old, you must turn'n seven times before he is cold." Successful dairy farmers knew, "Cheese and money should always sleep together one night." (As in, payment comes before the cheese leaves the larder!)

The cow knows not what her tail is worth until she has lost it.

TIP OF THE WEEK

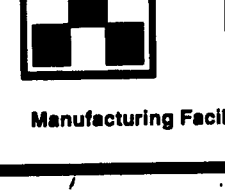
SWEET & SOUR STRAWBERRIES

8 ounces cream cheese, softened (not whipped style)
1 cup sour cream
4 tablespoons honey
1 quart strawberries, rinsed
1/4 cup granulated sugar
orange liquor or brandy (optional)



Mix the first three ingredients together and refrigerate for 24 hours, either in individual custard cups or in a glass serving bowl When ready to serve, mash the strawberries just slightly with the sugar, then serve over the sour cream cheese mixture. Garnish with unhulled strawberries and a dash of liquor, if desired

Makes 6 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Gnats galore, screen the door.

Fickle drops sprinkle crops.

If the white chickweed blossoms are open, it will not rain for at least three hours.

If on the eighth of June it rain, it foretells a wet harvest, men sain.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK
MAY 29, 1996

Compared to last week: Feeder and stockers steers firm. Feeder heifers over 700 lbs weak to 2.00 lower. Lighter weight heifers steady to 1.00 higher. Demand good with exception of light demand for new crop calves. Quality of supply much improved from last week's mostly plain offerings. Quality of supply average thru attractive. Feeder cattle flesh medium. Weigh-ups not improved and average to full. Storms throughout much of Oklahoma over the weekend gave relief to dry pastures and hope for hay. Many dry areas received .5 to 2 inches of rain. In several areas this was first substantial moisture since September and October. Slaughter cows and bulls 2.00 lower. Demand moderate. Texas packers quiet as plenty of cows available in Texas. 460 cows and bulls sold with 85 percent to packers. Bulk of supply old cull cows with bulk of these 950-1300 lbs. Receipts this week 5,500; last week 13,975; last year 4,197. Supply consisted of 71 percent yearlings over 600 lbs; 21 percent calves and light yearlings under 600 lbs; 8 percent cows and bulls. FOR DOUBLE-CROP SOYBEANS, THE ONLY POST THAT CONTROLS GRASSES AND BROADLEAVES.

PURSUIT® herbicide is today's best tool for double-crop beans. It not only delivers the highest degree of overall weed control but also is the only postemergence product that combines contact and residual activity to give you superior control of more than 40 tough-to-control grasses and broadleaf weeds including velvetleaf, foxtail, cocklebur, pigweeds, nightshade, common ragweed, giant ragweed, sunflower, shattercane and seedling Johnsongrass. Without causing soybean injury. And because of its advanced chemistry and low rates of application, PURSUIT offers a responsible choice for the environment. That's the kind of strength everyone can respect. And reason enough to try PURSUIT.

OPINION

A Cow Is Still A Cow

A cow is still a cow, not a machine. She has personality and often a mind of her own. No amount of modern technology has been able to put her into a factory setting. She eats, chews her cud, sleeps just over the knoll on the leeward side to protect herself from the mid-night breezes, and fills her udder with milk two or three times a day. In fact, she is queen of the dairy farm, and all her subjects, the dairy men and women who care for her, must set their daily schedules around the dairy cow's whims and wishes.

We admit that over the years a lot of modern equipment and feeding methods have changed the way things are done on the dairy farm. But today, as always, the dairy farmer's job is a demanding one. He works from before sunrise until well into the evening. No sick days, no days off, and no sleeping in. The cows must be milked and fed 365 days a year.

Of course, today's cow produces the milk that once took 10 or 12 cows to produce. It is not unusual for two -year-old first-calf heifers to produce 100 pounds of milk per day. And it is good they do because Americans consumed 588 pounds of dairy products, per person, in 1995. According to the American Dairy Association, this accounts for a 10 percent share of total consumer grocery spending.

Flavored milk sales grew to more than $600 million in 1995. Among the flavors appearing in supermarket dairy cases were: Blueberry Blast, Bubble Gum, Mocha Cooler, Pina Colada, Chocolate Irish Cream, Java Malt, Chocolate Peanut Butter and Banana Split.

Since 1937, the month of June is dedicated to the dairy farmer and dairy products. From the farmgate to the dairy case, the wonderful world of real dairy products has a lot to celebrate. We join the millions of dairy enthusiasts in the Northeast and around the nation as they celebrate nearly 30 years of promoting June Dairy Month.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Salute Dairy Farmers

Everyone knows June Is Dairy Month. The dairy industry has done an excellent job of promoting dairy products during this month.

In today's modern world where very few people have any ties to farms, promotion becomes more important. The old saying "out of sight — out of mind" applies also to what we eat and drink.

Without promotion activities and advertising, people will not think about eating and drinking our products. Through creative ideas that are in touch with the concerns and issues of today's society, we will be able to hold and increase our market share.

The name of the game is market share. This week we hold our glass of milk high and toast all the dairy farmers for their efforts to promote their good and nutritious product. If dairy farmers are to survive, they need to be aggressive in promoting their products.

June Is Dairy Month should be a reminder on how important promotional activities are.

To Identify Bur Cucumber

According to Robert Anderson, extension agronomy agent, bur cucumber is a major problem weed on our farms.

Originally found along streambanks and other damp and shady areas, bur cucumber is beginning to invade upland fields. Bur cucumber is a summer annual broadleaf weed that is related to the garden cucumber. It is characterized by pentagon-shaped leaves, long vines, and spiny seed clusters.

Individual seeds are flatten, 1/16 inch long and 1/32 inch wide. The seed is covered with a hard coat which is responsible for a prolonged dormancy.

Bur cucumbers germinate from early May through mid-August. Mature vines may be 20 feet long. The vines often make crop harvest impossible.

To Control Bur Cucumber

High rates of Atrazine made bur cucumber control easy. However, with the restrictions of using two pounds of Atrazine per acre, control is much more difficult, according to Robert Anderson, extension agronomy agent.

Control is essential because severe infestations may destroy almost the entire corn or soybean crop.

Research at Penn State has confirmed that non-triazine preemergence corn herbicides do not effectively control bur cucumber. In the 1995 Penn State Weed Trails, postemergence applications of Beacon and Exceed provided the best control.

Research in Maryland suggests that Classic would be a good option for soybeans. Management of bur cucumber in corn and soybeans requires an effective postemergence control program that may include split applications or a follow-up cultivation.

Harvesting of infested fields as silage before weed seeds mature may help prevent the spread of the weed. A thorough cleaning of equipment between fields, especially harvesting equipment, will reduce the spreading of weed seed.

Above all, specialists suggest, watch for new infestations and keep them small and isolated. Attack the small infestations before they become big problems. Prevention is the key to management of bur cucumber problems.

ARE YOU OUT OF SHAPE?
June 2, 1996
Background Scripture:
1 Timothy 4:6-16
Devotional Reading:
Psalm 37:1-11

When I was a seminary student some forty years ago, I was graded on my knowledge of the Bible and theology, Church history, administration and education, pastoral psychology and even preaching—although in seminary they call it homiletics.

But I was never evaluated, graded or classified on "godliness," as the writer of I Timothy puts it. "Train yourself in godliness, for while bodily training is of some value, godliness is of value in every way, as it holds promise for the present life and also for the life to come" (4:7b,8). As far as the writer of I Timothy is concerned, godliness is probably the minister's most important subject—much more important than theological speculation: "Have nothing to do with godless and silly myths" (4:7a).

Actually, although I did rather well in my seminary studies, I'm glad I wasn't graded on godliness. Can you imagine getting your report card and finding you failed it! Although I didn't think the study of theology was easy, godliness would have been a lot harder.

50 PERCENT!

It still is. I can get 50 percent on the curriculum in I Timothy, "Till I come, attend to the public reading of scripture, to preaching, to teaching" (4:13). Yes, I can handle that well enough. The writer also says the "good minister of Christ Jesus" is nourished on the "words of the faith and of the good doctrine which you have followed." Yes, I've got the words and I know the doctrine. But, what about godliness?

I've looked at my commentaries to find what the writer meant by "godliness," but none of them gave me a clue. So, I've turned to some varying translations and find the following translations of verse 7b:

Living Bible: "Spend your time and energy in the exercise of keeping spiritually fit." New English Bible: "Keep yourself in training for the practice of religion." Phillips Bible: "Take time and trouble to keep yourself spiritually fit." Jerusalem Bible: "Train yourself spiritually."

What the writer of I Timothy is talking about, then, is keeping ourselves in a state of spiritual fitness. And I'm still not sure how I stack up there. I do pretty well in the physical fitness department. Five days a week my wife and I walk three miles every morning and then do a half-hour of aerobic exercises. In the summertime we supplement that with water exercise as well.

SPIRITUAL AEROBICS

When we travel we marvel at the great number of people who share our concern for keeping physically fit. Lots of hotels and most cruise ships have jogging courses and a fitness center, often complete with the latest equipment. Hotel managers tell us that, unless they offer physical fitness facilities and equipment, they cannot attract the regular business travelers.

Undoubtedly, physical fitness has captured the public imagination and I am glad. The physical being and our health are gifts from God that we ought not to abuse or neglect. But, if we could also make people aware of the need for spiritual fitness as well, how much better would this world be! And Christians must lead the way: "...set the believers an example in speech and conduct, in love, in faith, in purity" (4:12).

So, speaking in terms of spiritual fitness, are you in or out of shape?

Editor,

During the last 25 years dairy farmers have been attempting to receive a realistic price for their milk through "over order premiums."

While the Federal Milk Marketing Orders may have provided stability to the dairy industry, the same orders only generate a minimum price to dairy farmers and this price, in most cases does not cover the average cost of producing milk. Consequently, nearly 80 percent of the dairy farmers in Federal Order 2 have left the dairy farms since 1960.

Recognizing the inadequate prices being paid to dairy farmers, dairy co-ops and farm organizations have formed various Bargaining Agencies to alleviate the problems of low milk prices paid to dairy farmers.

The old RCMA, the Empire Bargaining Agency, the new RCMA and the Special New York Order are some of the organizations that made serious attempts (and sometimes were successful) to achieve extra money for dairy farmers. However, because of several reasons these attempts have now gone by the wayside.

The Compact

For several years various people in New England have worked diligently in developing what is called the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact. The Compact has been passed by the State Legislatures in all six New England States. In early March the Compact finally passed the United States Congress. While Congress altered some of the time tables of the Compact, the same Congress agreed to allow the pricing structure to remain intact within the Compact.

However, one must always remember the Northeast Compact becomes extremely important because of the failure of the U.S.

Maryland DHIA Report For April

The April Dairy Herd Improvement information for dairy herds from the DHI processing center in Provo, Utah. The list includes herds from Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia. The information is listed by herd name, county association, number of cows in the herd and the average production per cow in the herd. To be included, the herd must have 10 cows averaging 65 pounds or more of 3.5 percent fat corrected milk per cow, per day. All herds reported are on official DHI or DHIR test.

Also listed are the top eight herds in Maryland for the Brown Swiss, Guernseys, and Jerseys, and the top six herds for Ayrshires.

Pot O'Gold Entries Due

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — Entries are due July 1 for the 1996 Pot O'Gold Production Contest.

Juniors between the ages of seven and 19 enter the Pot O'Gold Sale Production Contest by purchasing one of the animals consigned to either the Western National Pot O'Gold Sale in Puyallup, Wash. or the All American Pot O'Gold Sale in Louisville, Ky.

Animals eligible for the 1996 contest would have been purchased in 1993. Funding for the contest equals 17 percent of the gross of the two sales.

The records completed by heifers purchased in these sales must be submitted to the American Jersey Cattle Association no later than July 1 to be eligible for competition.

The heifer must calve before reaching 30 months of age. The actual first lactation production is adjusted to the mature equivalent (305-day, 2x milking, age and month of calving). Adjusted records are then ranked according to the mature equivalent protein to determine the placings in the contest.

Juniors, related or un-related, may form a partnership to purchase animals in the Pot O'Gold sales as long as all other requirements are met.

Pa.DHIA Conducts MUN Seminars

DAVE SLUSSER
Pa.DHIA Manager

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Pa.DHIA conducted seminars throughout Pennsylvania on milk urea nitrogen (MUN) for farm consultants, dairy nutritionists, veterinarians, financial consultants and county agents.

Dr. James Ferguson from New Bolton Center and George Wilcox, Erie County Extension agent gave presentations on how to interpret MUN test results and on factors affecting MUN levels in Pa.DHIA-member herds.

Jim Boyer, manager of the Pa. Dairy Records Processing Center, discussed how consultants can get MUN data off of the Pa.DHIA Laboratory Bulletin Board (computer internet) as soon as samples are tested in the lab.

Boyer also reported on access to the Pa.DHIA ARIS program which includes MUN summary information, by way of the Internet.

I presented an overview and details of Pa.DHIA's Performance Economics program.

In our effort to support our members, we conducted these seminars so farm consultants could better advise our members on their herd's nutrition and health program.

The attendance was exceptionally high, at triple last year's attendance.

Unacceptable MUN levels are a result of any one, or all, of the following: overfeeding protein, an imbalance of soluable to bypass protein, an improper feed devivery system, inadequate water supply, heat stress, and animal health.

Due to economic conditions and the high price of corn, a member may have to live with slightly higher MUN values. However, according to Dr. Ferguson, if your average MUN value is more than 14 ML/DL, you are spilling excess nitrogren.

As far as access to data, Boyer said that now that Pa.DHIA is connected to the Internet, consultants and members can get easy access to Pa.DHIA data. We are the first

76 Cow Total Ventilation System - Denver, PA
Lapp's Barn Equipment can install a high-performance/high efficiency tunnel ventilation system in your barn. A tunnel ventilation system will give you an even air flow throughout your barn of 2-5 mph. This gives you the advantage of better controlling temperature to give your cows more comfort which means more milk!! Also, a tunnel ventilation system eliminates circulating fans, provides summer and winter ventilation and controls fly problems! An optional unit can even automate your ventilation so you will never even have to worry about it when you're not there, so you can concentrate on other things!
At Lapp's, we sell high quality ventilation systems manufactured by Acme Engineering, Acme products feature such things as:

- Galvanized Construction
- Wide Cambered Propeller
- Rivited Blades
- Unique Captured Bearings
- Vertical Support Frame
- Screens Pre-cut
- Totally Enclosed Motors
- Optional Discharge Diffuser Cone
- Optional Belt Tightener

CoreStates Bank believes "THE FAMILY FARM IS THE BACKBONE OF AGRICULTURE." On behalf of all dairymen, we are pleased to salute the success of Glenn and Jean Eaves and their family at 10236 Oak Hill Road, Woodsboro, Frederick County, Maryland. The Eaves' family has been dairying for nearly 40 years and includes sons, Douglas, Glenn, Jr., Richard and also daughter-in-laws, Rebecca and Tammy. The operation includes eight farms and the farming of over 3,500 acres of which 1,600 are owned. The total herd is comprised of 3,300 cows and 1,300 heifers. The current milking herd of 2,600 holsteins has an average of 18,500 lbs. of milk. The Eaves' family have served in various civic and community organizations in Frederick County all of their lives, as well as being active in many state and regional organizations.

A SALUTE TO DAIRY FARMERS. EVERY MONTH IS DAIRY MONTH WITH US.

June is National Dairy Month and at CoreStates Bank we feel you deserve credit more than one month out of the year. Managing a successful dairy operation requires working capital all year round. We're here to help you meet your financial needs.

Dairy is a major agricultural enterprise in Pennsylvania and Maryland and at CoreStates Bank we are proud to be a major lending source to agriculture.

Congress to adequately address the pricing problems being experienced by dairy farmers.

Presently, U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman is seeking comments regarding the need of the Compact. This procedure will end sometime near June 1.

Dairy farmers in Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey should contact the Secretary's office and inform him of the urgent need of the Compact.

The Secretary's office can be reached by calling: 1-202-720-3631, or writing to: Department of Agriculture; A.M.F. Dairy Division, Order Formulation Branch; Room 2971 - South Building, P.O. Box 96456; Washington D.C. 20090-6456. The White House Hot Line: 1-202-456-4111.

Basically the Compact will allow the six New England States to form a Commission to establish prices for Class I milk consumed in the six states. Fluid milk produced outside of the six states and shipped into the Compact area would command an additional price above the Federal Order price, which would be established by the Commission.

Any of the six additional states that are eligible to join the Compact would also become part of the Commission. Each state is entitled to have between three and five delegates to become part of the Commission. At least one must be a dairy farmer and one must be a consumer.

Beginning in 1990 the Compact called for the over-order price on fluid milk not to exceed $1.50 per gallon, which translates to $17.40 cwt. The $17.40 is subject to be adjusted each year since 1990 by using the Consumer Price Index as the mover. Presently the fluid price would now be over $19.00 cwt. The Compact also allows the Commission to use the cost of producing milk as a method of establishing the over-order price.

While the Compact does allow block voting by using dairy co-ops, at the same time the Commission must notify all dairy farmers of their right to vote individually. The dairy farmers vote would be subtracted from the co-ops vote.

Presently meetings are going on in Harrisburg, Pa. with key legislators and farm organizations to explain the Compact. The response seems very favorable.

The most important thing the dairy farmers can do today is to contact Secretary Glickman's office and notify him of the importance of the Compact. Don't expect someone else to call for you. This time the responsibility rests on all of our shoulders. Once the Secretary makes a favorable decision on the Compact, then the time will be ripe for everyone to excellerate their efforts within the six additional states that can join the Compact. They are New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and Virginia.

Pro Ag can be reached at 833-5776.

Editor:

Farmers engaged in normal agricultural operations would have additional protections from nuisance lawsuits under three bills approved unanimously by the House.

The bills amend the "Right to Farm Law" and the Air Pollution Control Act by expanding the definitions of agricultural operations and agricultural commodities. The measures ensure that the farmers are not exposed to prosecution for activities relating to growing crops, raising livestock, producing commoditites and other normal farm operations.

Currently, the "Right to Farm Law"protects farmers from lawsuits and ordinances while they are engaged in normal agricultural operations. The purpose of this law is to make certain farmers are not harassed as long as their operations do not threaten public safety and health.

Senate Bill 1371 expands the "Right to Farm Law" to protect the use of farm equipment in the course of normal farming operations.

This equipment includes - but is not limited to - crop dryers, feed grinders, mills and bins used to store or prepare crops for market, as well as common farm machinery like tractors, plows and planters.

This amendment ensures that farm equipment used in the course of farm operations will have the protection of the "Right to Farm Law," and that farmers would not be discouraged from using their equipment because of the threat of a lawsuit or violation of an ordinance.

Another amendment to the "Right to Farm Law" would expand and clarify the definition of "agricultural commodity."

This amendment addresses the problems some Pennsylvania farmers have because their local governments interpret "agricultural commodities" to mean crops only. This narrow definition excludes many farmers from the protection of the law.

The definition of "agricultural commodities" included in House Bill 2442 is broader, generally more accepted and already present in other state law. It covers a variety of farm products , such as crops, dairy, livestock, forestry, floriculture and horticulture. Both of these bills will ensure that the "Right to Farm Law" is interpreted fairly and consistently in all Pennsylvania municipalities.

The state Air Pollution Control Act currently does not apply to the production of agricultural commodities. However, since the term "production of agricultural commodities" was not defined, there was some confusion about how the law applied to certain products of farm operations, specifically compost.

House Bill 873 would amend the law to include a definition of "production of agricultural commodities" that includes production of field crops, fruits, vegetables, horticulture, livestock, timber, aquatic plants and production, processing or storage of compost to be used in production of agricultural commodities.

STAVING OFF PROBLEMS BY LISTENING TO YOUR COWS

George C. Wilcox
Erie County
Extension Agent

The past six months have frazzled the nerves of everyone connected with the dairy industry.

Poor reproductive performance due to last summer's heat wave, reduced milk production from last year's forages, and rapidly escalating grain prices have stretched management and budgets to the limit.

Yet, as milk prices approach the $15 cwt mark, production must be maintained to pay the bills. During these times of change, the successful herd manager will become very adept at listening to the cows as a way of identifying problems early and before they become serious.

Reproduction

Reproduction is an excellent early warning system since it is usually the first to decline when things start to go wrong.

Monitor services per conception (should be under 1.75), average days open (needs to be under 90 for a 12-month calving interval), calving interval (strive for 12.5 months), and interval between heats.

Abnormal heat intervals of about 30 days are indicative of early embryonic death. There are several possible causes, including uterine infections, infectious diseases, and elevated BUN (blood urea nitrogen) levels.

Body Condition Scores

Ideally, the cow's body condition will change very little through the different stages of lactation. On the standard 1 to 5 (1 being sickly thin and 5 doughboy fat), score cows should freshen at about 3.5, drop to 2.5 by 80 to 90 days in milk when they start slowly gaining back to the 3.5 at dryoff.

Present feed prices dictate a conservative approach to grain feeding. But even at these record prices, you cannot afford to milk excess flesh off the cows.

The extra grain required to put it back on and the lost milk during the next lactation will put you behind in the end. Carefully monitoring body condition scores can provide early detection of problems arising from rations formulated to minimize feed costs.

MUNs

Milk Urea Nitrogen (MUN) is an inexpensive and easy way to monitor rumen ammonia levels. MUN levels between 10 and 14 will assure that the cow is being fed enough protein to meet production needs without wasting this costly feed nutrient.

Dry Matter Intake

Measuring dry matter intake, (DMI) is the single most important monitoring tool the herd manager can use. Many of the feed cost reduction plans call for getting more of the required nutrients from forages. This can only be accomplished if high levels of intake are being achieved.

A herd experiencing less than desirable levels of intake now is

PROFIT MARGINS PER COW AND PER CWT. OF MILK

Glenn A. Shirk
Lancaster County

When economic conditions tighten, it becomes more important to think about profit margins per cow and per cwt. of milk, while also being concerned about changes in equity. Determine how much profit you need from the farm. Then calculate the profit margin needed per cow and per cwt. of milk shipped.

As shown in Table 1, cow numbers and production levels determine how much profit is needed per cow and per cwt. of milk. For example, to generate $30,000 profit with 40 cows producing 17,000 pounds of milk, you will need a profit margin of $750 per cow or $4.41 per cwt. of milk shipped. At 100 cows and 21,000 pounds of milk the margins that are needed drop to $300 per cow and to $1.43 per cwt. of milk. That's a difference of about $3 per cwt. of milk.

Please note: these figures are NOT average margins of profit expected for herds of different sizes and production levels; and they simply show how much margin is needed to generate $30,000 of profit.

To help cushion you against rising costs of production or from major declines in millk prices, strive for larger margins of profit per cwt. of milk. As the example in Table 2 indicates, a larger farm operating at a smaller margin of profit per cwt. can generate more total farm profit, but when profit margins per cwt. of milk drop by $1 or more, the total profit of the larger farm could end up being less than that of the smaller farm.

Note: these figures do not infer that larger farms operate with smaller margins of profit.

Profit margins on dairy farms are affected primarily by costs of production and by income from sale of milk and cattle. The relationship between milk output, production costs and profits is illustrated in Table 3. Read Table 3 by starting with the first increment of milk.

Fixed farm costs per stall remain the same, whether the stall is filled or vacant. Thus it is important to keep stalls filled with income-producing cows to help cover these costs.

Basic dairy costs are incurred as soon as you fill the stalls with cows, and the cost per cow remains relatively constant, regardless of production levels. So, the greater the milk output per cow, the greater the return over these basic dairy costs.

The amount of milk required to cover these two groups of costs, and the feed required to produce this break-even amount of milk, will vary considerably from farm to farm and from year to year, depending primarily upon milk prices and production costs. By controlling these costs, you can reduce the amount of milk cows need to produce just to break even.

The milk that you are able to produce above the break-even level of production is THE CHEAPEST MILK you will ever produce, because most of the fixed and basic costs have already been paid for by the first milk. If cows are properly fed and cared for, so they are in good health, about the only extra cost of producing this extra milk is the extra feed to produce it.

Remember, you are in the business of profitably converting feed into milk. To produce as much of this cheapest milk as possible, your goal should be to maximize DM intake and always be sure the ration contains an abundant supply of good quality forage to keep the rumen functioning at peak efficiency 24 hours a day. This is where the profit is made — even when feeds are high priced. Go for it, but keep cows healthy in the process. Don't miss this opportunity.

Each extra pound of DM intake has the potential to produce an extra 2-3 pounds of milk. Compare the cost of one pound of feed DM to the value of 2-3 pounds of extra milk and you quickly get an idea of the profit potential at this high level of production. Monitor cow response carefully to be sure you are getting a payback on the additional feed. Give high producing cows what they need. Many times this does not mean feeding more expensive and exotic feeds and supplements, but simply encouraging cows to eat more of an already well balanced ration.

So, when feed prices are high, don't shortchange your good producers by withholding feed from them. Shortchange them and you will shortchange yourself. Save the best feed for the best cows. Feed lower producers and non-lactating cattle some of your less-than-best forages, but be careful not to shortchange them either because they are your producers of tomorrow.

How much milk must your cows produce to break even? Aim to reduce the amount of milk needed to break even by reducing some of your costs or by increasing your income?

Before you can control costs, you need to know what your itemized costs are. Then you will be better able to answer some of the following questions:

1. What do my herd replacement cost me per cow per year? per cwt. of milk produced? or at age of first calving? To determine this, include the heifer share of feed-related costs, such as purchased feeds, cropping, harvesting, custom work, storage, land taxes, land share of mortgage, machine repairs and depreciation, etc. Also include the heifer share of housing, interest, depreciation, repairs, labor, etc. Knowing these costs you can then answer other questions, such as:

a. Can someone else raise heifers cheaper than I? or as good as or better than I?

b. Can feed, land, buildings, and labor that is used for heifers generate a greater return if utilized for lactating cattle?

c. Based upon a cow's average profit margin per year, how long does it take her to pay off ALL her costs (cash and non-cash) from date of birth to age at first calving?

d. Based upon the average number of lactations a cow spends in your herd, minus the number it takes her to recover all her rearing costs up to age of first calving, how many profit-making lactations does she have in your herd before she is removed? How much more would her lifetime profit be improved by keeping her just one more lactation? Are you moving cows out of the herd before you give them a chance to return you a profit?

2. What is my total feed-related cost per cwt. of milk? To calculate this, include the cow share of feed-related costs, such as purchased feeds, cropping, harvesting, custom work, feed storage, land taxes, land share of mortgage, machine repairs and depreciation, etc. The heifer share of these costs is a replacement cost. Knowing these costs, you can then answer other questions, such as:

a. What is my return over all feed-related costs per cwt. of milk?

b. How does milk production level affect the return over feed-related costs?

3. What is the total cost of growing my own feeds per acre? per ton or per bu.? To calculate this, include cropping, harvesting, custom work, storage, land taxes, land share of mortgage, machine repairs and depreciation, cropping labor, etc. Knowing these costs, you can then answer other questions such as:

a. Can I buy certain feeds cheaper than I can raise them?

b. Is it cheaper to hire a custom operator rather than to own, operate and maintain my own machinery?

c. Am I better off renting land than owning it?

4. What are my debt servicing costs per cow per year? or per cwt. of milk produced?

a. Is it better to rent a farm or dairy facilities, at this specific time in my life, than to purchase a farm?

b. What is the maximum amount of rent that I can comfortably pay?

c. What is the maximum amount of debt per cow that I can comfortably service?

5. What is the average price you received for all the milking aged animals that left your farm last year (dead or alive)?

a. Am I raising and freshening too many heifers that force me to move too many cows out of the herd prematurely at cull cow prices before they have had a chance to earn a profit (see item 1.d)?

b. Can I boost income from cattle sales significantly by selling some excess bred heifers at dairy prices and milking some of the better cull cows a few months longer, replacing them with other heifers at a later date? Can I sell some of the older cows for dairy purposes, before they become worthless culls, and make room for some promising heifers?

c. Based on the cost of raising heifers (see item 1.), is there any profit in raising excess heifers and selling them for dairy purposes, or would it be better to sell excess heifers at a very young age and raise only as many as you need for herd replacements?

Table 3. Relationship Between Milk Output, Production Costs and Farm Profits

Next 10, 20 or More Lb. of Milk. It is the Most Profitable Milk because it is the - - Cheapest milk to produce.

* Most of the costs listed below have already been paid for.
* IF cows are properly fed and cared for to maintain good health, the only extra cost associated with this extra production is the cost of the extra feed that is needed to produce it.
* Each extra lb. of DM intake has the potential to produce an additional 2-3 lb. of milk.

Third Increment of Milk Production (Break-Even Milk) Covers - -
Feed to produce the amount of milk needed to cover the expenses listed below.

Second Increment of Milk Production Covers - -
Basic dairy costs. Think of these as somewhat-fixed costs per cow. Examples are:

* Feed for body maintenance, growth and pregnancy
* Labor
* Herd replacements
* Vet and medicine
* Breeding, testing, registration
* Dairy supplies
* Dairy equipment
* Utilities, etc.

First Increment of Milk Production Covers - -
Fixed farm costs. Think of these as overhead costs per stall: Examples are:

* Depreciation or rent
* Interest or rent
* Repairs or rent
* Taxes or rent
* Insurance or rent

more likely to crash when hot weather reduces the intakes still further. Cows in a herd averaging 65 pounds of milk per day should be consuming about 3.4 percent of their body weight daily as dry matter.

Water Consumption

Next to air, water is the cheapest feed ingredient we have. Water meters are inexpensive and simple, yet few dairies have bothered to install them.

Cows need to consume 4.5 to 5 pounds of water (including the water they receive at the feed bunk) for every pound of milk produced. Money spent on water and other diagnostic tests is wasted if the cows aren't drinking the water in the first place.

Herdbook And Identified Holsteins On Agenda

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Two issues currently widely discussed in the Holstein industry are herdbook structure and the value of Officially Identified Holsteins. Two panel discussions will tackle those issues at the National Holstein Convention in Fort Worth, Texas, June 22-25.

Herdbook Structure

Monday, June 24 7:30 a.m.

A panel of representatives of the Holstein industry worldwide will discuss single herdbooks and the relationships of other herdbooks to Holstein Association USA's.

Participants are:

Dr. David Smokler, Holstein Association USA past president, moderator

Pete Blodgett, President, Landmark Genetics

Court Carmichael, President, Holstein Association Canada

Cal Covington, CEO, American Jersey Cattle Club

Pieter Scheer, BM, Koninklijk Cooperatieif Rundvee Syndicaat, Holland

Duncan Spring, Former CEO, HF Society of Great Britain and Ireland

Officially Identified Holsteins

Tuesday, June 25 8:00 a.m.

The program will focus on "Officially Identified Holsteins: Is There Profit Potential?" A dynamic panel of industry people will address areas of cattle marketing, ag lending and banking, and ID cattle value among others.

Paticipants are:

Dave Hollis, Holstein Association USA, Marketing Director, Moderator

Steve Berland, HFS,Inc. Director of International Marketing

Dallas Burton, Burton and Fellers Cattle Sale Management

Bob Sheehan, President, Minnesota Holstein Association

Gary Sipiorski, Vice President, Citizens State Bank, Wisconsin

Chuck Worden, Holstein Breeder, New Mexico

Fort Worth Prepares for 111th National Holstein Convention

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Members and delegates of the Holstein Association are gearing up for the 111th National Convention to be held in Fort Worth, Texas, June 22-25. A full schedule of events is planned for both adults and juniors.

The Texas Holstein association is ready to host Holstein enthusiasts from around the country and around the world. Many events are planned for participants, including a rodeo, tours to several large dairies in the Stephenville, Texas area, and of course the Annual Meeting and National Convention Sale.

Delegate registration begins Saturday, June 22, with the general session of the Annual Meeting beginning Monday, June 24. Area meetings and committee forums, as well as panel discussions featuring the Value of Officially Identified Holsteins and also herdbook structure, will allow members to voice their opinions.

The Holstein cattle Silent Auction begins Sunday, June 23, and continues until Tuesday, June 25. The live sale will take place Monday, June 24, and feature some of the more elite Holstein genetics from around the country.

For more information about the National Holstein Convention, call the Holstein Association in Brattleboro at 1-800-952-5200.

Holstein USA's Junior Classification Program

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — The Holstein Association's new program allowing junior members to classify their cows housed in herds that are not participating in an Area classification cycle is being met with a positive response. The program became effective May 1, 1996.

Participation is only allowed as part of an Area Classification cycle, and the applicant must be a current junior member of Holstein Association USA. Juniors must present all cows recorded in their names (including cows owned in partnership) that are regular members of a herd as defined by the Herd Classification Policy.

Juniors wishing to classify with this program should call Member Service representatives over the telephone, using the account number which the applicant has used to register animals.

Cows that have been transferred into a Junior's name within three months of the first day of the month of the scheduled classification are not eligible. The processing date of the transfer is the date used to determine eligibility.

Herd reports will be processed but official BAAs will not be calculated. Scores assigned in the Junior Program will not be used in calculating genetic evaluations.

Fees for the Junior Program are as follows: Herd Fee $50; Each Cow Scored $6; No Charge for NICs and Checks.

Only one herd fee will be charged per dairy. If there is more than one Junior at a dairy that wishes to classify, the herd fee will be split between each applicant.

To sign up for the Junior Classification Program or for more information, call the Holstein Association at 1-800-952-5200.

Holstein Tag ID Growing

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Dairy producers across the country are finding the Holstein Association's Alternative ID program a sensible choice for animal identification. Currently, 1,270 herds are using Holstein ID tags to officially identify their animals with Holstein Association USA.

A double set of tamper-proof ear tags or a single tag set combined with an ear tattoo or a freezebrand can now be used in place of sketches of photos of calves. Teaming up with Allflex, the Association developed a tagging system that includes a management number designated by the producer and an Association serial number as well.

Presented in 1994 as an alternative to sketching and picturing animals, Tag ID has found favor with many producers who were already using ear tags in their herds. Several options are available with Alternative ID, including Tag ID, Tag 'N Tattoos (TNT), and Tag 'N Freezebrand (TNF). Currently, 1,112 herds are using Tag ID, 154 are using TNT, and four are using TNF.

Northeast Dairy Farmers Focus On Exports

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Representatives of the Northeast Dairy Export Program (NEDEP) have recently returned from attending the 1996 U.S Food Export Showcase in Chicago, and have also participated in successful trade shows this year in Singapore, Food and Hotel Asia '96, and Mexico, Festival de Alimentos y Bebidas, sponsored by the Foreign Agriculture Service. After meeting with Asian and Mexican dairy importers, NEDEP believes that these markets contain important potential for U.S. dairy companies willing to establish credibility with the consumers.

As Peter Caldwell, NEDEP's Vice President, just back from Singapore, stated, "Singapore is an active trading gate to Southeastern Asia, as well as being a small market in and of itself. Opportunities abound."

NEDEP is a joint public/private venture dedicated to promoting and completing export sales of Northeastern dairy products. It is partially funded by the USDA and the State Department of Agriculture of Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania and Vermont. Six participating dairy cooperatives and two processing companies (Agri-Mark, Inc., Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, Cabot Creamery, Dairylea Cooperative Inc., Milk Marketing Inc., O-AT-KA Milk Products Cooperative Inc., St. Albans Cooperative Creamery, Inc., and Upstate Milk Cooperatives, Inc.) provide the rest of the funding. With the contacts gained from trade shows in Mexico, Singapore, and Chicago, NEDEP is poised to enter the international arena and promote the sale of U.S. products abroad.

With The High Costs Of Dry Feeds ... Look To Liquids...

Look to Pro-Lix®

In the dairy business, income over feed cost is the name of the game Pro-Lix liquid feed supplements offer dairymen the means to maximize this value while getting the most from their cow's natural abilities.

Pro-Lix liquid feed supplements are concentrated sources of just what ordinary feeds lack: protein, energy, vitamins, minerals -- everything animals need for economical milk production and growth.

For replacement heifers, Pro-Lix means faster maturity and assurance that they'll get to the milking herd on time. If you trust your heifers to forage alone, they might not make it.

For lactating cows, the nitrogen content of Pro-Lix means plenty of protein available for milk production and growth.

Finally, for dry cows, Pro-Lix not only helps maintain their health during the dry period, ti prepares them for the next lactation. The Ca.P ratio in Pro-Lix helps control milk fever, while the Vitamin E and selenium aids in clean-up after the birth of a calf

Best of all, Pro-Lix works with all types of pasture grass or forage, as a free-choice supplement, a top-dressing, or a ration mix did Dietrich's. In 1952, the company purchased a milk powder drier and entered the dairy byproduct business.

By 1969, the milk business was sold and Dietrich's became a specialty milk powder producer, using newer spray drying equipment to provide essential ingredients for a number of chocolate companies.

Expansions continued over the years as Tom's father William F. Dietrich guided the milk delivery business from the 1940s through the start of the powder milk manufacturing in 1952 until Tom took over in 1979.

Currently, the operation has grown to encompass the block of property where the still-standing stone farmhouse and original dairy was but one property.

Newer highways, transportation of goods, and other changes provided businesses with the best locations and strategies to overwhelm and outprice small businesses, which were founded on providing services and goods to local communities.

And over the years, as the business environment and social environment changed, family businesses in the dairy industry were disappearing for a number of reasons.

Some of the reasons include regulations, liabilities, insurance costs, worker benefits, cuts into profit margins, inflation, the cost of living, and lack of interest or ability in survivors to keep the family business intact.

Additionally, American consumerism changed.

With fewer Americans handling raw food items, cooking, and preparing meals, and many more Americans having lost the opportunities to learn about the differences between high quality, average and poor quality products, the general population's indifference to quality of some products changed — handmade lost out to factory made, high quality lost out to acceptable quality.

It wasn't just family farm businesses but all family businesses that felt the squeeze from industrialized management techniques.

On top of all the other factors affecting small business, there has been a perhaps greater factor affecting the longevity of family businesses — family members.

Family members in a family business can be the business's greatest liability.

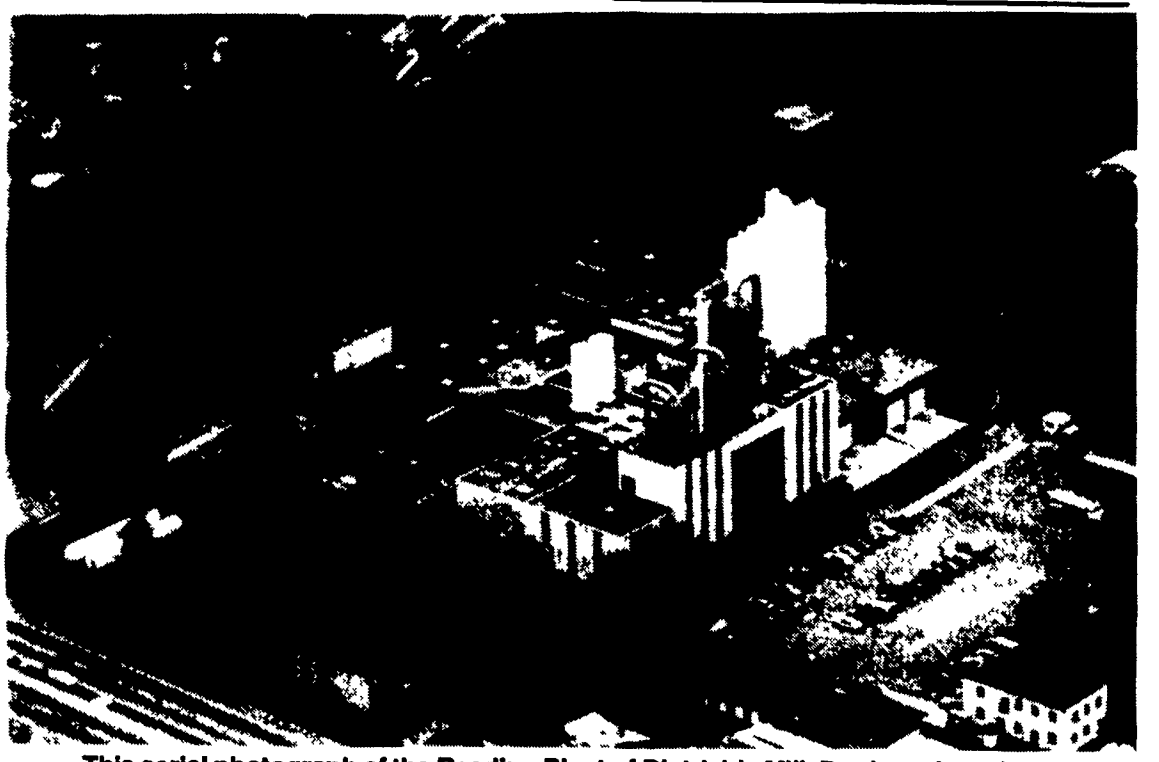
A speaker at a Lebanon County Extension dairy days program said that he noticed that family businesses really seemed to fall apart by the time they reach possession of grandchildren, or by the time cousins are working together.

This has to do with attitudes of heirs and parent-owners toward the family business, expectations, and interest in learning more about the business.

It also has to do with developing techniques for directing business toward continued success, and with an inability in some families to keep the family owned business separate from "family" business.

Tom said that while that may be true, the business he is running isn't the same business his grandfather started, or the business his father had operated.

It's all different now. The business is different. The industry is different and most importantly, it's continuing to change, perhaps even more rapidly.



This aerial photograph of the Reading Plant of Dietrich's Milk Products Inc. shows the three silo-looking devices with tubes attatched that are the company's spray driers. The white "silos" are milk-holding facilities. The stone farmhouse in the front still remains, while the original business occupied the farmhouse and about an acre of property behind it. Most growth occured during the 1970s and 80s. Dietrichs has continued to grow into the 1990s and has added research and development to produce the dairy products food manufacturers can use.

The reason Dietrich's was able to specialize in one sector of dairy processing has to do with the jungle of regulation created by oversight by the federal government.

Just like a tropical jungle, in which diversity of life ranges greatly from tree top to forest floor, from the edge of the forest to the most shaded interior, a range of niches — subecosystems that certain life forms can or do occupy — developed in the dairy industry.

Dietrich's fills a niche in the United States dairy industry, producing milk powder.

The pricing of milk under the federal regulatory structure has become one of the most complex

(Turn to Page A28)

Tom Dietrich stands next to a truck delivering a load of cooperative farmer-produced milk. While the fluid milk market has been fairly saturated for some time, businesses such as Dietrich's allow farmers to recoup extra income from the value from their product, while providing essential ingredients to food manufacturing companies.

ADC Is the Place To Be

Quality milk and support of its members – the outstanding benefits that Levi and LuAnn Ransom refer to – are among the strengths of the premier dairy cooperative in the region.

Atlantic Dairy Cooperative has a 78-year history of excellent service to its members. Financially strong, ADC guarantees a market for all member milk and excels in maximizing returns. ADC is a leader in providing equity payments, quality bonuses and over-order premiums to members.

Nearly 4,000 dairy farmers agree that "ADC is the Place to Be."

jobs to understand, much less calculate.

That's one of the main reasons why there's been so much clamor to abandon the federal regulatory system that was put into place to ensure adequate supplies of inexpensive food for Americans.

With consolidation of federal milk pricing orders, a gradual reduction in price support, a push on exporting, and more dependency on market demand, the new farm bill sets the stage to allow public demand and profit efficiencies to set the tone for how more and more of the dairy business is handled.

But that still leaves milk pricing, handling and processing in a complex state.

Those people who manage a large dairy cooperative such as Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, or Dairylea Inc., have to generate income for members and they have to do that by getting the most money for the milk members produce.

The most money for milk is paid for milk used for fluid uses — drinking milks and creams.

Paying drinking milk prices for milk and then using it all to make cheese leaves a lot of other milk components available that have value, and would make cheesemaking prohibitively expensive.

So under the government milk pricing structure, less money is paid to farmers whose milk is used for anything other than drinking milk.

But the price of the milk isn't calculated until after the milk has been produced, hauled and processed. Then, based on other factors in the industry, the value of the milk is calculated and minimum prices figured out.

Further, prices are "blended," meaning that as a collective, those cooperative members whose milk may go almost completely toward cheese or powder making get a higher paycheck because the total use of the cooperative's milk is determined and the various values assigned, and then the individual farmer's pay is figured out.

How to extract the most value from all milk produced is difficult and a daily challenge facing all in the industry.

So cooperatives balance their strategies and efforts to get the most uses and money out the milk they market.

With fluid uses of milk representing less than 50 percent of the use of milk produced, that leaves more than 50 percent available for other products.

Ice creams, cottage cheese, cream cheese, butter, milk powders, and whey are some of major milk byproducts in demand.

The milk powders and whey have a demand by other food industries as ingredients in food products, but the price of milk powders and whey has been kept down because, as historically practiced in the U.S. dairy industry, when no other use can be found for milk, it is sold to be used to make powder and whey.

Otherwise, the perishable milk would have to be dumped and the purchase investment lost.

At the same time, in the competitive world of dairy marketing, those who purchase or market milk must ensure that they don't lose money trying to use it all on a low- or no-profit product.

But at the same time, one processor can't be expected to be able to operate a business spread too thin by expanding into all the various processing procedures that might eliminate the need to dump any left over residue.

The goal of any segment of the dairy processing industry is to ensure that there is minimal waste and that the investment made in purchasing milk isn't lost through excessive byproduct manufacturing.

Within the marketing world of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative and Dairylea there is a niche for private business to handle the details of various dairy products, and Dietrichs is the one that does powdered milk and other products.

It helps the cooperatives find uses for their members' milk, and helps them balance the uses to maintain accounts and generate the most member income.

At the same time, it provides a business opportunity for Dietrich's Milk Products, and a reliable source of quality powder and other dairy products for food manufacturers, such as the makers of milk chocolate, confections, baked goods, and ice cream.

Three years ago, Dietrich's took over a shuttered processing plant in Middlebury, near Wellsboro in Tioga County. The facility was closed down after being built by a farmer cooperative and losing money.

The business is doing well, employing between 60 to 70 people at each facility. The employees are members of the Teamsters Union (A throwback to the days when the plant had the majority of employees driving milk delivery trucks.).

Dietrich said that having the employees unionized is good because it enhances the ability of management to communicate with employees. Otherwise, management would have to create a system for communicating with employees about problems with equipment, with internal affairs, etc.

"As an industry going into deregulation and redefining how it is regulated on a regional basis, and with the elimination of supports, we have to have a viable futures market," he said.

"Once we have that, I think we will have all the pieces to allow the dairy industry to function as we enter the 21st century."

Milk Delivery Models Still Available

The award winning got milk? slogan was featured on the Limited Edition collector banks made by Ertl to commemorate the 80th Pennsylvania Farm Show held in early January, '96. While 1000 were sold at the Farm Show, a few hundred are still available. These six inch long banks are metal replicas of a 1912 Ford delivery truck and include a fact sheet about Pennsylvania's dairy industry as well as information on the "got milk?" advertising campaign. Staff at the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion office in Harrisburg prepared the fact sheet and also obtained approval to use the "got milk?" slogan.

These items were approved by the PA Department of Agriculture as an official 80th PA State Farm Show souvenir item.

Excellent gift idea for that special dairy person or collector in your family.

When you catch your breath after this hectic spring of wild weather, take a look at your reproduction management.

High feed costs and diminishing profits make it essential that your herd calves regularly and avoids long dry periods or low levels of production.

It is also important to grow out your heifers and have them conceive early to prevent feeding them longer than necessary before they begin producing.

Of all the management practices that affect reproduction efficiency, heat detection is the major item that results in success or failure.

The problem that most farmers have is the lack of commitment to allocate time to observe heat signs.

There are a variety of aids for farmers to detect heats, such as pedometers which record an animal's activity to electronic pressure-sensitive mount detectors to color-changing patches and chalk marking.

However, the most commonly used method is simply watching the herd for 15-20 minutes, two to three times per day. The hard part is taking the time during the busy crop season to stand there and watch cows — it could be the most efficient time you spend each day.

Good reproductive herd health is another key factor. Infections in the uterus are often the cause of poor conception rates or early embryonic death. Regular herd checks and a good working relationship with your veterinarian can solve many of these problems.

The practice of calving heifers at 28-30 months of age should be a past practice. If you grow them right, 22-24 months at calving should be the goal. Today you cannot afford to lose 6-8 months of production from a cow's lifetime.

Somatic Cell Counts

High temperatures and high somatic cell counts (SCC) seem to go together in some herds.

Bacteria grow rapidly in warm, moist conditions and where there is an adequate supply of organic matter. Keeping cows clean and dry will go a long way toward preventing severe mastitis outbreaks.

Some key practices include:

1 — Have your milking system checked every six months by a qualified technician.

2 — Have clean udders so that washing before milking can be curtailed or eliminated.

3 — Apply milkers to dry teats after milk letdown. The goal is to attach milkers 30 to 60 seconds after stimulation. Use single-service paper towels to dry the udder.

4 — Definitely post-dip all teats because immediately after milking is when the teat end is most susceptible to new infections.

5 — Pre-dipping will often decrease the incidence of environmental mastitis such as coliform, Klebsiella, and strep non-ag.

6 — Dry treat all quarters. This is probably the only way to effectively treat cases of staph aureus mastitis. Because staph bacteria from abscesses within the udder and cannot be reached by lactating treatments, the long-acting, high-concentration antibiotic in a dry treatment is needed.

7 — Cull the problem cows. They are adding large amounts of cells to the tank SCC score, often times preventing any quality bonus income. Also, they will contaminate other cows in the herd which only escalates the mastitis problem.

Veal Producer Sees Business Grow

Marcho, who grows about 700 calves at the 30-acre Harleysville farm, claims his company "is the largest veal packer in the East, this side of Ohio." Per week, Marcho Farms processses between 1,200-1,500 head of veal calves.

formerly a poultry layer farm. The barn was gutted, the equipment was removed, and veal stalls were put in. At the time, Marcho started with 100 calves and steadily added to the business.

Marcho, who grows about 700 calves at the 30-acre Harleysville farm, claims his company "is the largest veal packer in the East, this side of Ohio." Per week, Marcho Farms processses between 1,200-1,500 head of veal calves.

This includes the 160 farms in the Northeast that Marcho considers "customers" — those that grow veal for the processing plant. That includes about 40-50 veal producers in the Lancaster County region.

The largest customer outside of the Marcho Farm produces about 600 calves at a time.

Marcho, president of the American Veal Association, is sensitive to any claims that his company has a "monopoly" on the veal finishing business. It's simply not true.

"We've been accused already of monopolizing the market because we contract some calves, (while people believe) you run the independant customer out of business," he said. In reality, Marcho works mostly with independent producers and does no finance contracting in which they own the animals. "A very small percentage of our calves are under contract. Most of the calves we bring into the plant are owned by growers."

Marcho feeds calves all dairy products. The feed is comprised of reconstituted skim milk and whey, fed as a milk replacer. The calves, three days old, are brought in at 100 pounds each and kept for 18 weeks until they reach the processing weight of 450 pounds.

Most of the calves are sold to large-scale supermarket and restaurant distribution services. Those services then further process and package the product for grocery stories and restaurants. In all, Marcho serves about 350 customers with veal products.

Some of the veal is custom-packaged for several grocery stores. The product is also sold as Marcho Farms Premium Dutch Country Veal in stores.

"We do a lot of finished processing here as well," said Marcho. One product is the "Vealicious" breaded patty available in a retail box.

Also, a small portion goes directly to independent, smaller restaurants, according to Marcho.

The 46,000 square foot Franconia processing plant at Franconia Square employs 135 people full-time. The plant operates on two 10-hour shifts, one for processing and another for cleanup.

According to Marcho, American Veal Association (AVA) president, several issues warrant the attention of growers. One of those is that growers sign up for and begin implementing AVA-written Veal Quality Assurance guidelines. Growers who sign up for the two-step quality assurance program automatically become members of AVA.

In the future, Marcho hopes to be able to attach the quality assurance certification to the packaged veal product.

"Sometime in the future we will be labeling the product as certified," he said.

The quality assurance initiative is "a proactive program to show the consumer that agriculture is very interested in creating a good, wholesome product," said Marcho. "There's a lot of negative press about meat lately and, again, it's just a further step to ensure the consumer that what they are buying is the best possible product. Through educating the farmer, hopefully we're able to ensure that the best animal husbandry practices are used in the production of veal."

A big part of quality assurance is simply record keeping. It also includes dealing with the producer's veterinarian to prescibe the proper drugs and to make sure there's a proper withdrawl time after drugs are used for the therapeutic treatment of calves.

Marcho said, "We have one of the best records in the meat industry as far as producing drug-free animals."

Also, issues management is a top concern for Marcho. He is also concerned that AVA advertising dollars, now under the auspices of the National Cattlemen's Beef Association, are spent wisely to ensure that AVA's identity remains unique.

One of the issues that even veal producers face is the hysteria over BSE, commonly known as Mad Cow's Disease, that has plagued prices at the auctions.

"The total meat industry has taken a hard hit on it. I think there's been a lot of negative feelings toward the meat industry," Marcho said. "People found out that rendering products were fed back to meat animals. They should know we don't do that with veal. Our products are all milk products, so we don't have that concern.

"Anytime you get a negative image on meat, the whole industry takes a hit," he said.

A concern that processors and growers have now is the overproduction of veal, which helps to drive down market prices.

A big reason for the low prices, according to Marcho, is the overabundance of the "bob" veal — bull calves that are less than a month old (in contrast to the 18-week-old calves that Marcho processes.) The production of bob veal is up 25-30 percent over what it was a year ago.

Also, about 125,000-130,000 more cattle are killed a week now than a year ago. When the peak subsides and the market bounces back, some of the calves will return to the feedlots, which will help reduce the supply of veal and improve the prices.

Marcho predicts that beef prices, always cyclic, will bounce back, given a year or two.

For the most part, prices at the retail level don't reflect market prices. The producer must continue to strive to run efficiently and cut costs.

Marcho feeds calves all dairy products. The feed is comprised of reconstituted skim milk and whey, fed as a milk replacer. Here, Marcho checks out the feed bags.

"The veal industry, over the years, has been a very good buisness," said Marcho. "We started with nothing in the veal business and we're doing about $35 million in sales of veal product a year. It's been good to us, but you also have to run a well-managed organization to be competitive.

"We have many growers doing well in veal even at these low market prices."

As president of the AVA, Marcho indicated his style is to run an organization simply and to have specific goals. Two of those goals are to run the AVA so as to "not lose our identify with the rest of the meat industry." Another goal is to

Most of the calves are sold to large-scale supermarket and restaurant distribution services. Those services then further process and package the product for grocery stories and restaurants. In all, Marcho serves about 350 customers with veal products.

Quality Control Efforts Key, Veal Producers Learn

WILLIAMSPORT (Lycoming Co.) — More than 150 farmers and industry representatives gathered in Williamsport recently for the Pennsylvania/New York Veal Convention.

Throughout the meeting sessions, from a veterinarian and packer-representative panel to industry updates, attendees were told the importance of quality control efforts.

Nearly 75 veal producers participated in at least one of the two Level Two Quality Assurance seminars sponsored by the American Veal Association which were held at the convention.

According to Dr. Lowell Wilson, professor of animal sciences at Penn State and technical adviser of the Veal Quality Assurance Program, "Quality assurance programs available to producers and processors of animal products have done more than anything else to remind producers that they are an integral, important link in the food production, processing and distribution chain.

"Individuals involved in food production realize that their livelihood depends on the acceptance of the products which they produce and sell. In addition, producers also realize that in the Veal Quality Assurance Program, as in other animal production systems, following the quality assurance guidelines not only assure a safe and wholesome product, but it can also enhance animal well-being and improve the potential for profit."

A number of producers attending the Quality Assurance Certification Seminar commented that the veal industry must work more aggressively with dairy farmers to ensure calf well-being.

"Although I can implement stringent quality assurance guidelines in my operation, my efforts are handicapped, to a great extent, by the health of my incoming calves," said one veal producer. "Our industry must communicate very clearly with the dairy farmer on the importance of giving their bull calves a good start, through colostrum, before they sell them."

American Veal Association President Wayne Marcho, of Marcho Farms, near Souderton, stressed the need for a strong, viable, industry organization. "When the news media and consumers call requiring information on the industry, we must have an organiztion such as AVA in place to answer questions," he said.

The convention concluded with an industry banquet, where the meeting organizers and past industry leadership were honored.

identify those issues that need to be addressed, then deal with them in the most cost-effective manner.

Spending money on promotion is key. Right now, the promotional message for veal is "Veal. Discover the Special Choice."

For growers, to stay profitable, focus must be on efficiency.

"You have to run an operation very efficiently," he said. "I look at people who are doing very well in veal and at people who are not doing very well. And it comes back to management. You can look at any business — it's the same."

At Penn-Dell Offspring Shows Cow's Worth

and Mary bought the farm in 1969. Since that time they have added another farm and another piece of ground to bring the total acres to 287.

'Our goal always has been to breed a good, profitable herd of cows that we could be proud of," Jay said. "The cow families we have today start back to when my dad bought his first registered Holstein. We have not been a big purchaser of cows. You couldn't find five cows in the herd that are not traceable all the way back."

This ability to trace the identification of the background of cows in the herd is the main reason Jay belives everyone should own registered Holsteins. "The most important thing about registered cattle is identity," Jay said. "We need information for research, DHIA, and the bull studs. When you have this identity, you have unlimited opportunity. Cow families are the key, and you need identity so you can follow these families.

"Everyone has a dream, and my goal is not to just go to the barn to milk cows. You only milk two times a day, but you must look at them many more times. I like to look at cows that look good.

"Having the identification that comes with registered Holsteins also gives you the opportunity for additional income. Every industry that succeeds sells by-products. Our goal is always to sell some bulls and heifers out of our herd for extra income.

"We want the opportunity to merchandise. What value is it to sell a cow for meat? You can't put a price on 100 lbs. of milk or a veal calf or a beef cow. But you can put your own price on a registered offspring out of your herd. This can make a big difference in the income at the end of the year."

Jay agrees the dairy industry will bring big challenges in the future. One area that cannot be overlooked is the ability to manage personel. As farm operations get larger, farmers will need to deal with more people. Decisions will still need to be made on the spur of the moment, but because the operations are larger, the decisions will have greater potential to take the business down if the right decisions are not made.

Jay notes that their operation tripled in 30 years. And he believes dairy operations will need to grow in the future. At the same time the challenges and opportunities will also be there for people who have foresight and the ability to manage their operations well.

One of Jay's goals for his tenure as Holstein president is to bring people together. "We need unity in agriculture," Jay said. "Because there is so few of us in number, we can no longer just be dairymen, beef farmers, hog farmers, or grain farmers. We must join across all lines of agriculture and work together.

"One of the biggest changes I have seen over the years in agriculture is that we no longer work togeter. We don't have the on-farm get-to-gethers for threshing or butchering. All those special occasions have dwindled away. We are not as close as we were. Families have separated. Communities are not as close. We don't help one another.

"Because we don't work together, we need more cash flow. We don't use one another's pieces of equipment. That's why we need to get bigger. And we have lost respect in the communities because they see all of our big equipment and think we must be making a lot of money."

The only thing higher on Jay's and Mary's priority list than working with registered Holsteins would be their family. Of their five children, all still keep a hand in farming. Mary Ellen and Craig Storm and their son Kaleb live on a dairy farm in Wisconsin. Sandra and Steve Haagen and their sons Jacob and Issac are also dairy farmers. Karren and Benj Auman and their son Aaron live near-by and Karren helps on the farm. Barbara works at Penn State but feeds calves at home and Jim works full time on the farm.

As for Jay's philosophy about cows, he says no matter who you are, you run out of time to do what you want to do. "If you get five generations in a pedigree in your lifetime, that's about all you can do if you are going to get something that will last," Jay said. "To me, that's what you should want to do. The cow is only as good as her offspring are after she is gone. This is when she proves how good you and she were together."

Intensive Grazing At Fritzglen June 26

BRIDGEPORT (Lancaster Co.) — Dairy farmers are facing difficult economic times.

Dairy farmers can learn ways to keep their business viable by attending a field day on management intensive grazing on June 26 at the J. Harold Fritz Farm near Bridgeport.

The field day, entitled "Intensive Grazing: A Way to Help Keep You and Your Customers In Business," is scheduled at the Fritzglen Farm on June 26. The host farm is located on 70 acres, supplying significant forage to 160 head for nine months of the year. On 163 head, the March 1996 herd average was 23,086 pounds of milk, 802 pounds of fat, and 752 pounds of protein.

The farm has a high production philosophy and uses management intensive grazing.

The field day begins at 9 a.m. with registration and concludes with an optional pasture walk at 3:30 p.m. The field day is free and includes an excellent lunch, speakers, and proceedings.

The day is sponsored by the Regional Infrastructure for Sustaining Agriculture (RISA) and partners, including Penn State, Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture, Rodale, Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, League of Women Voters, Reading Terminal Trust, Dairy Network Partnership, and the Pennsylvania Grazing Research and Education Center.

Reservations are required by June 12. Contact Tim Fritz at (610) 489-4315.

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania

Governor's Office

PROCLAMATION

DAIRY MONTH
June 1996

WHEREAS, Milk, nature's most perfect food, is Pennsylvania's official beverage. Our dairy industry offers consumers a wealth of great tasting and nutritious foods. Dairy products are our most readily available food source for calcium and provide generous amounts of protein, vitamin D, riboflavin and potassium; and

WHEREAS, the dairy industry has the leading role in agriculture's dominant position as the Commonwealth's number one industry. Pennsylvania is the fourth leading milk producing state in the country. Last year, the 645,000 dairy cows on our farms produced 10.6 billion pounds of milk. Pennsylvania also ranks second nationally in the annual production of ice cream, with 66 million gallons, and sixth in the production of all cheese, with 348 million pounds; and

WHEREAS, more than 38 percent of agricultural income in Pennsylvania is generated by milk sales. Sales from milk alone represent a $1.46 billion contribution to the state's economy. Adding to the dollar value of the milk itself are the state's processing plants and manufacturers. In addition to our 11,800 commercial dairy farmers, thousands of Pennsylvanians are employed in the manufacturing and processing of dairy products;

WHEREAS, Pennsylvania's dairy industry continues to meet the changing demands of consumers. Our dairy farmers are also true environmentalists, utilizing new technologies and an improved understanding of the links between soil, plants and animals.

THEREFORE, I, Tom Ridge, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do hereby proclaim June 1996, as DAIRY MONTH in Pennsylvania. I salute dairy farmers and their families for the strength and vitality they bring to rural communities throughout the state and urge all Pennsylvanians to recognize the contributions made by our dairy industry. I encourage you to become better acquainted with all the healthy products and economic contributions this number-one industry provides.

GIVEN under my hand and the Seal of the Governor, this twenty-eighth day of May in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ninety-six, and of the Commonwealth the two hundred and twentieth.

Tom Ridge

June Dairy Month

Your cows can't tell you what's wrong with their diet, but they can drop a hint.

Maybe you're putting too much fiber in their feed. Maybe they need more protein. This time you can't figure it out. But milk production is down and you can't afford to guess.

Robert Patton knows. He was a dairy farmer for fifteen years before he got his Ph.D. and became a nutritionist. He can tell a lot from a manure sample. You can gain a lot from a visit.

Lancaster Holstein Show Date Set

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County Holstein Association has planned the annual dairy show for July 25 at the Quarryville Fair Grounds, starting at 9:30 a.m. Ruby Bollinger, show chairperson, said the deadline for entries is July 1.

Exhibitors should use the entry forms from the Pennsylvania Holstein Association's spring show, or the form with this article. Show entry rules and requirements also follow the state show's regulations.

You may copy the form in the paper, or additional entry forms can be obtained from Ruby Bollinger. Fees are $5 until deadline; $10 for late entries.

Exhibitors from outside the county may compete. For more information, call Ruby Bollinger at (717) 898-7622.

Emergency Grazing

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Farmers will be permitted to cut hay or graze their animals on lands enrolled in the federal Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), according to Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius.

The program is designed to prevent soil erosion and improve water quality.

"Emergency haying or grazing on CRP acreage will reduce some of the strain on Pennsylvania's dairymen and livestock farmers," Brosius said. "Low cattle prices, low forage supplies and record high grain prices are a challenge to farm profitability."

Under the CRP program, farmers submit bids during a sign-up period to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Farm Service Agency (FSA) for rental payments to put their land in the program. The bids are selected nationally, and only the most environmentally sensitive land is taken.

For more information about emergency haying or grazing of CRP acreage, program participants should contact their local FSA office or the state FSA headquarters, (717) 782-4593.

Educational Background Gives Somerset Dairyman Voice For Agriculture

GAY BROWNLEE
(Somerset Co. Correspondent)

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — "I've always been a firm believer that every person owes a portion of his time to advance his profession," said Harold M. Shaulis, chairman of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau state dairy committee and owner of the 371-acre H.M.S. Haven farm.

In his case, this "portion of time" entails being on committees and serving on boards where, regardless of local, state or national level, he has he opportunity to speak out in behalf of farmers, agriculture, and rural areas.

Unlike farmers who would cringe at being asked to speak publicly of officially, Shaulis feels right at home, even with the president. In 1993 when he was testifying in Washington about the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), Shaulis spoke with President Clinton about what the farmers need.

Besides chairing the Western Regional Ag Task Force, Shaulis is a member of the State Ag Task Force for U.S. Sen. Rick Santorum, and has the opportunity to both advise and educate the senator on matters of importance to agriculture.

He's a director in the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, serving on two committees (local funding and promotions and local program restructuring), a member of both the operating program and board of directors for ADADC-Mid-East, and a member of the Pennsylvania Dairy of Industry Future Committee.

From 1985 to 1988 Shaulis was president of the Somerset County Farm Bureau and earned the Silver Plow Award given for outstanding membership growth. In two successive years he was awarded the All Star County Award for outstanding achievement in all program areas

Shaulis, who was always active in county ag, in 1988 went to the state board of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau after his election to fill a vacancy existing in the Somerset, Bedford and Blair County district.

"It became real therapeutic for me to get involved and to get away from the farm," said Shaulis, the holder of a bachlor's degree in education that he earned at Shippensburg State College.

"I started just to promote ag, but when I realized that the things that are vital to agriculture are also vital to rural communities."

A destructive barn fire and resultant outpouring of help from neighbors was a real catalyst, although he was considering other factors, too, in committing more of his time.

Until 1974, his primary career had been teaching. Then he entered farming.

"I started from scratch in 1974," he said, "and I've been scratching ever since." Unlike some farms, which their owners get through an inheritance, his was purchased.

The milking barn could accommodate about 25 head of cows, had a mere 200-gallon bulk tank, and no silos. He opted for the route of slow growth rather than heaping up a big pile of debt.

Doing most of their work himself, Shaulis' first order of business was to remodel the barn and increase the herd to 40 head.

By 1977, two concrete silos measuring 18 by 60 feet had been built for haylage and corn silage.

By 1981, the dairy had grown to 60 Holsteins, a larger tank and two more silos with dimensions of 16 by 72 and 20 by 72 feet. Four years later, the place was really humming with 116 cows, a new three-inch stainless pipeline, and bulk tank sized for a 2,000-gallon capacity.

And then ... the inferno!

The personal call that came to the bowling alley disrupted a companionable evening that he and his dad were enjoying. The message left the dairyman dumbstruck. Earlier, when they had left home, everything seemed fine in the barn.

Confronted with the chaotic scenario that greeted his return was a numbing experience. Fire trucks and people were everywhere. So were the smokey ruins.

Neighbors had rushed in, saving all but five cows when leading them out to safety. He watched in mute disbelief as friends capably handled things for him, taking charge and implementing emergency measures, like temporarily hooking up electricity and clearing away debris.

"I didn't have to think," he said. "Friends took over and organized everything."

Nine fire companies had pumped one million gallons of water. They stood by throughout the night, wetting down the smoldering hay that was stuffed into the 50 by 90 foot structure.

Next morning, at 9 a.m., with firemen and equipment still on the scene, Shaulis was amazed to see the cows being milked by a temporary milking system that had been activated.

In succeeding days, however, the trauma took its toll as some 30 cows succumbed to the smoke inhalation and pneumonia.

Unlike last winter, the winter of 1986 was mild and aided construction of a single-story barn. "In literally a hundred-mile circle I had people come to help. I don't think I had more than $1,000 in labor to rebuild," he said.

However, Shaulis had injured his ankle. The doctor told Shaulis to keep it elevated. Unfortunately, the barn's roof trusses were ready to be set at the time.

"The doctor said to elevate my foot, so they put me on the roof and that's as high as I could get," said Shaulis.

"I discovered that one way to repay all the people is to be involved in organizations," he said.

Today the Shaulis herd has 120 mature cows whose milk is shipped to the Turner Dairy in Pittsburgh (he quotes the actual weight at 18,200 pounds) and 75 replacements.

The commercial herd is a Grade AA dairy. Shaulis said he has no registered animals. His opinion is the only way to make money on them is through merchandising and selling. It's time-consuming and therefore not compatible with his hectic schedule.

"If you have the cash to risk on investment, it's OK," he said. "But you have to decide what type of money you want to put out.

"The dairy industry is working on tighter operating margins. Each year is tighter," he said. "Whatever decision — registered versus grade — it has to be handled on a business basis. 'What is the cow going to give in return?' or 'How much more can you get out of a cow?'" Shaulis said, citing the pros and cons of this debate.

"There is a risk just like in the stockmarket, over and above what you would normally take in buying a cow," he said, adding that his opinion on the subject is being reinforced everyday.

"However, if I were a 4-H person, I would definitely keep registered animals, because keeping the papers up is a good exercise," said the High Ridge 4-H Club leader, whose own kids have goat and pig projects.

The use of any commercial fertilizer at H.M.S. Haven farm is limited. "I rely heavily on manure," said the busy husband of Carol Shaulis, a high school English teacher in the Rockwood Area School District and an English literature instructor at the Somerset campus of the Allegany Community College in Cumberland, Md.

The manure system, a half-million gallon capacity earthen-dam pond, can store its contents for tree to four months before being emptied. It was built in 1981.

As far as crop breakdown, Shaulis rents 275 acres in addition to his own 250 tillable acres, sowing 200 in corn, 200 in alfalfa, 80 in barley and 45 in timothy hay.

He doesn't mind selling mulch hay. In fact, he usually gets rig of four to six trailer loads. Anything left over from the better hay, however, he reserves for his own livestock.

What does he think about the recently enacted federal farm bill? "We need less government involvement in all areas," he said. "We need less government regulation all over. We can compete," he said.

Shaulis believes that without government assistance, smart stewards of the land will rise to the occasion and not be outdone by the competition.

Recently, his comments in a local newspaper expressed Shaulis' opinion that the seven-year bill will lead to more open competition for prices on products and, in the long run, make farming more profitable. He said at the time that the open market was already driving up the prices for grain.

A proverb is kept on the wall in the Shaulis home. The words are: "He who wants milk should not sit on a stool in the middle of the pasture expecting the cow to back up to him."

Farmers should not just "sit back and go for a ride," he said. They need to get involved in their local farm cooperatives and other ag organizations. If they want to see movement and motivation, willing individuals must step forward.

The primary responsibility of his two full-time employees if that of handling the milking for their boss. On weekends, a high school student is the relief man.

The Shaulis' children are Ronna Holiday, a senior at Duquesne University; Katie Shaulis, a high school junior; and Aaron Shaulis, grade seven, both at Rockwood Area schools.

Katie's goats have done very well at the county fair. Twice her does were selected as the grand champion. Her brother, Aaron, prefers having swine projects.

Folks traveling on Route 281 between Somerset and New Centerville, when crossing the Weimer Flats, can look off to the west and see in the distance the five towering silos of H.M.S. Haven. The fifth silo, a 20 by 92 foot bottom unloader of poured concrete, was built following the fire to replace the hay storage that Shaulis lost.

H.M.S Haven farm will host the Somerset County Day at the farm on Sunday, June 23 from 1 p.m.-5 p.m. The educational event is sponsored by Somerset County Farm Bureau.

Mid-Am Dairymen Inc. Announces East Coast Bonus Program

ROANOKE, Va. — Mid-America Dairymen, Inc. has announced a bonus plan for dairy producers on the East Coast that will pay a $2.50 per hundredweight (cwt.) bonus on all milk produced in excess of production recorded in August through October 1995.

The program is a response to inadequate milk supplies in the Southeast that have forced milk suppliers to haul milk from outside in recent years in order to meet demand. The bonus will be effective August through October 1996.

According to G.H. Cain, Coastal Division manager for Mid-America Dairymen, Inc., current tight regional milk supplies are the result of a shrinking number of dairy farms in the Southeast and sharply higher feed costs for dairy farmers still in business.

Cain says the nation's dairy farmers are in the midst of extremely difficult economic times. "High production costs have forced more than 11,000 southeastern dairy farmers out of business in the past five years," he said.

"With feed costs running 60 percent higher than a year ago, more of the region's dairy farmers will go out of business unless they get a significant increase in milk prices soon."

John Collins, chief operating officer for Mid-Am's Eastern Fluid Group, confirmed Cain's concern for the future. He said the region's milk production has been running 7 percent behind the first quarter of last year.

According to Collins, dairy companies shipped more than 2 million gallons of milk per week into the Southeast during last summer's heat wave. (That's enough to supply a half a gallon of milk per week to every man, woman and child in the Atlanta metropolitan area.)

Some of this milk comes from as far away as Wisconsin and costs as much as 42 cents per gallon more to procure than locally produced milk.

Cain said it is much more cost effective to produce the milk in the region and keep the economic benefit of that production in the area where it is produced.

"Hopefully the bonus program will stimulate additional production in the area and not only put more dollars in the farmer's pocket, but improve the local economy as well," he said.

What Is The North East Dairy Compact?

ARDEN TEWKSBURY
Manager of Pro Ag

Several people have asked that we publish answers to some of their questions concerning the North East Interstate Dairy Compact.

1. What is the Compact? - The North East Interstate Dairy Compact is a joint agreement that has been signed into law by all six New England States. To make the Compact completely legal the U.S. Congress gave their approval to the Compact, with some stipulation when they passed the 1995 Farm Bill.

2. Can other states join the Compact? - Six other states; Pa., N.Y., N.J., Va., Md., and Del. have been given the OK to join the Compact by the U.S. Congress. Each state must individually pass the Compact and have their actions approved by the U.S. Congress.

3. Can the six new states join anytime? - Each new state that joins the Compact must either border one of the New England states or a state that borders a New England state. Example - New York State can join because they border New England. Pennsylvania can join after New York, and Maryland can join after Pa. joins, etc.

4. What is the purpose of the Compact?

a. Currently individual states cannot regulate prices on interstate shipments of milk. Through the Compact the U.S. Congress allows the new purposed State Milk Commission to regulate interstate shipments of milk.

b. Each state that is a member of the Compact will have between three and five members on the New Milk Commission, but each state will have only one vote. Each state will determine who the delegates are. However, at least one delegate from each state must be a dairy farmer and at least one must be a consumer.

5. What are the responsibilities of the new Commission? - Among other things the new Milk Commission will hold milk hearings, listen to testimony and determine a price for Class I milk (fluid).

6. What about milk use for manufactured purposes? - The Commission is not authorized to establish prices for manufactured milk.

7. What price can farmers expect from the New Commission? - The Compact as developed in 1990 establishes a maximum price on fluid milk paid to dairy farmers of $1.50 per gallon. This equated to $17.40 cwt. The Compact allows an inflation factor to adjust the $17.40. The new price would be at least $19.00 cwt.

8. Will the New Commission establish a $19.00 cwt. price? - There is noo guarantee what price will be established. Dairy farmers will have to justify through the hearing process what the price should be.

Personally, I feel that a fluid price equal to the price in Federal Order #2 during late 1989 and early 1990 might be obtainable. Dec. 1989 - $16.42 cwt., Jan. 1990 - $17.24 cwt., Feb. - $17.48, March - $16.49. In addition to these prices many milk handlers were paying approximately $1.00 cwt. to their producers in Northeastern Pa.

9. Will there be a referendum on any new milk order?

Yes.

a. The Compact allows Dairy Cooperatives to block vote for their members and all independent producers will have a chance to vote.

b. The Compact compels each Dairy Co-op to inform their members as to how the co-op is voting on a proposed order.

A co-op member may obtain a ballot from the Commission, and the member may vote the opposite way his Co-op votes. The members vote would be subtracted from the Co-op vote.

d. In addition the Compact compels the Commission to notify all producers of a new order, and inform the producers of their right to vote.

What Is The North East Dairy Compact?

10. Realistically, what price improvement can dairy farmers expect from the Compact?

a. In all probability the Commission would establish a minimum price for fluid milk, and this price would kick in when the Federal Order Class I price falls below the Commission's minimum price.

b. If dairy farmers could prove and defend a Class I price of $17.50 cwt. and using a $15.51 Federal Order Class I price (June 1996 Order 2), and using a 40 percent Class I utilization, then the improvement in dairy farmers price would be approximately 80 cents cwt.

Conclusion - Everyone must be careful on speculating what price the New Commission might set after Secretary Glichman gives the green light for the Compact to move forward.

There will be the usual groups opposing any improvements in prices to dairy farmers. However, we must remember the main purpose of the Compact is to stabilize prices paid to dairy farmers and assure consumers of a wholesome supply of locally produced milk.

The only way to achieve this is to raise prices to dairy farmers.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

We've had lots of rain in our area, which caused a problem when corn planting time came. But, our daughter in Texas tells us that they must water their new plantings everyday. The weather affects our activities and our moods.

We invited friends for a picnic and then it rained. So, we ate at the kitchen table instead of using the sturdy picnic table that Allen made. The baked beans, potato salad, and hot dogs don't taste quite as good when eaten indoors.

One sunny day I did manage to put a number of houseplants in the garden. They usually do better outside in the summer. I even got my peanuts in the ground and all of my flower bulbs in too.

My sister, who lives in Michigan, visited Lancaster County and we five sisters had lunch together and caught up on news. One is expecting a new grandchild and one had just moved into a new home. We had a tour of the house after lunch and it was beautifully decorated even though she had only been there two weeks.

I'm pleasantly surprised to again see hundreds of my iris blooming as they had died back last summer. Some have been shared with friends as they have large blooms. My Shasta daisies are blooming early and make nice bouquets. There are peonies that should be staked as their big, heavy blooms droop.

My husband caught a big fish and I was not there to see it as he had gone to Bald Eagle State Park to test his gasoline motor on the boat. We usually fish at Lake Walker where only electric motors are allowed. When I'm left home alone, I usually find time to bake. Last week I made an apple pie, two shoo-fly pies, a coffee cake, and a moist lemon cake. I freeze some and then when the weather is nice they will be handy for a quick dessert.

Ephrata Mennonite Prepares For Benefit Auction

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — The Ephrata Mennonite School will hold its 12th Annual Benefit Auction of Friday, June 14 and Saturday, June 15. To be sold are Winross Trucks, quilts, an 8'x12' workshop mini barn, a wooden swing set with a sandbox, a children's playhouse, a handcrafted child's pedal truck (made by a local artist), tools, toys, services from businesses, crafts, and much more.

On Friday night, pig roast supper and ice cream sundae bar begins at 4:30 p.m. The auction begins at 6:00 p.m. Certificates will be sold at 7:30 p.m. and the Winross trucks at 8:00 p.m.

On Saturday morning a ham and cheese omelet breakfast will be served from 7:00-9:00 a.m. The auction begins at 9:00 a.m. Certificates from local businesses and restaurants will be sold at 10:30 a.m. and again at 12:00 noon. Large special items including the workshop mini barn, children's playhouse, handcrafted pedal truck, and swing set will be sold at 1:00 p.m.

Lots of good homemade foods will be available all day, including chicken barbecue, baked potatoes, French fries, cheeseburgers, sausage sandwiches, hot dogs, soft ice cream, homemade pies, and more.

All auction proceeds benefit Christian education at Ephrata Mennonite School.

The auction will be held at the school at 598 Stevens Road, Ephrata. Take Rt #272 North from Ephrata to Schoeneck Road. Turn Left on Schoeneck Road approximately ½ mile to the school on the left. For more information, please call the school at (717) 738-4266 or Earl Zimmerman, auction chairman, at (717) 627-1387.

Saylor Sisters Farm With Pride At Say-View Farm

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

ROCKWOOD (Somerset Co.) — Sisters Sue and Marjorie Saylor wouldn't dream of disguising their pride in a farming partnership that continues a family tradition of self-sufficiency now in its fifth generation on the land.

Why? Simply because the farm has always been debt free since its 200 acres were initially bought in 1876 for $346. And the value of debt-free living has been so deeply ingrained into their consciousness by their late grandfather and their parents, Warren and Stella Saylor, that, as long as the women control the reins, it will stay that way.

"Grandpa said you don't buy until you have the money," Sue said, adding that the advice has never failed them.

Keep matters simple and you'll be better off, is another Say-View belief where life functions beautifully without the aid of a computer.

"I do all my bookwork once a year in longhard. I have only 'income' and 'expense' and that's it," declares Sue, whose record-keeping entries earn praises from the farm's accounting firm

Sue and Marjorie grew up in the 1867 plank house where a six-member family of two grandparents, two parents and themselves, created a unique household environment.

There were numerous intergenerational discussions around the big kitchen table and the daily routin of all six working together. Thus the girls, in the most natural way, absorbed lessons about living principled lives.

It was an atmosphere of filial unity which fostered the development of their self-esteem and confidence.

Being the eldest by some four years, Sue had plenty of confidence. At age four, she was already an industrious little helper who thought she could drive the small tractor to help out. Instead, she put it through the fence.

Today, however, there are seven tractors from 145 to 40 horsepower, at the immaculately maintained Dairy of Distinction. That's one for each family member and three leftover, because parents Warren and Stella are just as busy as their girls.

"Mom rakes hay every summer and Dad's out with us every day," says Sue.

Changing all of her offical documents when she married Joseph Weimer some two years ago would have meant a lot of red tape for Sue, who opted to retain her maiden name because of the partnership with her sister

They usually have dinner at their own nearby home, but lunch and often breakfast are eaten with Sue's family. Her husband also owns a farm and is a salesman of DeKalb seeds.

Some 44 head of Holsteins are milked for Sani-Dairy in Saylors stainless steel pipeline system. Replacement calves number about 35 and for a hobby, they have Belted Galloways, resulting from Marjorie's kindness to a neighbor who had had a farm accident. In return, he made her a present of a little Belted Galloway bull calf.

"Everything has tender, loving care around here, including the cows and the lands," states Sue, who takes to management like bears to honey.

"Sue is called a 'chip off the old block,'" laughs Marjorie, who's content to let "Sister" lead the conversation. "She's like Grandpa because she's bossy."

Sue readily admits it and laughs at herself, but says that's only the day to day operations. The farm, being their pride and joy, is a tender topic for all of them.

"The whole family is here to help make the living," says Stella, "so we all discuss it."

"Grandpa taught us you talk to each other before you buy it," said Marjorie, again quoting their sage grandparent.

About one fourth of the herd is registered and the others are grade. "I've always bred for high production," said Sue. "It doesn't matter how much fat and protein, if she doesn't have any milk behind her. I'll go with higher priced semen to get what I want."

She continued, "I don't breed mine very early. I don't breed until they are two and a-half years old because I like a heifer to come fresh at about 1,400 pounds.

"I like them tall so they look like a cow. I have less trouble with them," she said. "A large-structured cow is more mature, will milk more and don't kick for you," she said, strolling through the nearly odorless barn and addressing each bovine lady in a personal way.

"Every cow in our barn has a name," Sue explained, above the music coming from a nearby radio.

Marjorie said laughingly that she, herself, sings to the cows but is glad they can't understand her.

They administer most of the necessary veterinary needs to the animals — a bonus stemming from Sue's experience as a veterinarian's former assistant.

It would probably take a dire emergency to persuade Sue and Marjorie to allow an outside caregiver to come near their cows. "Nobody has ever milked our cows but us," they said. "We're just too particular."

A sign in the barn has these words on it: "Every cow in this barn is both a mother and a lady. Treat her cornly. She pays the bills."

When you are a good steward of the land, it will treat you better, the Saylors believe, so they spend the necessary time working the ground down, picking off the rocks and harrowing the edges for a productive strip cropping operation.

"Better prepared soil will germinate better and give higher yields," says Sue. She maintains that risks are lowered when a farmer knows that the soil has received proper treatment in advance of the planting, itself. So why waste dollars doing a sloppy job?

The cycle they use is corn and oats, two years each; hay, four years. Soybeans, cottonseed and shelled corn they buy from a supplier. Cow nutrition is a high priority.

Say-View Farm owners were encouraged by Sani-Dairy to apply for the Dairy of Distinction in the program's second year. From left, Stella and Warren Saylor and their daughters Sue Saylor and Marjorie Saylor, owners of the 44 head, Holstein dairy near New Centerville in Somerset County.

Marjorie Saylor, one of the partners at Say-View Farm, near New Centerville, Somerset County, sits in the cab of the 145 horsepower, John Deere tractor at Say-View Farm. The farm has seven working tractors to 40 hp.

Backdropped by the 1883 barn built by the Mognet Brothers are Sue, left, and Marjorie of Say-View Farm. The Saylor sisters, who took over the farm in 1989, represent the fifth generation on the family's century farm.

Last year they baled 17,000 square bales of hay. Sue says there's usually a carryover, but adds, however, "I wouldn't think about selling hay because you never know from year to year (if there will be a shortage)."

Picture-pretty, the barn is a dominant Say-View feature painted red with fancy white blinds. Repainting is about once every decade. Sue says that recoating the intricate blinds takes the professional painters longer than doing the main body of the barn. It measures 194 by 53 feet after two extentions and is towered over by three silos for corn silage, haylage and a silo for half haylage and half corn.

milkhouse appears sturdy enough to hold for the next hundred years. Its counterpart, of modern concrete blocks is attached to the barn. Nearby a 1930 windmill, in yesteryear, pumped water from the hill.

Blacktop paving over the driveway and to the barn is clean, convenient, and accessible by foot or motor vehicle.

"We are very particular," says Sue. Like "Sister," she ties a bandanna over her hair and works in sweatshirt and comfortable, scruffy jeans.

"When we were small, we hated it, but Daddy insisted on having everything clean and tidy. Now we're getting the same way," she said, laughing. "It is much nicer to work in a clean place than a dirty one."

Tourists appreciate the Dairy of Distinction. Usually they are passing that way while en route to or from the nearby Seven Springs Mountain Resort.

In fact, since it's attractiveness caused folks to stop and chat, the Saylors finally realized a guest book was needed. So far persons from 10 states have signed it.

Say-View's scenery, according to Sue, in the past was photographed by both Kodak Company and Anheuser-Busch for background material in their advertising schemes.

Yet, there's one cranny at the Saylor farm where these fussy paragons abandon themselves to sheer enjoyment and forget about tidiness. It's in their workshop.

"It's the dirtiest place on the farm," Sue says with a comical grin of guilt, as she wends her way around stacks of lumber, telltale sawdust and a bunch of machines, like the band saw, joiner, table planer, lathe, and sanders.

You might know it, they are also skilled carpenters. They helped to remodel the farm house, and without much help — except for the tongue and groove part — measured, cut and installed the wormy, dried oak, paneling inside the new addition. Naturally, the oak was their own.

They helped a neighbor fit and install new windows in his house.

A cherry coffee table built by Sue stands prominently in front of the couch. Cherry wood from the farm.

"We learned to carpenter by watching and listening," said Sue. "If you pay attention, there's something to learn everyday." Neither woman has ever taken a class to learn the intricacies of the craft.

"We are jacks-of-all-trades, and masters of none," they said, matter-of-factly.

Since the shop figures in their lives more as a haven of rest or an on-farm vacation spot, it adds an interesting dimension to the sisters' lives.

"We never go on vacation," said Sue. "When we get down, we go and work in the woodshop to get things off our mind. All of our enjoyment is right here. We don't run around. That's why we can be particular and look after things."

Even in their high school days Sue and Marjorie were happiest when working at home. Marjorie said she never enjoyed sports like some girls did. "Gym was enough," she said.

Sue describes them as behaving like spring lambs during spring planting and fall butchering. They begged to stay home. This, however, wasn't permitted by their parents.

In fact, they wanted Sue, who was ranked in the top 10 students of her 95-member graduating class, to advance her education at a business school. She thought she could do it. After one day, she knew it wasn't for her and she quit.

Music has a niche in Sue's life. At the Middlecreek Church of the Brethren, she is not only the organist, she sings in a ladies' quartet which makes guest appearances.

Say-View Farm, for all its loving care, hasn't escaped without some losses. Fourteen bred heifers, in 1974, were struck by lightening. In 1993 what appeared to be a tornado ravaged their stand of timber and as a result, some 100,000 square feet had to be sawed.

Garden Tour Features Two Farms

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Two farms are on the garden tour sponsored by the Historic Preservation Trust of Lebanon County on July 27, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The 13 gardens on the tour include the dairy farm of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Lentz and the cattle farm of Mr. and Mrs. David Graybill. Also included are the grounds of the homes of Lt. Gov. and Mrs. Mark Schweiker and Maj. Gen. James MacVay, commander of the Pa. National Guard.

Proceeds from the tour further the restoration projects of the Trust in Lebanon County. Tickets are $10 a person and may be obtained by calling (717) 272-5037 or (717) 274-5933.

Get In the 'Moo-d' To Celebrate June Dairy Month

Since 1939, June has been designated as the time to celebrate America's great bounty of dairy products and to pay tribute to America's dairy farmers.

Lancaster Farming holds an annual cow mania drawing to draw attention to this event. Readers are asked to submit a recipe using a sizable amount of at least one dairy product. They are also asked to write a few paragraphs about themselves and to send a picture if possible.

Many wonderful recipes have been sent in by our readers. These will be printed throughout the month of June. The winners of the cow mania prizes will be listed in the June 29th issue.

If you did not send in a recipe for the Cow Mania Drawing, it is too late for this year's drawing. But you can still enjoy reading the entries. Make sure you clip the recipes that appeal to you. Many write that they found their favorite recipes in these pages.

Celebrate June Dairy Month by using real dairy products, and remember to thank a dairy farmer for providing them.

EASY CHEESEY LASAGNA

1 pound ground beef
2 26-ounce jars spaghetti sauce
15 pieces cooked and drained lasagna
4 cups ricotta cheese
2 cups shredded mozzarella cheese
½ cup romano cheese, shredded
¼ cup parmesan cheese, shredded
4 eggs
1 tablespoon chopped basil
½ teaspoon chopped oregano

Brown ground beef and drain. Combine ground beef and spaghetti sauce in saucepan and simmer for 10 minutes. In a large bowl, combine cheeses, eggs, basil, and oregano. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In a 10x15x2-inch baking dish, put enough sauce to cover the bottom of the dish. Next place a layer of lasagna in the dish. Cover lasagna with cheese mixture and sauce. Repeat layering, finish with lasagna sauce. Top with parmesan cheese.

Cover dish with aluminum foil. Bake for 45 minutes or until bubbly. Remove aluminum foil and bake 10 minutes. Remove from oven and let set for 5 minutes.

I am the third generation of my family to live on the farm. My daughter is the fourth generation. We live in Union County on a very diversified farm. We are active with out church and our community.

PIZZA CASSEROLE

1 pound ground beef
14-ounces pizza sauce
2 cups shredded cheese
¾ cup Bisquick
1½ cups milk
2 eggs

Brown, drain, and fix meat into a baking dish. Pour pizza sauce on top. Add shredded cheese. In a separate bowl, mix Bisquick, milk, eggs, and pour on top. Bake for one hour or until done.

This recipe is a favorite at our house. We live on a dairy farm and have two boys, a 3-year-old and an 8-month-old. I always like to watch for new recipes in Lancaster Farming.

EVIE'S ICE CREAM DESSERT

60 Ritz crackers
¼ pound butter
1½ cups milk
½ gallon vanilla ice cream
2 3-ounce boxes instant coconut cream pudding
9-ounce container whipped cream

Crush crackers and add to melted butter (save some for top). Press onto bottom of 9x13-inch pan. Soften ice cream a little. Add milk and mix well. Add pudding and mix well. Pour over crust and put into refrigerator. When firm, put whipped cream on top. Put crumbs on top of whipped cream.

Do not use ice milk and be sure to use instant pudding. You may also put a can of Angel Flake Conconut on top.

We live in Annville (right next to Grandma and Grandpa's house). My name is Royell. I have two chickens, two dogs, and a couple heifers. The heifers live where my daddy (Bob) works on Harper-Dell Farm. I like to see the cows, help Grandma feed the calves, and play with my cousins at my uncle Barry's.

My mommy (Sherry) does relief milking. I sometimes go with her to milk.

I like the recipes Mommy makes from "Lancaster Farming."

ORANGE COTTAGE CHEESE SALAD

3-ounce package orange Jell-O
16 ounces cottage cheese
2 cup sweetened whipped cream
1 small can mandarin oranges or crushed pineapples, drained

Mix dry Jell-O with remaining ingredients. Chill and serve. This is good with other kinds of Jell-O and fruit, too.

Hi! My husband, Raymond and I, along with our daughter Cheryl Lanae (14 months) live on a dairy farm in Myerstown, where Raymond is a herdsman for Marlin Martin. We milk 42 cows. This salad is one of my husband's favorite and is very easy to make.

Choco-Java Shake is a luscious blend of extra-strong coffee, creamy chocolate ice cream, and cold milk. For an authentic ice cream parlor finale, don't forget the whipped cream, chocolate curls, and candy coffee beans.

KICK THE CAN ICE CREAM

¾ cup whole milk
1 cup cream
⅓ cup sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cold raw egg (optional)
Chocolate, raspberry, or strawberry syrup to taste
1 pound empty clean coffee can with plastic lid
3 pound empty coffee can with plastic lid
Crushed ice
¾ cup salt or rock salt

In small coffee can, place milk, cream, sugar, vanilla, and flavoring and egg if desired. Stir thoroughly. Place on plastic lid tightly.

Place small can in large can, and place ice around the inner can and place plastic lid over large can. Place on floor and kick back and forth for 10-15 minutes.

Check and stir if needing extra freezing water and replace inner can and roll for five more minutes.

This recipe is fun for kids!

CAULIFLOWER SALAD

1 head lettuce, bite-size pieces
1 head cauliflower (raw, in small pieces)
1 tiny onion, minced
½ pound bacon, cut in pieces and fried
1½ cups shredded cheddar cheese

Arrange all ingredients in a very large bowl in order given. Do not mix. Top with 2 cups Miracle Whip and ¼ cup sugar on top of dressing. Sprinkle ⅓ cup parmesan cheese on top of dressing. Refrigerate 12 to 15 hours. Mix just before serving.

I enjoy cooking and baking. I have 5 brothers and 2 sisters, David, 16; Samuel, 13; Jason, 11; Matthew, 10; Anna, 5; Martha, 3, and Timothy, 2 months.

It seems food disappears so fast with hungry boys around. We live on a dairy farm and milk 62 cows.

CHOCO-JAVA SHAKE

1 tablespoon coffee powder (preferably expresso powder)
1 tablespoon hot water
1 cup milk
6 scoops chocolate ice cream
Whipped cream
Ground cinnamon
Chocolate curls (optional)
Candy Coffee beans (optional)

In small bowl, dissolve coffee powder in hot water. In blender container, place coffee and milk; blend until combined. Add ice cream; blend until smooth. Pour into two tall glasses. Top with whipped cream and sprinkle with cinnamon. Garnish with chocolate curls or candy coffee beans, if desired.

Yield: 2 servings.

NO-FAT CHEESECAKE

16-ounces non-fat cottage cheese
8-ounces non-fat cream cheese
6 tablespoons flour
1 cup sugar
Dash salt
4 egg whites
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa powder

Heat oven to 325 degrees. Spray a 9-inch round pan with nonstick oil spray.

In food processor or blender, cream together everything except the cocoa. When smooth, set aside ⅓ cup and pour the remaining batter into the pan. Mix cocoa with one-third cup batter and swirl this into the batter in a marbled design. Bake one hour, turn off oven and let cool, with oven door ajar for one hour. Refrigerate until serving time.

Variation: omit the cocoa and top wth vanilla cheesecake with fruit after cooling.

Linnell and Serita Randall, daughters of John and Barbara Randall, live in Holcomb, N.Y.

I developed this recipe from traditional high-fat recipes. There are some wonderful lowfat or no-fat dairy products available today.

My husband John and I farm in western New York and we have two daughters: Linnell, 9, and Serita, 6. We grow grain, hay, and dry beans. I am a quiltmaker and seamstress in my sparetime.

Barbara Randall
Holcomb, N.Y.

QUESTION — D.R. Newsom, Copperstown, N.Y., would like a recipe for moon pies.

QUESTION — A Kinzers reader would like a recipe for whole head sauerkraut. After it is fermented, one leaf is peeled off at a time whenever needed.

QUESTION — Lisa Collura, Holtwood, would like a recipe to make angel cream doughnuts.

QUESTION — Linda Ludwig, Reading, would like recipes for blueberry and cinnamon raisin bagels, and an apple tart with syrup topping like those sold by Ruppert's Bakery at the Leesport Auction years ago.

ANSWER — Martin Skiles, Parkesburg, wanted a recipe for crystalized ginger root. Thanks to Jill Ivey, Lititz, who wrote that crystallized ginger is made by slow cooking ginger root in sugar water, then rolled in granulated sugar. It's one of one of the world's oldest candies, and turns up in Marco Polo's description of Chinese street food. Medieval England to colonial America nibbled slices of the candied ginger after meals as both dessert and digestif.

ANSWER — Here's a recipe from Vera Scott, Cortland, N.Y., who sent it in for a Mother's Day recipe, but it was missed.

Hawaii Wedding Cake

1½ cups sugar
2 eggs
20 ounces crushed pineapple, undrained
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 cup coconut
1 cup chopped nuts

Combine in order given. Mix by hand. Bake in a 9x13-inch pan at 350 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes.

Frosting:
8-ounces cream cheese
1½ cups confectioners' sugar
½ cup butter, softened
2 teaspoons vanilla

Mix together all frosting ingredients and spread on cooled cake.

ANSWER — Whenever I think there is a request that won't get answered, we are inundated with recipes. This is one of those. Joyce Shoemaker, Mount Joy, wanted a recipe for wild violet jelly using petals. Two recipes appeared in the May 18 issue. But thanks to so many others who spent hours looking for a recipe and mailed it in. Thanks to Lisa Sparr, Upper Falls, Md.; Carolyn Hodgson, Clark's Summit; Violet Racine, Leominster, Ma.; Verna Lauver, and others.

Lisa writes that violet jelly is not intended to be eaten in great gobs on toast as one uses ordinary jam. She likes it in little dabs on vanilla wafers with tea.

ANSWER — Thanks to Ruth Virginia Erb, Beavertown, for sending a recipe for dandelion honey.

Dandelion Honey

2 quarts dandelion blossoms, washed
Boil 3 minutes in 6 cups water
Drain off and strain 6 cups liquid (add liquid to make 6 cups).
Add 4 teaspoons lemon juice
Follow directions on pectin box for making grape jelly. Use about 1½ box fruit pectin and 4½ -5 cups sugar. Seal as directed.

You may need to experiment a little as this is a very old recipe that Ruth has adapted to more modern jelly making methods.

HUNGARIAN NOODLE SIDE DISH

3 chicken bouillon cubes
¼ cup boiling water
10¾ -ounces condensed cream of mushroom soup, undiluted
½ cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
¼ teapoon garlic powder
¼ -¼ teaspoon hot pepper sauce
¼ teaspoon paprika
2 cups cottage cheese
2 cups sour cream
16-ounce package medium noodles, cooked, drained
¼ cup parmesan cheese

In a large bowl, dissolve bouillon in water and add soup, onion, Worcestershire sauce, garlic powder, and hot pepper sauce.

Stir in cottage cheese, sour cream and noodles. Mix well. Pour into a greased 2½ -quart baking dish.

Sprinkle with parmesan cheese and paprika. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes or until heated casserole may be refrigerated and baked the next day.

If refrigerated, let stand at room temperature for 30 minutes before baking.

I like casserole dishes. Living on a farm, I get busy and can make one casserole any time.

My husband and I have beef cattle. We keep two good-sized vegetable garden. I also love flowers. Bring retired, we farm at a slower pace.

SHORTCAKE

1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup milk
¼ cup butter
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
Dash salt

Cream sugar and shortening. Add egg. Sift together flour, salt, and baking soda. Add flour and milk.

Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes in a greased and floured 8x8-inch pan.

We live on a farm. We have two sons and a daughter and also two granddaughters.

Farming Is Dangerous Business

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A new report on farm fatalities reveals that 210 Pennsylvanians died in farm-related incidents between 1990 and 1994, emphasizing that farming remains hazardous — particularly for older farmers and children 14 and under.

"Pennsylvania Farm Fatalities During 1990-1994" examines the number and type of fatalities during the first half of the 1990s. Compiled and written by Dr. Dennis Murphy, professor of agricultural engineering at Penn State, and research associate Dr. Fokwa Ambe, the report is the third in a series of five-year Pennsylvania farm fatality summaries.

Tractors and machinery were involved in 72.9 percent of the fatalities. "Tractors account for the majority of these incidents, with 26 percent involving a variety of other machines," Murphy says. "Nearly two-thirds of tractor-related fatalities involved overturns, but 29 incidents involved people being run over. Most of these cases occurred during attempts to jump-start the tractor, or when the tractor rolled after the operator dismounted."

Fifty-seven incidents — 27.1 percent of the total — were unrelated to tractors and machinery. "This shows that there are many ways to be killed on a farm," says Murphy. "Farm structures such as ponds or silos were most often involved in these incidents, closely followed by buildings, animals, and miscellaneous farm objects, materials and products."

Murphy and Ambe also analyzed fatalities by age groups. "The date are consistent with previous summary reports," Murphy notes. "Children age 14 and under and farm workers age 65 and over accounted for nearly 50 percent of the total number of cases."

The two age groups accounted for 47.7 percent of the total during 1990-94; 49.7 percent during 1985-89; and 41.3 percent during 1980-84.

More than twice as many farmers 70 to 74 years of age were killed during farm work than were members of any other age group. Children up to age 9 most often were killed by exposure to farm work-site hazards, even though they were not engaged in farm work at the time.

"Agriculture is unique because children and seniors are not usually found in other hazardous occupations," Murphy says. "This can create problems because children often are untrained, inexperienced, not closely supervised, and emotionally and physically immature, while the ability of older workers to respond to danger may be limited by the effects of aging."

Tractors and machinery were associated with 61.3 percent of the incidents involving youth and 84.3 percent of incidents involving senior farmers. "Only two tractor overturn incidents involved young operators," Murphy says. "However, senior farmers were involved in 30 overturn incidents."

"Pennsylvania Farm Fatalities During 1990-94" introduces the new Farm and Agricultural Injury Classification code, designed to ensure consistent coding of farm injury incidents in Pennsylvania. "The code lets us distinguish between incidents directly involving farm work and those associated with living on a farm," Murphy says.

"Fatal injuries that involve farm work represent nearly all of the 105 cases associated with agriculture as an industry," he notes. "But these incidents account for only about half of the overall 210 cases. The rest of the incidents involve the overlap between farms as work sites, residences and recreational areas."

Copies of "Pennsylvania Farm Fatalities During 1990-94," Extension Circular 424, are available free from the Publication Distribution Center, 112 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 865-6713.

For more information about agricultural safety and health issues, contact the Department of Agricultural and Biological Engineering, The Pennsylvania State University, 246 Agricultural Engineering Building, University Park, PA 16802.

WILL THE IRS INHERIT YOUR ESTATE?

New York Life's Survivorship Whole Life policy was created to provide you and your spouse with life insurance coverage, and needed liquidity, when your estate taxes are due.

It works like this: When one spouse dies, the resulting estate tax can be deferred until after the death of the surviving spouse. At that time, the policy's proceeds become available, and can be used to help pay the usually heavy estate tax. In other words, New York Life makes the proceeds available when they"re needed the most.

You've worked hard all of your life, and shouldn't have to spend time worrying about what will happen to your estate. Call us for all the detaiis and let us show you why New York Life is The Company You Keep.

'That Milk Thing' Attends Party For 2,000 Milk Drinkers

PHILADELPHIA — Drinking milk at breakfast has its rewards for 2,000 Philadelphia elementary students and parents. These families enjoyed a private party with "That Milk Thing" at the Franklin Institute Science Center. The private party, held recently from 5 to 8 p.m., was the culminating event of the School District of Philadelphia Division of Food Services's "I Love Milk At Breakfast" contest. This event was sponsored by the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA) and was free to everyone who attended.

As grand prize winners of the Philadelphia "I Love Milk At Breakfast" contest, 10 children in each participating elementary school won two tickets to the private party. One ticket was given to the child, while the other was designated for a parent or guardian. The breakfast contest was held during National School Breakfast Week to promote and increase school breakfast participation. Many children in the School District of Philadelphia qualify for free or reduced priced school breakfast and do not take advantage of it. This contest was designed to encourage kids to come to school breakfast every day.

"(MAMMA's) breakfast promotion was a great success! Participation in the school breakfast program increased during the contest week and remained higher after the contest," claims Joan Nachmani, coordinator of dietetic services, division of food services, "The importance of good nutrition and breakfast has been studied extensively showing the correlation between the increased ability to learn with eating breakfast. This is crucial to the academic success of our children."

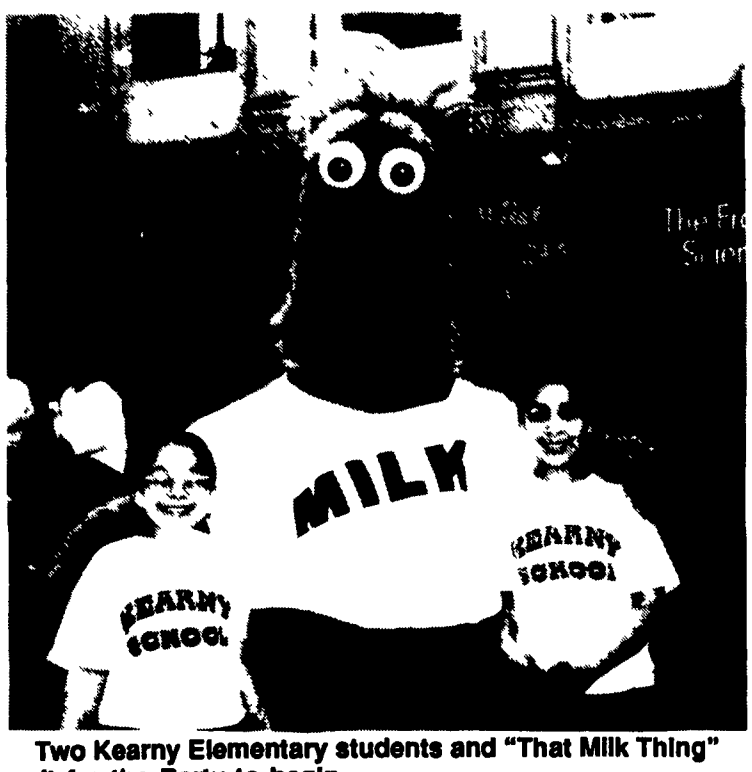
As early as 4 p.m., crowds began to line up at the Franklin Institute, waiting to get into the exclusive "Private Party With That Milk Thing." Once registered, invited guests toured the entire Franklin Institute Science Museum and visited all the interactive exhibits inside. Among the children's favorites were a gigantic operating heart and a life-sized locomotive train. Both children and parents enjoyed a "Liquid Air" demonstration, at which they observed the unique physical properties of liquid nitrogen. One of the evening's highlights was a dairy-friendly meal of pizza, milk (chocolate or white), and ice cream.

"That Milk Thing," MAMMA's loveable, 7-foot, blue, furry mascot, hosted the evening and greeted children as they arrived. Throughout the evening, crowds of children surrounded "That Milk Thing" in awe of the creature's charisma and charm. To entertain guests at the "Liquid Air" demonstration, the mascot danced to such songs as "Chug a Lug a Lug That Milk" and "Hey you've Got That Milk Thing."

As Hillary Barclay Cooke, Franklin Institute facility rental manager, stated, "For these families (who attended the event), it was an evening not only to visit the Franklin Institute, but to share and learn something with each other . . . (The Private Party) supported not only education, but encouraged family participation."

The Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA) sponsored both the "I Love Milk At Breakfast" contest and "The Private Party With That Milk Thing" as part of a campaign to increase school milk and breakfast consumption in Philadelphia. MAMMA is a nonprofit milk promotion and advertising association funded by dairy farm families. MAMMA's in-school promotion efforts are part of MAMMA's Kids/Gatekeepers Marketing Program, designed to encourage children to drink more milk.

"That Milk Thing" spotted in the crowd at the Liquid Air demonstration.



Two Kearny Elementary students and "That Milk Thing" wait for the Party to begin.

Some excited children capture "That Milk Thing"'s attention.

The Quality Crafted Line

Better Seedbeds... Better Stands!

SOIL BUILDERS

SOIL BUILDERS. Optional Coulter gang can be hydraulically controlled to save maintenance dollars. 5, 7, 9, 11 & 13 shanks. Available in 2 & 3 bar.

NEW

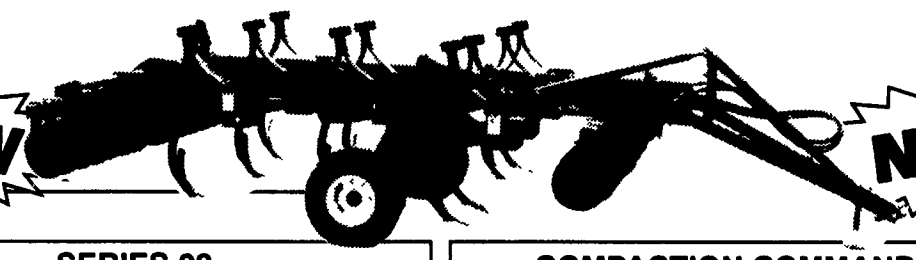
SOIL COMMANDERS

NEW

The New Brillion Soil Commanders take Residue Management to the next generation of soil conservation efficiency.

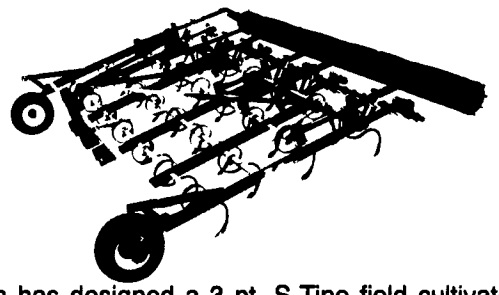
The Soil Commanders are versatile tillage tools designed to meet the needs of the mid-size farmer who uses a 150-200 H P tractor. One of the keys to the machine's versatility is that it uses interchangeable shank legs and individually mounted disk assemblies instead of a disk gang. This makes possible a machine with disk assemblies on the front and rear of the frame with chisel plow or deep-ripper shanks on 15", 24", 27" or 30" spacings.

NEW



NEW

3 PT. BASKET HARROWS



Brillion has designed a 3 pt. S-Tine field cultivator with a larger, aggressively angled 12" diameter rolling basket, a 4-bar frame that allows for either 4" or 6" tooth spacing and an adjustable leveler bar in 12', 15' and 18' sizes. Gauge wheels are optional.

SERIES 03 PULVI-MULCHERS ML & WL

PULVI-MULCHERS Build a firm, clod-free seedbed - one that lets all the seeds germinate at one time. 12'6", 13'10", 15'2" & 18'9" rigid; 21'8" 25' and 30' flat fold.

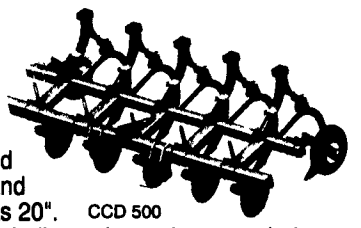
There's lots more reasons to buy Brillion... stop in and we'll talk.

COMPACTION COMMANDERS

NO-TILL RIPPER/DEEP RIPPER

DESIGNED FOR YOUR CONSERVATION NEEDS

3-5-7 Shank



Brillion introduces their new Compaction Commander...designed to break up hardpan and compaction as deep as 20". CCD 500

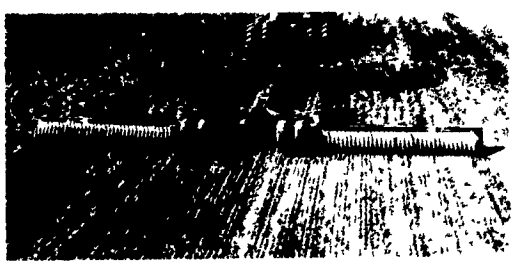
The standard V-shaped alloy point and wear strip leaves residue on the surface with minimal soil disturbance. Auto-rest shanks with 20" of trip height allows for non-stop tillage. Parabolic shanks lift and fracture the soil. 39" of underframe clearance assures trouble free operation even in heavy residue.

P-SERIES TRANSPORT PULVERIZERS

10 Ft. to 18 Ft.

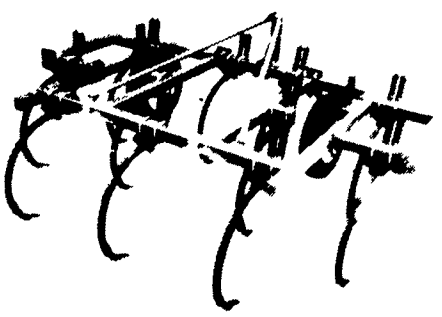
Rotary Frame Pulverizers; New PT10 Series Transport Concept. Machine weight is hydraulically rotated over the wheels for transport. This reduces draw bar hitch weight considerably and provides ample clearance for transport. Also Available As Pull Type.

X-FOLD PULVERIZERS



The X-Fold pulverizers are designed to meet the needs of today's larger acreage farmers...and Brillion offers them in two models and 11 sizes from 19' through 46'. Now available with 20" Ductile Wheels.

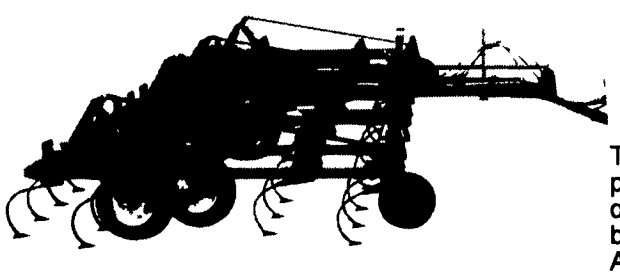
3 BAR CHISEL PLOWS



The CPP series mounted models enables you to turn short and fast... to transport easily, utilizing your tractor's hydraulic system, 7, 9, 11, 13 or 10,12,14,16 shank.

HFC FIELD CULTIVATORS

16½' to 31½'



'C' Tooth - 4 Year Warranty

S-Tine - 3 Yr. Warranty

The "heart" of any field cultvator is the shank pivot point. A "bulked up" shank bracket made of cast ductile iron instead of the usual formed steel bracket, incorporated a hardened steel bushing AND a zerk grease fitting to lubricate the pivot point to reduce wear. The result is thousands of acres of extended life of the shanks.

FLAIL SHREDDERS

12 Ft. And 15 Ft.

540 or 1,000 RPM

FLAIL SHREDDERS Heaviest gearbox on the market eliminates the number one cause of downtime. Available in 12' and 15'. Either cup or side slicer knives. 540 or 1000 RPM.

MEETS THE CHALLENGE

The 30th Annual Somerset County Dairy Princess Pageant was held on May 18 at the Somerset Area High School. Crowned was Amanda Meier, second left, with alternate, Desirae Hillegass next in line. Other contestants were Angie Bastian, left and Monica Spory.

Amanda Meier Wears Somerset Dairy Princess Crown

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) — Her powers of magic worked well for 15-year-old Amanda Meier at the 30th Annual Somerset County Dairy Princess Pageant when she was crowned the new dairy princess.

The successor to Amy Paul, she performed a dairy skit that resembled a show by the great Houdini.

In a contest that kept the judges debating for an extra long time, Desirae Hillegass, 16, from Berlin, was named runner-up. Desi, as everybody calls her, looked "dairy sanitary" in her white cheerleading outfit with a red "Real" seal on top as she led a "dairylightful" pep rally.

Her parents are Douglas and Debra Hillegass.

Monica Spory from Boswell and Angie Bastian, Friedens, were the other contestants. Their parents are Melvin and Cathy Spory and Dr. and Mrs. W. Robert Bastian.

Princess Amanda is the daughter of Andrew and Susan Meier. Despite her farm responsibilities, she is a news reporter for the Dairydells 4-H Club, and shows beef and sheep at the county fair and dairiy cattle at the junior dairy show.

A young woman of musical ability, Amanda is a clarinetist in the Somerset Area High School marching band and a member of the orchestra and chorus.

Also chosen Miss Congeniality by her pageant peers, Amanda was presented with a $1,000 college scholarship by the Dairy Princess Contest Committee (a new annual award developed this year with support from area businesses), and $300 cash from the Allied Milk Producer's Cooperative, Inc.

As the alternate, Desi received a scholarship of $375.

In an emotional farewell address, Miss Paul spoke of dairy farmers and the industry with deep appreciation.

"My reign ends," she said, "but my love for the dairy industry will go on for the rest of my life."

During her reign, she tallied 144 personal appearances.

The dairy maids — Bethany Seifert, Kristy Michael, and Jill Fox — were introduced. They delivered the numerous door prizes to winning names announced by Lauren Lynch.

Little maid participants and their escorts were Jill McWilliams, Candace Croner, Samantha Stahl, Amanda Stahl, Melissa Paul, Daniel Popernack, Lucas Popernack, Samuel Shober, Andrew Singo, and Justin Paul.

Judging the pageant were two former dairy princesses from Indiana County — Cindy Scott and LeeAnn Kimmel — and Todd Frescura from Westmoreland County.

Master of ceremonies Robbie Singo, was pressed to the limit for anecdotes during the extended recess of the judges. His only recourse was to relate the mishap of overflowing his own bathtub while preparing for his pageant debut. The audience loved it.

The pageant committee members include Angie Shober, Brenda Slingluff, Kelly Bittner, Stephanie Singo, Vicki Stahl and Susan Pryal.

4-H Swine Club

On May 9, the Lancaster County 4-H Swine Club held its third meeting of the year at the Lancaster Stockyards.

The meeting on swine fitting and showmanship was coordinated by Marlin Becker.

Some of the older members washed four pigs and then got them ready for showmanship. Some of the older, more experienced members showed the pigs. When they were done, a few of the first and second year members showed the pigs.

If you are planning to show at the 4-H Roundup on August 14, your pigs must be tagged by June 1. Contact your leader for more information.

The next meeting, the Ice Cream Social, will be held at the West Lampeter Fairgrounds on June 6. 4-H Swine Club members are supposed to bring one snack food item.

JOHN DEERE ROUND BALERS

Build bales that last and build them fast

Your most difficult choice is: Which of these five round balers can best boost your dairying productivity?

All five John Deere balers are designed with a low-profile pickup to get more of that nutritious hay into the bale chamber. The pickup is mounted right in front of the baler tires providing excellent flotation. Plus, being located just below the forming chamber, the pickup location also minimizes crop movement, keeping protein-rich leaves on the stem for better hay quality.

All five balers pack tight, weather-beating bales thanks to John Deere belts and hydraulic tensioning. Exclusive diamond-tread belts gently grip hay and immediately begin forming a compact core. These belts also enclose more than 90 percent of the bale, keeping leaves inside the bale. Staggered belts return trapped leaves to the pickup.

Hydraulic tensioning gives you uniform density throughout the bale. Your bales stay solid and round until feeding time – standing up to the weather for reduced spoilage and higher feed value.

So how do you choose? Start by matching bale size to your tractor power, hay acreage, and terrain. The 375 makes 5-foot-wide bales for better stability on rolling ground, while

Outdoor Play Areas Important

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Playing outdoors is not only healthy for children, but most children love the freedom playing outside gives them to move around. Quality child care programs include outdoor play time every day.

Trained caregivers make sure their play areas are appropriate for the ages of children in their charge.

• Infants should have room to crawl and move about in an area that is protected from older children by using dividers (or even playpens if there are only one or two infants in the program.)

• Toddlers, perschoolers, and older children need places to run, climb, throw balls, and ride bikes, tricycles and other riding toys.

• School-age children should have climbing equipment and swings that are sturdy enough for them.

Other things that are important:

• Children need to be dressed appropriately for the weather.

• Shady areas are necessary for play on warm days. They can be under a tree or some bushes? An umbrella or a blanket can be used to make shady areas? These are especially important for infants?

• Parents should provide sunscreen for their child.

• Water play is great fun but must be supervised at all times. Children have drowned in even a few inches of water? For health and safety reasons, the containers need to be emptied each time water is used.

• There should be enough adults to help with the children.

Spring is a good time to check playground equipment and outdoor toys to see if there was damage over the winter. There must be no rough or sharp edges or any broken parts, and all nuts, bolts, nails, and screws need to be recessed or covered to keep children from getting scratches. Anything that cannot be repaired needs to be thrown away.

Surface materials surrounding playground equipment, such as wood chips, sand, or sawdust, need to be raked after getting packed down all winter so that they provide a "soft landing" for children. Sand boxes should be covered when not being used to keep the sand dry and free of debris and animal waste.

Look around the yard where your child plays: Are the garbage cans covered and placed away from play areas?

ANSWER — Anna Martin, Denver, wanted to know where she can purchase round metal trays with Currier and Ives scenes pictured on them. Thanks to Doris Mengine, Benton, Pa., who writes that she has two. If interested, call her at (717) 925-6825 after 5 p.m.

ANSWER — Betty Lou Stull, 20137 Old York Rd., White Hall, Md. 21161, needed an instruction manual for a Treadle Minnesota A. sewing machine to know how to thread and wind bobbins. Thanks to Joan Dundore, for writing that she has one. Write to her at 51 E. Strack Drive, Myerstown, PA 17067.

ANSWER — Arnold Schnetzer, Asbury, N.J., needed help in controlling muskrats in the farm pond. Thanks to Frank Rice, Blain, for writing about how he controls them. In his words: "I controlled them on my pond with a rip rap (stones). Put a ring of stone about 6 inches above and below water line. Use 3-4-inch size stones. I got ballast at a stone quarry on a flat truck and the best way to get them placed was with a New Armstrong Excavaotr shovel. I have since maintained with it with field picked stone.

MODEL	BALE SIZE	BALE WEIGHT
335	4'W x 4'H	750 lb.
375	5'W x 4'H	1,000 lb.
385	4'W x 5'H	1,050 lb.
435	4'W x 6'H	1,500 lb.
535	5'W x 6'H	2,000 lb.

the 385 puts up 4x5-foot bales that fit most aisles. From the 335 with its 750-pound 4x4-foot bales to the 2,000-pound bales of the 535, there's a John Deere round baler that best suits your dairy. With the two largest models, choose surface wrap to surround leaves with a weather-beating mesh wrap. Check out the models below, then see your dealer for a closer look.

ICE CREAM CAKE

1 box chocolate cake mix
3-ounce box vanilla instant pudding
4 eggs
½ cup vegetable oil
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 cup water

Combine all ingredients in large mixing bowl and beat on medium speed 2 minutes. Pour into greased and floured 9x13-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 30-40 minutes or until toothpic inserted comes out clean.

Cool. Cut top half off cake and set aside. It works best to freeze cake before cutting. Place slices of hard, frozen vanilla ice cream between layers.

Frost with 16-ounces frozen dairy whipped topping, thawed.

Freeze cake. Keep frozen until serving time.

As a full-time homemaker and mother I enjoy trying new recipes and incorporating new ingredients into old recipes to create my own version. However the above recipe is not one of my experiments, but was given to me by a friend who is an exceptional cook.

My husband Steve, who works for an excavating business, encourages me to use real dairy products instead of the cheaper substitutes. Since he grew up on a dairy farm, he wants to support the dairy industry. His heart is still in dairying and that is what we hope to be doing some day.

We are the parents of an active, 18-month-old daughter, Katie, who loves animals and the outdoors.

JUST LIKE INSTANT COCOA

Bring to a boil the following:
2 cups water
⅔ cups sugar
¼ cup cocoa

Add:
4 cups milk

Stir and do not boil. Heat and serve.

My children love cocoa and the instant cocoa becomes rather expensive, so I experimented and came up with this easy cocoa recipe.

The pictures are of Dana and Stephen with their first heifer calves. My goal is to have a family cow to milk. We also farm with horses. Our biggest crop is potatoes, which are planted, hilled, and dug with our Belgians, and best of all — no chemicals are used at all.

Jessie Mayall
Mansfield

On his 72nd birthday, Pappy (Joe Haggenstaller) celebrates with Danny, Mikaela, and Justine.

ELLEN'S APPLE DUMPLINGS

4 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup shortening
12 apples
1 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons sugar
1 cup milk

Make syrup:
2 cups sugar
1 cup butter
2 cups water

Pour syrup over the dumplings and bake at 375 degrees for 40-45 minutes.

My husband, Joe, continues to farm the family farm, which has been in the family almost 100 years.

Our daughter and her two daughters, Justine and Mikaela Jo, are living in the old farm house. They moved here from Rocky Ford, Col. last July. While I babysit 2-year-old Mikaela Jo, Laurie our daughter and Justine often help Joe with the farm chores.

We raise corn and alfalfa and sell much of the crops to our Amish friends and neighbors.

Due to much rain, Joe is behind with planting corn, just as other farmers are in our valley.

This morning, May 14, we had a very hard frost. It feels more like March than May.

Our youngest grandson Daniel is also in the picture. Two Wyoming grandchildren weren't able to be here for the occasion.

Mrs. Joe Haggenstaller

GARDEN VEGETABLE ONION DIP

2½ cups sour cream
1 package (4 serving size) dry onion soup mix
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
1 teaspoon dill weed
¼ cup carrots, grated

Stir together sour cream, onion soup mix, garlic powder, and dill weed until well blended. Stir in grated carrots. Chill at least 1 hour before serving.

My husband and I farmed for 25 years. Most recently, we had a sow farrowing operation on a farm at Reinholds. We sold the farm six years ago and we now enjoy our home in the woods near Schoeneck.

My husband, Eugene, owns and operates Martin's Sawing Service and I'm a substitute teacher aide for I.U. 13. We have three grown sons and two grandchildren. A third grandchild is due next month.

Anna Martin

Dana with Patchey the cow belong to Jessie Mayall of Mansfield.

Stephen shows his first heifer calf, Liz. He is the son of Jessie Mayall of Mansfield.

Wilmer and Anna Mary Zimmerman with children Dale, 9; Kevin, 7; and Dawn 4.

GRANDMA'S PUDDING

1 cup flour
6 cups milk
3 eggs
2 cups brown sugar

Put five cups milk on stove on medium heat. While heating separate eggs and milk yolks with sugar flour, and remaining cup milk. When milk is boiling, pour in the thickening. Cook until done, 3 to 4 minutes. Then beat egg whites stiff and stir in immediately after removing from stove.

I ususally make this pudding in the microwave. I enjoy trying new recipes that use basic ingredients that don't require a special trip to the grocery store. With young cooks in the house, simple is best.

Anna Mary Zimmerman
Denver

HEARTY HAMBURGER SOUP

2 tablespoons butter
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup sliced carrot
½ cup chopped green pepper
1 pound ground beef
2 cups tomato juice
1 cup diced potatoes
1½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
⅓ cup flour
4 cups milk

Melt butter in saucepan, brown meat, add onion, and cook till transparent. Stir in remaining ingredients except flour and milk. Cover and cook over low heat until vegetables are tender, about 25 minutes. Combine flour with 1 cup of milk. Stir into the soup mixture. Boil. Add remaining milk and heat, stirring frequently. Do not boil after adding remaining milk. This makes a large amount.

I enjoy reading the June Dairy Month entries! We farm produce plus have feeder pigs and veal calves. We have three children: Matthew, 4, Lowell, 2, and Lillian, 1. They enjoy the great outdoors and spend lots of time riding their bikes or "helping" us in the produce patch. . . .

STUFFED JUMBO SHELLS

20 24 jumbo macaroni shells
1 egg, beaten
¾ cup soft bread crumbs
¼ cup parsley, snipped
1 tablespoon onion, minced
½ teaspoon salt
1 pound lean ground beef
3 cups spaghetti sauce
1 to 2 cups cheese

Cook shells in boiling water according to package directions, drain. In mixing bowl, combine egg, crumbs, parsley, onion, and salt. Add meat and cheese. Mix well. Stuff shells. Pour 1½ cups sauce in bottom of 13x9x2-inch pan. Arrange shells on sauce and pour remaining sauce over top.

Bake covered 1 to 1¼ -hours at 375 degrees.

This is my favorite recipe and you don't have to go through much bother. My parents are John and Fannie Glick. I have 3 brothers and 4 sisters. We live on a farm in the Buck area. Living on a farm is interesting. I have been enjoying my 15 years of life on a farm. What would we do without?

Sarah Glick
Quarryville

CREAMSICLE CAKE

1 package orange cake mix
1 small package orange Jell-O
1 small instant vanilla pudding
1¼ cups milk
1 cup whipping cream, whipped

Mix Jell-O with 1 cup boiling water and ½ cup cold water. Set aside to cool.

Mix cake according to directions. Bake in a 9x13-inch pan. Remove cake from oven when done. Using a large meat fork, poke holes down into the cake. Gently pour the Jell-O mixture in the holes, giving it time to sink into the cake.

Mix pudding mix and milk together until thick. Spread on top of cooled cake. Put in refrigerator for 30 minutes. Spread whipped cream over top of cake. Refrigerate until ready to serve.

HOMEMADE ICE CREAM

2 boxes Junket ice cream mix
2 cans evaporated milk
1½ cups sugar
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons vanilla
3 eggs
1 can condensed milk
1½ quart milk

You may use 2 quarts milk and omit the condensed milk. Beat eggs, vanilla, salt, and sugar. Add ice cream mix, evaporated milk, and condensed milk. Mix well and pour into freezer can and add the milk. Stir again before putting paddles in for 6-quart freezer.

This recipe is one my mother used and went over well with our children and now grandchildren.

My husband Elvin and I had a dairy farm for about 27 years and our two sons are now farming. So we are living in a little house on the farm that we built so our son and family could have the farmhouse.

There was always plenty to do on the farm. Sometimes it seemed like we never got done, but it's also had its good times. We could be together as a family.

We have four children, Dale, Jay, Donna, and Cindy who are all involved in dairy farming except Donna. We enjoy our five grandchildren. They are so much fun.

ORANGE COW

1½ cups cold milk
2 scoops vanilla ice cream
3 tablespoons frozen orange juice concentrate Vanilla ice cream

Blend milk, orange juice concentrate and 2 scoops ice cream in blender until smooth. Pour into two 12-ounce glasses. Top with scoops of ice cream. Serve immediately. Makes 2 servings, 10 ounces each.

Elvin and Lois Martin each hold a 2-month-old grandchild.

BANANA WHOOPIE PIES

1 cup butter
2 cups sugar
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup buttermilk or sour milk
1 cup mashed banana

Cream butter, sugar, eggs, and vanilla. Add dry ingredients and milk. Mix well. Add mashed bananas. Drop by spoonfuls onto cookie sheets. Bake 10-12 minutes at 350 degrees.

Filling:

½ cup butter
½ cup shortening
3 cups confectioners' sugar
4 tablespoons milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix all ingredients well. Beat for 5 minutes. Fill whoopie pies with mixture.

I grew up on a farm and enjoy using dairy products. These whoopie pies are a delicious change from the traditional chocolate ones. They don't last long at our house. My husband Dwane and I have two children, Christopher, 3½, and Heidi, 9 months. They both have lots of energy and keep us busy.

The Best Kept Secret

KELP MEAL

A Natural for Any Feed Program for Dairy Cattle

Observations of farmers and breeders as well as controlled testing indicate the following specific benefits from feeding kelp meal.

- more efficient feed utilization, less feed required
- increases regularity of heat cycles
- improves rate of conception and healthy births with fewer complications for cows and calves
- fewer problems caused by dietary deficiencies
- increases milk yield
- increases butterfat content in milk
- increases Vitamin A content in milk
- minimizes production losses during stress periods
- sustains lactation peaks
- increases hemoglobin content in blood

NOTE Kelp meal can also be used as a natural soil conditioner and source of essential plant nutrients

QUALITY HAY

TO PRESERVE QUA

Firm, well shaped bales of uniform size are easiest to wrap and store. Due to the nature of high moisture hay, the baler must be designed for the task. Although most conventional round balers will make silage bales, premature structural failure, plugging, and inconsistent bale density should be expected after a relatively short time. Optimum bale size is 4'x4'. Larger bales can be wrapped, but due to the extra weight, have a tendency to sag which increases the risk of splitting plastic film. Larger bales also require heavier eq me Both "hard center" and "soft center" b ers "hard center bales, encourages mold d A properly prepared 4'x4' silage bal an weight and pressure required to excl as must be designed with extra stren .

DEUTZ FAHR

ROUND BALERS

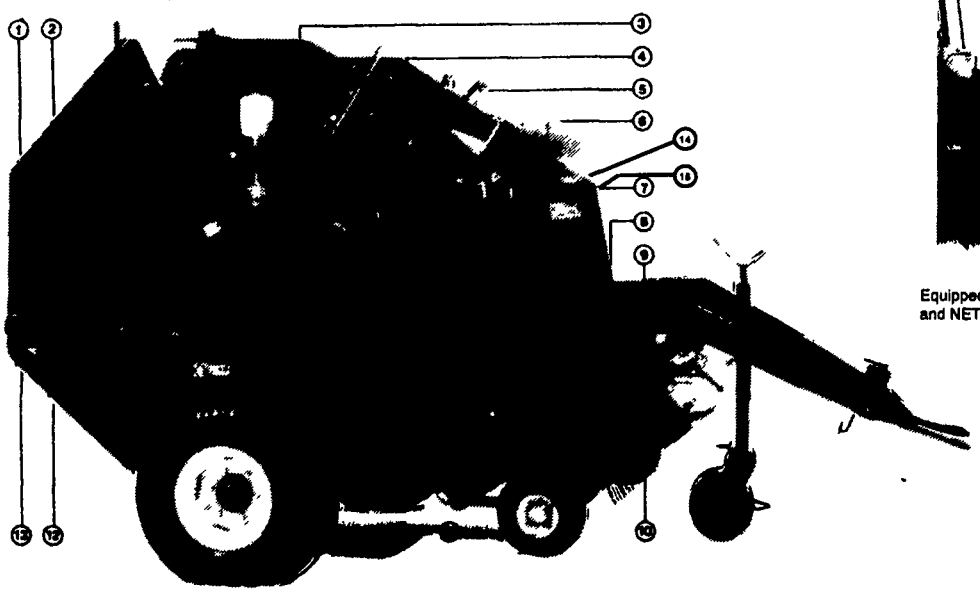
DEUTZ FAHR

Deutz-Fahr round balers have established a worldwide reputation for innovation, durability and performance.

17 Thick walled ribbed steel rollers produce consistent results. Smaller diameter rollers reduce wedging and leaf loss is kept to a minimum. Splined shafts are used on all drive rollers for maximum efficient power transfer

Special features on DEUTZ-FAHR round balers are why they are able to produce consistent bales year after year of use.

1. Roller bearings mounted on the outside of the bale chamber.
2. Automatic chain lubrication system.
3. Reinforced bale chamber for extra strength.
4. Closely spaced small diameter rollers.
5. Automatic "TWIN-FIX" twine tying system.
6. Netwrap option with a capacity of 270 bales per roll.
7. Easily accessible twine box holding (4) twine balls.
8. Universal drawbar with 16 positions and swivel wheel jack.
9. Adjustable baffle plate.
10. Hydraulic lift pickup.
11. Pneumatic tire pickup gauge wheels.
12. Mechanical tailgate lock.
13. Six bale density settings.
14. Splined drive shafts.
15. Extra heavy drive chain.



Equipped with optional WIDE PICK-UP, OPTI-CUT pre-cutting mechanism, combination TWIN and NET WRAP, the DEUTZ-FAHR RB3200 OC is the ideal machine for custom work

All these features translate into outstanding performance and long life.

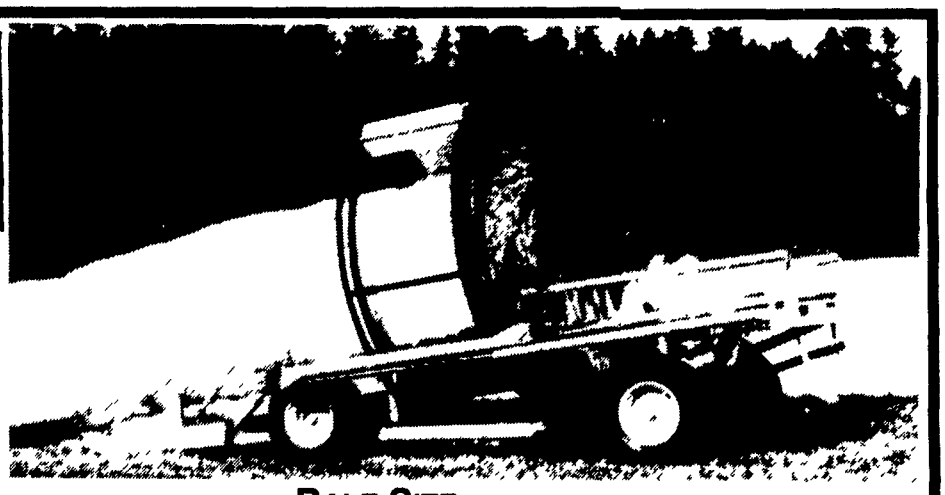
Balers equipped with a built in cutting mechanism are able to increase bale density by up to 20%, and prechopped material can be easily fed.
Be sure to use untreated sisal, plastic or nylon twine if you intend to wrap high moisture bales. Treated Sisal twine produces a chemical reaction that will burn through plastic film.

TUBE-LINE BALEWRAPPER



BIG BALE SILAGE

Big bale silage has become an economical alternative to dry hay or chopped silage. High quality feed can be made with a low investment in equipment. Forage is cut, wilted and sealed air tight with stretch film.

SAVES FILM - REDUCES COST

After the ends are sealed, Tube Line bale wrappers wrap only the circumference of the bales compared to single bale wrappers which wrap the ends of each bale. This saves at least 40% on film cost.

SAVES TIME

On average the Tube Line machines will wrap a bale per minute. Various options are available to match the speed of wrapping with needs of the farmer. These options include a second tensioner and 30 inch wide plastic.

BALE SIZE

There is a Tube Line Wrapper available which will wrap almost all sizes of bales from a 4'x4' round bale to the biggest of square bales.

From field to yard, efficiently

STRAWBERRIES

1½ cups finely chopped walnuts
1½ cups shredded coconut
9-ounces red Jell-O
14-ounce can sweetened condensed milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
4-ounces slivered almonds
½ cup water

Mix together nuts, coconut, and gelatin powder. Add milk and vanilla. Stir until well mixed. Chill.

Pour water into a small bowl; color green with food coloring. Add almonds and mix until almonds are a deep green color. Dry on paper towels.

Shape chilled gelatin mixture into strawberries, using about 1 teaspoon for each. Roll in red sugar and dip ends in green sugar. Use the almond slivers for stems.

The Buhl sisters Emily, 2, and Elisabeth, 4, feed their pet goat, Binger.

Our farm is Greene-Summit Farm in Erie County. My husband Ernie milks 50 cows and we raise corn, alfalfa, clover, and grass hay. I scout crops part time and do mending, alterations, and other sewing.

We have two beautiful daughters. Betsy just turned five and will be starting school at home in the fall. Emily will be three in July. They both enjoy living on a farm very much. They have many pets that they take care of: two rabbits, five ducks, a goat, two dogs, and many cats and kittens. They also are active gardeners and sell gourds and Indian corn in the fall.

We are very thankful for the many things, like responsibility and love for God's creation, that they are learning by growing up on a farm.

MOTHER'S YEAST ROLLS

3 cups milk
⅔ cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
4 large rounded tablespoons shortening, softened
2 tablespoons yeast
3-4 cups flour

Scald milk, add to sugar and cool to lukewarm. Add the yeast and let dissolve. Add flour, shortening and salt. Stir until well mixed. Add enough flour to make a soft dough. Note: sometimes I use 4 cups whole wheat flour and the remainder white bread flour for whole wheat rolls.

Cover—let rise until doubled, punch down, and let rise again. Can be shaped in pans as dinner rolls. My mother shaped the dough the size of large hamburger rolls and baked on cookie sheets. Bake at 375-400 degrees for about 20 minutes.

This recipe originated with my mother, Lillian Laidig Barmont, who went home to the Lord in 1973. She rarely used measuring cups and spoons when mixing the ingredients for bread, but relied on her experience and marvelous instinct to know when the mixture was "just right." Her baking was done in a large, homey farmhouse kitchen using a wood-fired "Home Comfort" cook stove. The oven temperature had to be regulated by the careful firing of the woodstove and use of the oven drafts.

I bake these rolls for my family now, but somehow they never taste as good as the rolls my mother made.

NIPPY CHEESE DIP

8-ounces cream cheese
5-ounce jar sharp cheese
¼ teaspoon Worcesterhire sauce
4 tablespoons Dijon mustard
½ cup mayonnaise

Have cheese at room temperature. Combine ingredients and beat until smooth. Chill until ready to serve. Makes 2 cups of dip.

Variations: Top with crumbled bacon or add ½ teaspoon Italian Seasoning or add 1 tablespoon dried chives.

My extended family includes a group of close friends. When we get together, we like to sample different appetizers, snacks, and dips. Usually we each make a different one. Nippy Cheese Dip is great when served with several kinds of crackers.

RHUBARB FOOL

1 cinnamon stick
3 whole cloves
2-inch long strip lemon zest peel
2¼ pounds rhubarb, chopped into half-inch pieces
1¼ cups sugar
2 cups nonfat vanilla yogurt
½ cup whipping cream

Tie together cinnamon stick, cloves, and lemon zest in a cheesecloth bag. In large saucepan, combine rhubarb, sugar, and spice bag. Bring to boil and cook stirring occasionally, 6-8 minutes (should look like applesauce). Discard spice bag and chill mixture until cold.

Thicken yogurt by filtering through coffee filter until half cup liquid drains (takes about one hour so place in refrigerator while draining).

Place thickened yogurt in medium size bowl. Add rhubarb and mix together lightly leaving some swirls. Whip cream in a chilled bowl and swirl into the fool. Cover and refrigerate until ready to serve. Makes 8 servings with 5 g fat in each.

This is one of my favorite springtime recipes.

I live in New York with my husband Mike, but grew up on a dairy farm near Patton.

My brothers, Marty and Dave, continue to work on the farm. Although the dairy is no longer there. I love going back to visit especially in the summer when my nieces and nephews are out of school.

"I drank my milk this morning!"

That's a message that brightens the hearts of us dairy farmers, set to celebrate another annual recognition of June Dairy Month.

The source of this message is a bright and bubbly voice on our phone answering machine. I recognize the voice as that of Terri, our church's secretary, who rarely leaves a message on our machine without reminding us that she indeed is a milk drinker.

After several years of dependable service, our old answering machine fell prey to a fatal attack of electronic equipment plague late last summer, not too many weeks after a similar outbreak wiped out our son's computer. Maybe it was the heat and humidity; maybe just old age. Maybe one of the nasty thunderstorms finally zapped it.

Friends and relatives who tried to call and got weird responses from the machine soon alerted us to its lack of cooperation. After several weeks of being too busy to do any comparative shopping other than printed sales advertisements — meanwhile missing messages — I finally bought a replacement.

Now came the fun part — taping a message.

You've probably heard messages that brighten your day. Like one a niece of ours recorded as if the machine itself was talking to callers. Or the West Virginia friends whose answering message plays the country song "Almost Heaven, West Virginia" in the background. Or my mother-in-law's message that ended: "Every day's a good day; some days are just better!"

For a die-hard dairy promoter, this message opportunity for a free product plug was just too good to pass up. After the usual boring request to leave your name, number, blah, blah, I tacked on the reminder: "And don't forget to drink your milk."

Replaying the responses over the past several months has been lots of fun.

Many of you callers, like Terri, assure us that you do indeed drink your milk. That makes us feel great.

A few have flat out said they're not supposed to drink milk because of . . . cholesterol, calories, allergies, etc. There isn't enough room on the tape to remind them of the varieties of milk, ranging from whole to skim, and the myriad of delicious dairy products — cheeses, yogurts, ice creams, etc. Or to cite the numerous and ongoing research projects with are trying dairy products into better health, from prevention of osteoporosis to reduced risks of certain kinds of cancers.

And then there are the funny responses.

One of the most recent was from a caller who noted that he had just had his milk over raspberry pudding and "Boy, was it good!" Don't you love people who leave tempting food messages for you . . . especially when you replay them to an empty stomach?

We raise some of our larger heifers on an adjoining rented farm. In true busy-body heifer fashion, they periodically foray across the fence to visit the good-humored chiropractor whose home and medical office are but a stone's throw from the pasture. A veteran of heifer-rescue incidents, the kindly physician will leave a message relating that our future milk producers are headed in his direction, noting that he does drink his milk, then adamantly adding: "But I'm not going to help milk it."

Truly memorable was a caller some time ago who began to leave a message and changed her mind.

"Oops, I think I have a wrong number . . . but I do drink my milk."

To all you milk drinkers and dairy product lovers, a big thanks for helping keep "our girls" in business.

And, don't forget — just for the health of it — to drink your milk.

I am a homemaker, pastor's wife, mother, and grandmother. I enjoy baking and trying new things in the kitchen. My husband is a diabetic and I have had to do an about face in the kitchen as far as my cooking and baking. I have enjoyed trying new dishes with herbs and spices. My evening past time is crocheting or sewing. I have made a few cow dolls for my grandchildren. I am making dolls which I am crocheting. I like to work in my flower beds. We have a cistern for our water, which is good old pure rain water.

My husband is pastor at St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Adrian and the assistant pastor at St. John's in Kittanning. That is his first love and he has put 36 years into God's work.

We have a daughter Dawn married to a West Virgina farmer. She was mostly raised in the city and married and went to the country. They have three little girls.

My son graduated from the Art Institute in Pittsburgh. He is a designer for bicycle parts, wheel chair parts, and now shoes.

I collect cows in my kitchen. I am known as the MOOO Lady. I also won a blue ribbon for my afghan we use on our double bed. Ask what I do at times? Just moo around.

GRAHAM CRACKER FLUFF

Filling:

Soak 1 package gelatin in ½ cup cold water. Beat together ½ cup sugar, ¾ cup milk, and 2 egg yolks.

Cook sugar, milk and egg yolks for one minute in heavy kettle, stirring all the time.

Remove from heat; add gelatin and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Chill until mixture begins to thicken. Add two stiffly beaten egg whites and 1 cup cream, whipped.

Crumbs:

Melt together 1½ tablespoons butter and 3 tablespoons brown sugar. Mix with one pack (about 11) graham crackers, well crushed.

Line the bottom of a 7½ x12-inch dish with half the crumbs and pour in filling. Sprinkle remaining crumbs on top. Chill.

My husband, Tony, and I live just outside of the small village of Cassadaga, N.Y. We have two boys, Raymond and Kyle.

I grew up on a dairy farm, sixth in a family of nine girls and three boys.

My husband is a native of Belize, Central America. We met through a mission project my family had there. After getting married, we built a repair shop a half mile from my family's farm, where we service and sell lawn and garden equipment. Of course, I quickly turned from a milkmaid to an engine mechanic, and later a mother and teacher to our sons. I enjoy cooking as well and I'm pleased to share this recipe. It's a favorite dessert with all of us.

HASTY TASTY CASSEROLE

2 pounds hamburger
16 slices bread (crumbled)
6 eggs, beaten
½ teaspoon salt
4 cups milk
1 quart corn
1 medium onion, chopped
½ cup grated cheese
2 tablespoons butter (melted)

Mix all together and put into 3 quart casserole dish. Bake for 1½ hours.

directions for 10 minutes. Drain. Combine ziti, half the spaghetti sauce, cottage cheese, mozzarella cheese, parsley, egg, oregano, garlic powder, and pepper.

In at least a 9x13-inch casserole, pour the tomato sauce. If desired, additional spices may be added to the sauce according to your taste. Spread ziti mixture evenly over sauce in casserole. Top with remaining spaghett sauce and sprinkle with the parmesan cheese. Cover with foil and bake at 375 degrees for 30-35 minutes or until hot and bubbly.

My husband, Charles, and I live on a 120-acre farm in Harford County. We have raised four children and they really appreciated the opportunity to grow up here and now our grandchildren are enjoying the farm. Corn and alfalfa are the crops grown and we have one pet cow, Chocolate Chip.

Both my husband and I have to watch our fat intake so I make this recipe with fat-free cheeses. With a salad and Italian bread, we have a satisfying meal.

ICEBOX SANDWICHES

1 small package instant vanilla pudding mix
2 cups cold milk
2 cups whipped topping
1 cup miniature semisweet chocolate chips
48 graham cracker squares

Mix pudding and milk according to package directions and refrigerate until set. Fold in whipped topping and chocolate chips. Place 24 graham crackers on a baking sheet; top each with about 3 tablespoons filling. Place another graham cracker on top. Freeze for one hour or until firm. Wrap individually in plastic wrap; freeze. Serve sandwiches frozen. Yield 2 dozen.

I enjoy cooking and trying new recipes. My brothers and I enjoy these sandwiches in the summertime. Our family lives on a dairy farm in Cochranville. We also have a big garden and yard that keep us very busy in the summer.

It's Berry Time

Muffins, pies, cakes, tarts, jams and jellies, and even salads can all be enhanced by the wonderful berries which are plentiful at this time of year. Either fresh or used in a baking recipe, you won't want to miss enjoying berry time. To get more information about preserving fresh berries, contact your local county Extension Agent and ask for a "Let's Preserve" fact sheet for canning and freezing or making jams or jellies.

Strawberries — Pennsylvania strawberries are available through the month of June. Select fully ripe and appropriately colored strawberries with intact green caps. White or pale pink berries do not become sweeter after they are picked and should not be purchased. Twelve very large berries or 36 small berries equals a pint. One pint yields about 3¼ cups whole, 2¼ cups sliced, or 1⅓ cups pureed berries.

After picking in the field or at a store, strawberries should be refrigerated immediately. Never rinse the berries or remove the caps before storing. Removing the cap early can reduce flavor, texture, and nutrient quality. For optimal refrigeration, place berries no more that two berries deep in a shallow container or tray covered with waxed paper or plastic wrap.

When you're ready to use your strawberries, remove the caps and gently wash the berries with cool water.

Now that your strawberries are ready to use, try making Frozen Yogurt Strawberry Tarts. You will need:

8-10 graham cracker tart shells*
2 eight-ounce containers of plain low-fat yogurt
½ cup sugar
1 eight-ounce container whipped topping
2 cups fresh sliced strawberries

Combine yogurt and sugar. Fold in whipped topping and sliced strawberries. Fill tart shells with mixture and freeze for at least 4 hours or overnight. Remove from freezer 30 minutes prior to service and garnish with sliced strawberries. Place leftovers back in the freezer. *Note that a deep dish or 10-inch graham cracker pie crust can be used in place of the tart shells. Remove from freezer one hour prior to serving.

Blueberries — Pennsylvania blueberries are available mostly in July, but some varieties produce into September. Choose berries that are plump and firm with a light silvery "bloom." This bloom is a natural protective wax on the berries. Ripe blueberries have a light blue to blue-black color. The deepness of the blue color depends on the variety.

Blueberries should be refrigerated immediately after harvest or purchase. Do not wash blueberries before storing because moisture allows mold to grow. Instead, wash blueberries just prior to using. Store blueberries in a container with a loose cover. Depending upon the initial freshness of the berries, they can be stored in the refrigerator for 2 days to 1 week.

Gently wash blueberries in cold water just prior to using. Drain them in a colander or place on paper towels to dry.

Fresh Blueberry Muffins taste great anytime! Here's what you will need:

3 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
3 tablespoons brown sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg
¼ cup butter, melted
1 cup milk
1 cup fresh blueberries
2 tablespoons granulated sugar

In a large bowl, mix together flour, brown sugar, baking powder, and salt. In small bowl, beat together eff, melted butter, and milk; add all at once to flour mixture and stir until just moist. Fold in blueberries. Spoon into greased or paper-lined 2¼" muffin cups and sprinkle with granulated sugar. Bake at 425°F for 20-25 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Serve warm. Makes 12 muffins.

Bramble Berries — Raspberries, blackberries, dewberries, boysenberries, loganberries, and youngberries are all bramble-type berries. The primary difference between the raspberry and the blackberry is that when raspberries are picked, the receptacle is left behind. As a result, the raspberry is more perishable because it is more easily crushed and the cavity provides ideal growing conditions for mold.

Bramble berries in Pennsylvania are available from July through mid-August. Select berries that are firm, plump, and solid in color. Immature berries do not sweeten after they are picked. Since these berries are very delicate, the less they are handled before they are used, the longer they can be stored.

Refrigerate immediately after harvesting as bramble berries are very perishable. Blackberries can be refrigerated 5-7 days; black raspberries, 3-5 days; and red raspberries, 2-3 days. Store refrigerated berries in a shallow container with a loose covering such as plastic wrap. Do not wash berries before storing.

Wash bramble berries gently and quickly in cold water just before serving. Gently lift them from the water and drain. Never soak berries in water or they will lose sugar, flavor, and color. Bramble berries are interchangeable in recipes and may be substituted for strawberries in many recipes. Avoid using aluminum, tin, or iron utensil or baking pans when using raspberries because they can turn from red to blue in color.

Nutritionally, one cup of unsweetened fresh berries range from 47 to 82 calories. They are low in sodium, high in potassium, and a good source of vitamin C. Berries are also an important source of fiber with the seeded berries being the highest in fiber.

So, enjoy these mouthwatering summer fruits and remember to have a "berry" good time snacking, making a main dish, or using berries in a delicious dessert!

YUMMY ORANGE DESSERT

10 cups boiling water
Add 1½ cup pearl tapioca
Boil 15 minutes, turn off and let set until clear. Then add:
1 cup sugar
1 cup orange Jell-O
1 can pineapples
1 to 2 cups whipped cream
Before serving, mix in whipped cream as desired. Very tasty but simple.

ECLAIR CAKE

1 box graham crackers
2 boxes instant vanilla pudding
3 cups milk
8-ounces whipped cream
Mix together pudding and milk in bowl. Fold in whipped cream. Line 13x9-inch pan with whole graham crackers. Spread half of pudding mixture on graham crackers. Then a layer of graham crackers and the remaining pudding mixture. On the tird layer of graham crackers, spread with chocolate topping.

Chocolate topping:
2 ounces liquid chocolate
3 tablespoons melted butter
3 tablespoons milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons corn syrup
1½ cups confectioners sugar
Beat until smooth and spread over the crackers. Chill 24 hours.

We rent a dairy farm in McClure. We have one child who is 4 years old. He really likes the animals. He has a dog named Duke. My husband and I both grow up on dairy farms. We have 50 dairy cows.

ICE CREAM CAKE

1 box yellow pudding cake mix
3-ounce box instant chocolate pudding
4 eggs
½ cup vegetable oil
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 cup water
Mix together and beat well. Pour into two well-greased 9x13-inch pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 to 30 minutes.
Cool cake and top with vanilla ice cream approximately the same depth as the cake. Top with a thin layer of whipped cream. Freeze.
Day of serving: top with chocolate syrup and sprinkle with chopped peanuts. Makes 3 quarts of ice cream for one recipe.

This is a cold treat we enjoy when we come in after a long day of work.

We live on a hog and beef farm and grown corn, wheat, and hay.

My mom is an avid gardener so we have a large garden to keep us busy in the summertime.

SMOOTH AND CREAMY ICE CREAM

1 quart milk
4 eggs, beaten
2½ cups sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch or clear jel
½ cup milk
1 tablespoon gelatine
3 cups cream
¼ cup cold water
3 cups milk
2 tablespoons vanilla

Scald one quart milk. Mix together eggs, sugar, cornstarch, or clear jel, and ½ cup milk. Add to scalded milk. Cook several minutes. Remove from heat. Add one tablespoon gelatin, softened in ¼ cup cold water. Chill. Beat well. Add cream, milk, and vanilla. If preferred, omit last two ingredients and add one quart fresh fruit. Makes six quarts. Freeze in a hand-cranked ice cream freezer.

We live on a farm in Lancaster County. Our family consists of 11 girls and three boys, but only one boy and three girls are still living at home.

We have two cows, which we milk by hand, so we have plenty of milk and cream to make ice cream which we all enjoy on warm summer days. We double this recipe for our ice cream freezer and it's very good.

I enjoy reading section B of Lancaster Farming, especially the recipes. In June, they're the most interesting.

FAMILY CHEESECAKE SQUARES

Crust:
1 package active dry yeast
¼ cup warm milk
1 tablespoon sugar
1 cup butter
2½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
4 egg yolks, slightly beaten

Filling:
1 egg, separated
2 8-ounce packages cream cheese, softened
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup chopped pecans

Dissolve yeast and sugar in warm milk. In large mixing bowl, cut butter into flour and salt as for pie crust. Add yolks and yeast mixture. Mix thoroughly. Divide dough in half. Roll each piece to fit a 13x9-inch pan. Place one in pan. Beat together yolk, cream cheese, sugar, and vanilla until smooth. Spread over dough in pan, cover with remaining piece. Press edges lightly to seal. Brush top with slightly beaten egg white and sprinkle with nuts. Cover and allow to rise in a warm place 1½ hours. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Serve at room temperature. Delicious with strawberries.

My husband Jason and I have a 1½ year-old son Garrett. We feed beef cattle and crop farm. We both grew up on dairy farms, though, so we can certainly appreciate all the hard work that goes into those dairy products we enjoy.

CHEESE BALL

8-ounces Cheese Whiz or Velveeta
2 8-ounce packages cream cheese
1 shake onion or garlic salt
1 shake seasoned salt
½ teaspoon liquid smoke or Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon parsley

Stir until smooth then shape into a ball. Bacon bits or pecans on the top make it good.

I live on a farm with my family, six brothers and two sisters. I don't help much with the chores since I have so many brothers. We will have produce this year so we'll have a huge garden to take care of.

PEANUT BUTTER GOODIE

1¼ cup graham cracker crumbs
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup butter
½ cup peanut butter
¾ cup confectioners' sugar
2 small packages instant vanilla pudding
4 cups cold milk
Whipped cream

Mix together crumbs, sugar, and butter. Reserve ¼ cup for topping. Press into 13x9-inch pan. Mix peanut butter and sugar until crumbly and spinkle over crust. Mix pudding and milk. Pour over crumbs. Spread whipped cream on top and sprinkle crumbs on top.

This pudding dessert is one of our favorites. I enjoy baking and making desserts, especially with dairy products since we are dairy farmers. We are milking 58 cows and ship our milk to Clover Farms Dairy.

My husband Richard and I have five children: Daryl, 25; Sharon, 23; Karen, 19; Jolene, 14; and Sherita, 11. Daryl is married and we have two adorable grandchildren.

Farm life is very busy, especially during spring and summer, but I love it. Working together as a family has many rewards.

PANCAKE MIX

1½ cups flour
2 tablespoons sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
1¼ cups milk, cream, or buttermilk
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons oil
1 egg

Mix together and fry in hot skillet.

Here is a verse that reminds me of all the recipe in June's Lancaster Farming, which is quite true. But all in all, I do enjoy the recipes.

"Gather ye recipes while you may, carefully, carefully tuck them away. Store them in boxes, store them in books, glamorous dishes of venturesome cooks. Clip them out, snip them out, fill up the files, tie them in bundles, and stack up the piles. Handle them carefully, treat them with care. For it you're like me, they'll lie buried there, forever and ever, or until you clean house. While you and your meat and potatoes spouse dine on old standbys you whip up instead, from the old tried and proven that you keep in your head!

Thanks for a great farm paper!

CHICKEN GUMBO

4½ slices bread
2 cups cooked chicken
⅛ cup butter, melted
¼ cup mayonnaise
2 eggs, well beaten
½ cup milk
½ cup chicken broth
4½ slices cheese
1 can cream of celery or chicken soup
Buttered bread crumbs

Cube bread in bottom of greased casserole. Add chicken. Mix together butter, mayonnaise, eggs, milk, and broth; pour over chicken. Top with cheese slices and spread soup over all. Sprinkle buttered bread crumbs over top.

Refrigerate overnight. Bake at 350 degrees. Bake 1¼ hours or until done.

I'm 18 and live on a 130-acre dairy farm with my parents and three brothers, ages 16, 19, and 25. There are also 50 acres of woodland with the farm.

We have 39 cows and we also have four work horses, six mules, and four driving horses. I love horses and I like farming. I'm sending one of our favorite recipes.

LEMON SPONGE PIE

4 tablespoons butter
3½ cups granulated sugar
3 lemons, rind and juice
6 cups milk
9 eggs, separated
9 tablespoons flour
Pinch salt
4 9-inch unbaked pie shells

Mix the egg yolks with sugar, flour, and salt. Add lemon rind, lemon juice, butter, and milk. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites last. Put in pie shell. Bake at 425 degrees for 15 minutes. Then reduce heat to 325 degrees until knife inserted comes out clean. Makes four large pies.

I live on a dairy farm. I help milk in the morning. I also milk in the evening when my brother Sam is in the fields. We milk 43 cows and have two dry cows. We have about 60 heifers. We have four drive horses, three of them are my brother's. We have four horses and five mules.

I have five sisters (two married) and five brothers (one married). I have four nephews and three neices.

PANCAKES FOR TWO

1¼ cups all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1¼ cups buttermilk
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 egg, beaten
1 cup fresh or frozen blueberries, optional

In a bow, combine flour, sugar, baking powder, baking soda, and salt. Combine buttermilk, oil and egg; stir into dry ingredients and mix well. Fold in blueberries if desired. Pour batter by 1¼ cupfuls onto a lightly greased hot griddle; turn when bubbles form on top of pancakes. Cook until second side is golden brown. Yields about 8 pancakes.

We enjoy these pancakes. I always add the blueberries. This recipe comes from my favorite magazine, Taste of Home. We live on a dairy farm and have a lime and fertilizer business. My husband Glenn and I have three boys: Darryl, 9, Brian, 6, and Anthony, 2.

GOLDEN CHEESE PUFFS

1 cup sharp cheddar cheese, grated
¼ cup butter, softened
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 small onion, minced
¾ cup sifted flour
6-ounce jar green or black olives.

In a bowl, mix all the ingredients but the olives. Use hands to form a dough. Preheat oven to 400 degrees.

Drain olives and blot with paper towels. Mold about 1 teaspoon of dough around each olive. Place on a greased cookie sheet and bake about 15 minutes or until slightly golden. Cool on wire rack. Yield: 32 puffs.

If black olives are used, a small piece of cheese may be put inside them. The puffs may also be made without olives.

This is my favorite appetizer. I make these every time we have company and sometimes just for my mom, dad, and myself. I won second place for these in the Post-Journal Cooking Contest and also an honorable mention for Swedish Rice Pudding.

GLAZED APPLE CHEESE PIE

3-ounce package cream cheese
1 tablespoon milk or sour cream
9-inch baked pie shell
6 large apples (Rome)
1½ cup plus 2 tablespoons water
1 cup sugar
1 stick cinnamon
2 tablesppoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 tablesppons cornstarch
Red food coloring

Soften the cream cheese with the milk or sour cream and spread over the bottom of the pie shell.

Peel apples and cut into eights. Place 1½ cups of water and sugar into a saucepan and bring to a boil. Drop in apple pieces and cinnamon stick and simmer until apples are just about tender.

With slotted spoon, remove apple pieces. Drain and let cool. Discard cinnamon stick. Measure 1¼ cup of apple juice. Add lemon juice and lemon rind to apple juice. Mix together cornstarch and remaining water. Stir into the apple juice mixture. Bring to boil, stirring, and cook two minutes over very low heat, stirring constantly. Color faintly pink with food coloring. Fill the pie shell with apple pieces, arranging the top layer in an attractive pattern.

Spoon glaze over the apples. Serve at room temperature.

2 eggs (separated)
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 packages powdered artificial sweetener

Pinch of salt and 1 tablespoon butter

Heat 3 cups milk, mix together egg yolks, cornstarch, and ½ cup cold milk, add to heated milk. Stir until thick, then add salt, butter, and vanilla. Beat egg whites until stiff and add to hot pudding.

This is a great dessert for those whose sugar is limited. Good luck!

I have a family of five and enjoy taking care of them, ages 7 years old to 5 months, including two girls and three boys. My husband and I are dairy farmers in Shippensburg.

WHOOPIE PIES

4 eggs
2 cups vegetable oil
4 cups sugar
2 cups cocoa
4 teaspoons baking soda
4 teaspoons vanilla
2 cups sour milk
2 cups cold water with
2 teaspoons instant coffee
1 teaspoon salt
8 cups flour

Mix together eggs, oil, sugar, and cocoa. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Use a tablespoonful of batter for each cookie. Bake at 350 degrees until done, about 10-12 minutes.

My parents are Lloyd and Elizabeth Stoltzfus and we live on a dairy farm. We have 48 cows. I have three sisters and two brothers. I am 11 years old. When school starts, I will be in seventh grade. My hobbies are baking and crocheting. Living and working on the farm is fun. I enjoy it.

Martha Stoltzfus
Millersburg

BLUEBERRY BUCKLE

¼ cup butter
¾ cup sugar
1 egg
2 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ cup milk
2 cups fresh blueberries

Mix together all ingredients and pour into a 9x13-inch cake pan.

Crumb topping:
¼ cup soft butter
¼ cup brown sugar
½ cup flour
½ cup oatmeal
½ teaspoon cinnamon

Bake at 375 degrees for 35 minutes.

This is a favorite summertime dessert for our family. We live on an 82-acre dairy farm, which keeps us all busy. We milk 37 cows and grow hay, corn, and tobacco. I enjoy the recipes in Lancaster Farming.

FLUFFY PUMPKIN PUDDING

1 tablespoon Knox gelatine
2 cups milk
½ cup sugar
3 eggs, separated
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups cooked pumpkin sauce
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sprinkle gelatine over 2 cups cold milk; let stand 10 minutes. Add sugar and salt; stir until dissolved. Heat until scalded. Beat egg yolks slightly; add ½ cup hot milk to yolks and stir into milk; cook until slightly thickened. Add pumpkin sauce, strained and blended. Add the beaten egg whites and vanilla. (Spices may be added instead of vanilla).

My name is Lorraine Zimmerman. I am 14 years old. I have one brother and four sisters that like to work on a dairy farm.

Opportunity For Farmers To Tell About Farming

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANDIS VALLEY (Lancaster Co.) — Farmers have a chance to tell the true story about farming to a non-agricultural public through The Hands-On House Children's Museum of Lancaster.

The Hands-On House is a place where playing is the key to learing. Located in an historic Victorian farmhouse on the Landis Valley Museum grounds, the not-for-profit museum is self-directed and designed for adults and children to explore together.

True, the Hands-On House is designed for children ages 2-10, but parents or an adult accompany the children as they participate in the activities. It's a great opportunity to educate the non-farming community about the production of crops, livestock, dairy, and poultry, as well as equipment and technology.

The new farm exhibit being planned isn't merely an exhibit like that displayed in most museums. The exhibit will offer a whole roomful of activities in which children actually participate in a farm-like setting to learn about farmers' perspective on mechanics, food safety, soil conservation, pollution control, weather forecasting, and financial management.

Deborah Young, exhibit planner, said, "This will not be an EIEIO exhibit where children gather eggs with a basket or milk a cow by hand."

Instead, it will show how computerized equipment is used throughout the farm, such as a sample of eggs rolling out on a conveyor belt and a milking parlor with a pipeline.

Young said the entrance will give the appearance of entering a real farm.

A tractor simulation activity will include real parts of a tractor such as gear shifts, steering wheel, and control panel. Sound effects and an interactive video will encourage role playing. The rider can push a button to select five different implements to attach to the tractor, then look out the back tractor window to see what the equipment does.

Children can participate in soil and planting, seed germination, soil and water conservation, crop identification, and see the finished products.

A season cycle puzzle will teach the planting and harvesting cycle. A weather center, complete with instruments and charts, will provide information about the impact of weather predictions on the farmer's planning, work, and production.

The business end will include a computer station and allow the visitor to find market prices for commodities. Office items will encourage role-playing and visitors to search through files to see where the farm's products have gone to produce consumer goods and industry products.

Deb Young, exhibit planner for the Hands-On House, promises that the agriculture exhibit will not convey farming as an Old MacDonald type farm but will show the latest technology used in farming.

"We need to narrow down what to show and pack as much into the room as we can," she said. "We'd like to show more information than we can actually cover. Businesses such as New Holland will provide handouts for visitors to take home."

In the beginning, Young asked visitors to the Hands-On House what they would like to know about farming. The extensive list includes questions about production and the following:

- Why do farmers spread manure? How does it help?
- Why do farmers make those patterns with a plow?
- What is a typical day on a farm like?
- Do cows bite?
- Why do farmers leave the cows out in the rain?
- How do farmers stand the smell?

After Young read the questions, she decided that for the display to be complete, she should ask farmers: What would you like the general public to know about your job?

"The local people are surrounded by agriculture, but know little about it," Young said.

She hopes to address the misunderstandings that people have about farming. To do this, a community advisory panel who are involved in agriculture was selected. Members are Dr. John Schwartz, director of Penn State Extension; Jim Shirk, Lancaster Chamber of Commerce & Industry; Tom Daniels, Lancaster County Ag Preserve Board; Don Robinson, Lancaster Conservation District; Darvin Boyd, CoreStates

Farm Women Societies

Berks Executive Board

The Berks County Farm Women executive board met on May 6, at the Berks County Ag Center with 23 members in attendance, devotions were led by Group #9 with Karen Schreier reading the poem "Always in Touch." Those in attendance answered the roll call question "How are you enjoying the spring?" State president Dottie Stricker reported that she and Janet Schlegel attended county convention in Adams, Dauphin and Franklin and that Janet Schlegel's name is in for state director. Janet reported the Farm-City Banquet will be held on Nov. 7, at the Riveredge Restaurant and March 20, is Agri Day.

County President Wendy Lingle reported that Berks County will have the memorial service at Spring Rally and there are 30 people from Berks signed up for the bus for Spring Rally. Anyone needing details should call Ruth Walters.

Berks County farm women have been asked to take part in a reading program and presenting a summary on farm women life at their local library.

Group #3 will chair the county convention committee and the silent auction will be handled by the even numbered groups.

President Lingle has the farm women scholarship applications and the rules, deadline to apply is June 1.

Farm Women Day is October 14, Farm Women State Convention is January 13. The 1996 Farm Women state project is support your local 4-H group and the youth project is a handmade item. The board voted to co-host the 1997 Spring Rally with Dauphin County. Next board meeting is July 8.

Berks Society 1

Berks County Society of Farm Women Group 1 met at the Oley home of Martha Levan, who was hostess for the May meeting.

President Evelyn Heacock presided at the meeting which was attended by 15 members. Plans were completed for members who will attend the annual Pennsylvania Society of Farm Women Spring Rally which will be held on May 28 at the Seven Springs Resort in Champion. Theme of the rally program will be "Happiness Is."

Pearl Levengood, Douglassville, will be hostess for the next meeting of Group 1 which will be held on June 12, at 7:30 p.m.

Lebanon Society 20

The May meeting of Farm Women Group 20 was held at the home of Marion Maulfair. Sandi Gipe, master gardener, presented a program on growing and using herbs. Members participated in a hands-on demonstration, using common garden herbs. After chopping and blending herbs into butter and cream cheese we sampled the spreads with crackers. Also Sandi prepared a plate of fresh fruit garnished with basil leaves and quick-bake herb breads for our pleasure. The program was very informative and delicious.

The next meeting will be a tour of Rollin Rheinheimer's Exotic Birds.

York Society 26

Sixteen members of York County Farm Women 26 celebrated the 30th anniversary of the group with a bus ride to Harrisburg, had lunch at the Hilton Hotel, and then had a tour of the state capital.

The group was organized in May of 1966.

Charter members still in the group are Athena Beshore, Mary Conley, Catherine Dorwart, Ruth Hake, and Louise Pennay.

Athena Beshore is the current president.

Four members will attend the Spring Rally at Stevens Springs Mountain Resort in Somerset County.

Opportunity For Farmers To Tell

Bank; Gene Hemphill, New Holland North America; and Jane Eshelman, Ag in the Classroom.

Young has been planning the exhibit since last fall and hopes for its completion this fall.

The range of activities for 2-10 year olds encourages children to focus on different activities at different ages, and many return numerous times over the years to try the activities designed for different age groups.

More than 40,000 visitors participate annually in the interactive learning opportunities at the Hands-On House.

All activities and displays are realistic and yet kid-proof.

Each year, one new exhibit is added to other exhibits, where kids can shop in The Corner Grocery, work on an assembly line in The Whatcha-Ma-Giggle Company, design their own town in Under Construction, explore art with light in Switch on Art, paint their faces in Face to Face, participate in a space voyage, and explore a Fantasy Forest.

Hours for June 15-Sept. 15 are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Monday through Thursday and on Saturday. On Friday it remains open to 8 p.m. Sunday hours are 12 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Admission is $4 for children and adults.

The museum is located at 2380 Kissel Hill Road, Lancaster. From Route 30, take Oregon Pike (Rte. 272) exit. Go north on Oregon Pike to fourth traffic light. Turn left onto Landis Valley Road. Hands-On House is on the left. For more information, call 717-569-KIDS.

Farmers and Others in Agricultural Business are asked to send their response to the question, "What would you like the general pulic to know about your job?" Send your answer to Deb Young, Hands-on House, 2380 Kissel Hill Road, Lancaster, PA 17601.

Somerset FFA Holds Parent-Member Banquet

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

BERLIN (Somerset Co.) — The Somerset County FFA Association parent and member banquet was attended by 107 persons.

Adviser Doyle Paul from the Brothersvalley Chapter informed the group that county FFA associations, statewide, are very rare. He estimated the total is just two or three, which is why Somerset's FFA county organization deeply appreciates the ongoing support of its community.

"We are really blessed with cooperating agencies," said Paul.

Many awards not presented at the winter FFA convention because of the blizzard were given, including the 1995 Keystone degrees. From the Somerset Vo-Tech the recipients were Bob Tannehill, Kevin Spangler, Genette Muro, Dennis Stevanus, Rachael Wright, Sandy King, and Matt Brant. Others from Berlin-Brothersvalley were Matt Coleman and Jason Ickes; from Meyersdale: Jeff Knotts and Joshua Winters; and from Somerset: Carey Weigle and Josh Glessner.

Most poignant was the presentation of the National FFA Associ-

Jeff Knotts stands affectionately with his mother Elsie Knotts after being her fourth son to receive the FFA Keystone Degree. Mrs. Knotts and her late husband, Don, were presented the National FFA Association Special Citation that was delayed because of bad weather for the state FFA winter convention.

New from – Great Plains

12' End Wheel No-Till Drill

No-Till technology and maximum productivity in a 12' size

All of the benefits of Great Plains no-till technology are now available in a new 12 foot size. The new 12' End Wheel No-Till drill is designed to handle the planting needs of small to medium sized operations with maximum productivity.

Built to the high quality standards of Great Plains, the 12' End Wheel No-Till drill will plant in the most demanding of no-till conditions with extreme accuracy.

The end wheel design makes this drill extremely maneuverable. Keeping all ground-working com-ponents in-line with the end wheels prevents openers from bulldozing or bridging when working in rolling terrain. The end wheels also act as stabilizers to hold the openers steady when seeding on slopes.

Excess debris is no problem for this unit. Opener and coulter stagger of 10 3/4" allows trash to flow evenly and freely. No-till coulters create a mini-seedbed allowing openers to concentrate on seed placement.

Planting depth adjustments are quick and easy with the "T"-handle depth control system. State of the art solid seed tubes ensure that the seed exits the chute with "zero motion drop" for ultimate seed placement accuracy. The optional Seed-Lok™ wheel then presses each seed into moist soil for optimum germination.

The improved straight-arm, solid stand opener design, combined with the cushioned press wheel provides maximum down pressure with less wear and tear.

The large, welded seed box holds up to 2.4 bushels per foot. Exclusive Great Plains fluted feed seed cups coupled with the 4-speed gearbox deliver outstanding accuracy in varying rates and seeding conditions.

Designed with safety in mind, the 12' End Wheel No-Till drill comes equipped with transport safety lights and a wider walkboard.

Accessories available with the 12' End Wheel No-Till drill include: folding markers, coil tine harrows, seed box agitator and small seeds attachment.

ation's Special Citation to Elsie Knotts and her late husband, Don Knotts, because the couple's four sons — Don K., Mark, Mike, and Jeff — have all achieved Keystone Degree status in the FFA.

With pride, Mrs. Knotts said, "It makes you feel good." She added that their father saw only three of his sons get the award. To see his last son, Jeff, as well, getting the same honor would have been a great pleasure, she said.

Nobledale Farm: A Tradition Of Dairying Eight Generations Strong

CAROLYN MOYER
Bradford Co. Correspondent

GILLETT (Bradford Co.) — In 1833 Alonzo C. Noble forged his way to the hills of Bradford County to claim his piece of America. Seven generations and 163 years later, the land he traveled to by ox trail is still in his family and is known as Nobledale Farm.

Today the farm is a three-way partnership between Tom's wife, Shirley, and their sons and daughters-in-law, Steve and Donna and Stuart and Elaine.

Steve's daughter, Stephanie, and Stuart's daughter Maria Jo along with Shirley's five other grandchildren, form the eighth generation of Nobles to live in the area.

Although she's not involved in the day-to-day decisions on the farm, Tom's mother, Frances still lives on the farm. Her husband, LaVere passed away last year.

Tom, who died from injuries sustained in an automobile accident in 1988, loved to promote the Jersey breed. Much of his philosophy is carried on through his sons.

Like the strong family ties to the land, the Nobles also have shown a commitment to one breed of dairy cows — Jerseys.

"I don't know what the cows were when they came here (originally) but we've had registered Jerseys since 1888," said Stuart as he leafed through some of the original registration papers.

"They're easier to work with," said Steve.

A stone wall built by Alonzo when he was in his 90s still borders part of the original 225 acres. Today the farm is divided into about 100 acres of pasture and about 100 acres of cropland. There is also a separate tract of woodlot consisting of about 50 acres, and the brothers rent an additional 200 acres of ground. All of the corn silage, haylage and hay for their registered Jersey cows is raised on the farm. They also rely heavily on pasture to feed both heifers and cows.

"We've always done rotational grazing," Stuart said. "We've always had our pastures broken down into small lots and moved the animals around. Now we're trying to break it down into even smaller paddocks to utilize the ground better."

From a spot carved out of the wilderness grew first a log cabin, then a dairy barn, chicken coop and other out buildings typical of a turn of the century farm. In 1935 the original buildings burnt and were replaced with the existing dairy barn.

"After the fire they milked the cows during the winter in the chicken coop. They were able to sell or lease all of the cows out except 12-15 that they milked in the coop," Stuart explained.

When they rebuilt, all the lumber was taken from their own woodlot.

In 1961 the milking barn was expanded to house 66 cows.

Eventually the family would like to remodel the existing facilities to maximize cow comfort.

"The cows keep getting bigger," noted Shirley, who handles much of the bookwork for the farm.

"Jerseys are the size Holsteins used to be," said Elaine.

Stuart holds Maria Jo so she can pet one of the many calves on the farm. At age 2, she is already in love with the cows.

CAROLYN MOYER

Carolyn Moyer and family. Clockwise, from top, Carolyn, Charlie, Gregory, Andrew and Paul Moyer.

Ah, there's nothing like summer to get rid of that cabin fever that's been building since the temperatures plunged and the first snows hit the ground.

Up in Tioga County, winter lasted nearly six months, with the first snows glistening on the roads in November and the last (maybe) falling in April.

With the warming of our hemisphere comes the ever-increasing energy of three little Moyer boys. Charlie, age 3½, and Gregory, age 2, love to play outdoors and can't stand it when they aren't allowed to go exploring. Andrew, age 9 months, also likes to be outside, but prefers riding in his backpack..

My three sons often tag along while I cover shows and fairs, and this summer will be no exception. As the calendar fills with newsworthy events, I'll pack the car with games, food, drinks and our big red wagon, and off we'll go.

I'm lucky that I often have the help of many relatives and friends. Combining work with motherhood would be impossible without their generous help. I consider myself very blessed to be able to be home with my children while continuing my career by writing for Lancaster Farming.

As the Bradford/Tioga Correspondent, I'll be traveling across the two counties covering everything from dairy princess pageants to fairs.

When we're not busy snapping photos of champion hogs and interviewing princess contestants, I'll be home on Ty-Ly-View Farm with my husband, Paul, exploring the world through the eyes of three curious little boys.

Before the construction crews are commissioned to add additional stalls to increase the size of the herd, however, the Nobles will strive to increase their production per cow.

"We'll remodel and get bigger stalls, or we'll be out of business. The cows are banging themselves up too bad," Stuart said. "But we'll increase production before we increase the numbers."

To get their production up from their current DHIR averages of 12,600 pounds of milk, 3.1 percent protein and 4.97 percent fat, the Nobles will concentrate first on fine tuning their feeding program. Breeding decisions also play a major role in increasing production.

"We try to get a good, sound type animal and the production will come," said Stuart. "If you've got a cow that has good feet and legs on her with good capacity, that will go out and eat, production will come. If you've got a cow that starts out with a lot of milk, she might not have the feet and legs to survive a few years. The rest is luck."

Stuart continued, "We try to cross it up. We might have a real milky cow and cross it up with a strong type bull."

Longevity is important, too, in the completely homebred herd. The oldest cow in the barn is over 15 years old, with many others reaching over the six-year-old mark. Eight of the animals in the herd are Excellent with three scoring 91 and the other five scoring 90 points. The average classification on 72 head is Very Good — 82.

The ultimate decision maker in the herd however is income over feed cost.

"We can talk about herd average and longevity, but the biggest factor is income over feed cost," said Elaine. "If your income over feed cost isn't high enough, it doesn't matter how high your average production is, you're still not going to pay the bills."

Being involved with the farm since they were young, farming seemed a natural career choice for Steve and Stuart. Steve was graduated from Troy High School in the Industrial Arts program and Stuart, who also was graduated from Troy, was a member of FFA throughout his high school years.

Recently Stuart and Elaine were recognized through the Jersey Association as Pennsylvania's Outstanding young dairyman. Stuart is also a state director with the PJCA and serves as an alternate delegate for Milk Marketing Incorporated. Elaine has been a 4-H dairy leader, but relinquished her post this year. Elaine and Stuart are expecting their second child in September.

In addition to farming, Steve serves as the assistant chief for the Daggett fire company. His daughter is also an avid 4-H member and is no stranger to the show ring.

Shirley and Tom's other children, Sharon Noble Borek, Terry, and Tim and his wife Julie, are employed off the farm, but their children also enjoy the farm, and love to show the Jerseys at the local fair.

"Tom always wanted to see his grandchildren show the cows," said Shirley, "But that didn't happen."

As the family looked through albums filled with photographs, news articles and other memories, they recalled the best memories in the show ring.

"The best show was the year after Tom died at the Troy Fair when we took it all," said Shirley "That was pretty impressive. I wrote in the album, 'This is for you, Dad.'"

"That's the first year we ever had premier breeder and exhibitor, too," recalled Stuart.

Last year they had supreme champion at the Troy Fair with Nobledale Juno Vermont. Not too many years ago, grandson Tommy took grand champion honors at the same show.

They have also shown at the Chemung County Fair in New York, the Pennsylvania All American, and the All American Jersey Show in Louisville, Ky.

The love of the cow is also evident in every nook and cranny of the farm house. Thousands of cows, stuffed, ceramic, painted or molded adorn the house. They also have a substantial milk bottle collection amassed by Tom before his death. Many of the finest pieces of the bottle collection were smashed in the automobile accident, including a full set of bottles featuring Hop-Along Cassidy.

Perhaps the biggest question on the minds of the Noble family is, will the eighth generation be able to carry on the farming tradition?

"The boys work so hard and milk prices are so low. I really admire them for staying here and working so hard. I wonder where the next generation will be," said Shirley.

One thing is evident when talking to the Noble family. No matter what the future brings, the tradition that was started more than 150 years ago will forever be a strong part of the Noble heritage.

Messick Farm Equipment, Inc.

Elizabethtown, PA

Messick Farm Equipment's beginnings go back to November 26, 1952, when two brothers, Marlin and Merville Messick broke ground and erected a new building along Route 230, three miles north of Elizabethtown.

The dealership officially opened on February 1, 1953, with Marlin as Shop Manager, and Merville handling both the sales and parts department.

Two years later a full-time salesman and one additional mechanic were hired, and in 1962 an addition was built to the existing building, housing a showroom and additional parts area.

The successful Messick enterprise once again outgrew its shell, and a new 21-acre site was purchased at the present location along Route 283, at the Rheems Exit, Elizabethtown.

With the new facilities providing 7,200 square feet of shop space, and 6,000 square feet of showroom, Messick celebrated its grand opening in February of 1977. Messicks have since expanded the building twice and have built an additional warehouse.

Today Messick attributes much of its growth to its 44 employees, including 15 mechanics, 12 partsmen, 5 salesmen, and four office personnel.

Factory trained as well as privately instructed, Messick's servicemen have years of experience in the agricultural field. The firm's parts department has experience in providing customers with the correct parts as quickly as possible.

To Messick's staff, the idea of simply making a sale, is secondary to their goal of providing the customer with the correct equipment to get the job done. They are committed to keeping their customers up and running with over 1 million dollars in parts inventory.

Service Department

Over 150 years combined experience in our Service Department.
Serving you with fully equipped service vans to get you up and running fast.

Messicks has a 1-800 number, 1-800-222-3373, also a fax number, 717-367-6662, to be able to provide their services to the customers. They ship and receive by UPS, Federal Express, RPS, Airborne, Motortruck, and via their own 'on the farm' Parts Route Delivery/Sales Truck. Their hours are 7:30-5:00, Monday-Friday, and 7:30-12:00 on Saturdays.

12 ton LOW PROFILE RUNNING GEAR

from Demco

Spring loaded lift assist on the tongue is a standard feature of the 12 ton gears. A short turning radius permits tight turns. Built-in steering stops prevent damage from over steering Straight heavy duty spindles lower the gear, allowing an overall lowering of the center of gravity of the grain box. We recommend using this gear with our 365 bushel box.

Valuable Dependability

- Automotive type steering with adjustable solid steel tie rods.
- Heavy duty spindle and hub assembly for long service life
- Wide 84" tire tread width for added stability and maximum safety
- Bolster stakes adjust from 38" to 42" width.
- Adjustable reach pole for 86" to 128" wheel base Extra long reach pole is available for 132" to 174" wheel base
- Extendable tongue is self locking when backing up for easy hook ups.
- Available in your choice of green and yellow trim or red with off-white trim.

EVALUATION OF AIR QUALITY IN POULTRY HOUSING

Eileen Fabian Wheeler
Assistant Professor
Environmental Control
Dept. of Ag and Biological Engineering

Good air quality leads to healthy birds and productive poultry facilities. When evaluating air quality in poultry housing, what do we want to determine? What makes one indoor environment better than another?

Our own senses, animal behavior observations, and attention to management practices offer a first step in environmental evaluation. Instruments allow an objective and quantifiable evaluation of environmental parameters. Instrument readings are then compared to recommended environmental guidelines.

First we need to be clear that an evaluation of indoor air quality is from the standpoint of the bird. This is not necessarily the same environment in which a human would feel comfortable. Air quality characteristics are important in the zone where the bird is confined.

Commonly measured air quality characteristics related to bird comfort include temperature, humidity, and air speed. These are easily measured and roughly characterize the animal environment. Contaminant gases or dust are also important although not as easily measured. Temperature of walls and floors and stray cold air drafts complete the effective temperature to which confined animals are exposed. Air flow visualization, such as smoke, is a common first step in evaluating a ventilation system.

It is desirable to characterize the ventilation system which is responsible for many major features of indoor air quality. System characteristics such as air speed through fans, blade rpm, pressure difference against which the fan is operating, and air speed at inlet openings are easily measured.

Each of these air quality and ventilation system characteristics is quantified through the use of some instrument that provides a number. Proper techniques in using instruments are required to be sure of obtaining values that truly represent the animal environment and ventilation system.

Principles of measuring anything:

1. Measure the correct thing. Measure characteristics of air the birds are breathing and/or the air blowing over their bodies. Get down to the level of the bird. Go back into the resting areas of penned birds or within (or at least between) the cages of layer hens. Air characteristics such as temperature and humidity, let alone levels of contaminant gases such as ammonia, can vary greatly depending on location within an animal confinement zone. Compare measurements taken in resting, eating and dunging areas.

2. What is the instrument measuring? The instrument can only read what it is exposed to. Be aware of what part of the instrument is sensing the conditions. Exposing an instrument to an environment alters the environment immediately adjacent to the instrument. Positioning yourself and an air flow meter in the jet of air exiting a fan means that the air flow is blocked and must go around you and the meter. Similarly, a temperature probe placed in direct sunlight will indicate a higher temperature than a similar probe positioned more appropriately under cover. Decide what it is that you want to measure and position the instrument to most appropriately measure that quantity.

3. Understand how your instrument works. By understanding the mechanisms involved in how the instrument detects air characteristics, you can better troubleshoot the instrument when curious readings are obtained or when adjustments and calibrations are needed. A number is only as good as the understanding that went into determining it. How long does it take the instrument to determine and display a stabilized reading?

4. Question each reading. Does the reading make sense in the environment being considered? Take more than one reading. A set of three readings is often necessary to confirm that sporadic measurements are reliable.

5. Record your readings and observations. Summarize the results. Is there a pattern? Do measured conditions correspond to an observed or perceived problem? Be sure to include conditions which affect the enclosed animal environment such as outside weather conditions, bird density, management practice, behavior, etc.

After good environmental data are obtained, we can compare our environment against a standard and then seek improvement in environmental characteristics. For example, a simple thermometer indicates that the air temperature in a laying house is 88°F, yet we know that layers are most comfortable up to 80°F. Our goal would be to lower the temperature through evaporative cooling, increased ventilation rate, or compensate in other ways for the heat stress. Through evaluation of animal housing environments with instruments, improvements to environmental quality can be implemented with more confidence.

A new series of fact sheets on "Evaluating Livestock Housing Environments" is available from Penn State. Topics include "Principles of Measuring Air Quality" (G80), "Instruments for Measuring Air Quality" (G81), and "Evaluating Mechanical Ventilation Systems" (G82). These publications are concerned with portable, hand-held, field-quality instruments commonly used in diagnosing animal environments. The fact sheets offer essential information about the operation of instruments and methods for correctly measuring air quality characteristics and mechanical ventilation system performance. A fourth fact sheet (G83) explains the use of psychrometric charts.

BALANCED RATIONS HELP KEEP DRY COWS ON TRACK

Jud Heinrichs
Dairy and Animal Science Dept.
Penn State

Proper nutrition and using some common sense will help keep dry cows on track for their next lactation. The main goals for a dry cow nutrition program is to keep the cows in good body condition and use common sense when managing these animals.

Dry cows must be separated from other groups of cows on the farm. A main criteria is that these dry cow facilities are clean, so as not to cause an increased incidence of mastitis in the close-up dry cow. If cows are drying off at very different stages of body condition, you may want to come up with a method to feed one group that is either too fat or too thin separately from the rest of the dry cows. This may be for all of the day or just an hour or two. Often some cows need extra feed or a different diet in some respects to enable them to be in better body condition to begin the next lactation.

Dry cows will eat approximately 2 percent of bodyweight in the early dry period. It is important that a large portion of this feed is from forage that is either long stem or long-chopped to provide an optimum rumen environment. Corn silage should be limited to 50 to 60 percent of the forage. Depending on forage quality, grain may be fed in very limited amounts during the main portion of the dry period. Feed only enough grain to meet energy and protein needs. In addition, check vitamin and mineral levels so that any major excess or inadequacies are not going to happen. Feed intake should be watched closely with dry cows. In addition, if cows are offered different forages throughout the day, it is critical that individual cow preferences do not get in the way with a balanced diet.

Finally, provide a transition ration for all dry cows. Paying attention to detail and monitoring intakes of individual cows are important aspects of a transition program. Remember the goal of a transition diet is to provide the cow's digestive system with a transition to the milking cow ration yet not overload the non-lactating cow with an excess of any nutrient that will be detrimental to her metabolism.

CHARACTER COUNTS

From the time the first article in this column was published in October 1995, I have received several comments from readers concerning the subjects I have addressed.

One letter, in particular, really aroused some thoughts and is an appropriate lead for this story. The majority of that letter follows, with appropriate omissions for the sake of anonymity:

Dear Keith:

Many times I've answered the question, "Why do you raise all of those cows, pigs, sheep, chickens, etc.?" I answer 'We've got an Old MacDonalds Farm because we're in the business of raising kids into young adults — not raising animals. The animals are only some of the tools we're using."

As a former 4-H'er, I truly believe the 4-H program was the most beneficial part of my educational experiences.

I am a parent of three 4-H members and became a 4-H leader to hopefully allow my children and members that I lead to benefit also from similar experiences.

I can see rewards multiplied tenfold from every effort I put forth with my children. This year was so rewarding to me personally. My day job saw me spending 65+ hours a week for 3-4 weeks at a stretch at work. I saw my oldest son (his last year in 4-H) take charge of his, his sister's (12 years old), and his younger brother's (9 years old) 4-H projects completely. I heard him telling them hard work and paying attention to details will pay off in the end.

I saw all of them getting up at 6 a.m to lead steers, exercise lambs, and to drive pigs this summer before the day got too hot for these activities without any prompting from me. My three children grew up and matured this summer — more than I could ever have hoped for. The banners, trophies, and plaques displayed in our home are a constant reminder to this maturing of my children.

I've always stressed to them to work hard, do the best you can, be the best you can be, be a good sportsman, and you'll do just fine. The final placings aren't the goals, they're sometimes the extra bonus

Why is it that sometimes after trying to do your best with all of your projects that you end up winning and achieving too much in other people's minds? This is the time when the ugly side of 4-H raises its head. Why does jealously of other's achievements cause some people to condemn, try to intimidate, and also hurt others? Why is it that the ones complaining and criticizing the most are themselves lacking when it comes to the care and training of their animals? Why are these people never leading or driving an animal worth a second look? Aren't they missing the point completely? They only see banners, trophies, plaques, and money that others won. They don't see the self-development, leadership, responsibility, and the maturity that I can see as the real rewards!

Imagine what could and will happen if every extension professional, every 4-H leader, every 4-H parent, and every 4-H member somehow would get to read your series of columns, "It's Showtime." Imagine what could happen if all of the above would read the 4-H pledge, the 4-H motto, the Code of Ethics that we all sign, and live them. Just imagine!

I'm looking forward to future installments of "It's Showtime." My hats off to you for tackling this issue. Keep it up! Just imagine!

Respectfully yours,
(Name withheld)

The aforementioned letter enumerates several key points that are incorporated, to one extent or another, in a nationwide project called "Character Counts!"

The Josephson Institute of Ethics has developed a curriculum called "Exercising Character" that focuses on six core values. My first formal exposure to these six core values came in a publication printed in October 1995 by Donald R. Hammatt, 4-H specialist with Louisiana State University. These values should help to better describe the underlying values and purpose of junior livestock projects:

1. Trustworthiness — includes honesty, promise keeping and loyalty.

Examples: daily feeding and watering of animals, adherence to possession deadlines and withdrawal times on drugs, and only using approved drugs.

2. Respect — includes courtesy and proper treatment of people and things.

Examples: proper care and handling of animals, listening to and following advice of advisers, recognize that the junior animal project is dependent on the 4-H'er.

3. Responsibility — includes the pursuit of excellence, accountability and perseverance.

Examples: daily feeding and watering, going beyond routine care by giving additional time and attention to detail to produce a winner, adherence to deadlines for entries and arrival at a show, never giving up in the showring.

4. Fairness — involves consistently applying rules and standards appropriately for different age groups and abilities.

Examples: feeding only approved livestock rations and using only approved drugs, accepts winning or losing with grace, and follow recommended practices for conduct in the showring and while fitting and grooming animals.

5. Caring — promoting the well-being of people and things in a young person's world. It denotes action and not just feeling.

Examples: providing a clean area for animals and treating animals humanely and fellow exhibitors with compassion at all times

6. Citizenship — includes making the home, community, and country a better place to live for themselves and others.

Examples: accepting instructions, winning or losing with grace, helping others at junior shows, teaching younger members, and ensuring that your meat animal is safe for human consumption.

This list is by no means complete, but is presented to further define the positive influences that junior livestock projects can have on the development of young people. The tasks of daily feeding and watering of animals contribute to the strengthening of at least four of the six core values.

It is also important to realize that the size of the animal does not have any effect on the values that young people develop. Thus, a child probably will gain the same character values by caring for a lamb, hog, or steer as a child who cares for a rabbit, dog, or turkey.

One responsibility of adults is to ensure that young people have the opportunities available to them to develop these character values. Another responsibility of adults is to ensure that all exercises that children are practicing are building positive character traits. If adults do any part of the work necessary for a successful junior livestock project, the young person does not have that opportunity.

Recognizing that some tasks must be performed with adult supervision and (or) assistance to ensure safety, the idea is for adults to insist that young people do all they are capable of doing.

4-H is part of the Character Counts! Coalition that has committed to help young people learn the six pillars of character. More than 450 cities, Congress, the U.S. Department of Education, and organizations representing 35 million people have agreed that these character traits are needed by our young people.

"Why do we raise all those animals as part of youth programs?"

Our answer should be, "Because we're in the business of raising kids into young adults — not raising animals. The animals are only some of the tools we're using."

Lastly, we have to acknowledge our responsibility of raising kids into young adults — remembering constantly that Character Counts!

Case Corp. Takes Magnum On Tour

RACINE, Wis. — A unique marketing event from Case Corporation is expected to put 10,000 farmers into the seats of Case IH Magnum™ tractors that are touring North America in an agricultural equipment "showdown."

"Were taking our comparison on the road," said Mitch Kaiser, Case marketing manager, tractors. "More than 50,000 Magnum tractors are already in the field. With this tour, we're giving even more farmers the opportunity to experience the superiority of the new Magnum line."

The tour, which launched recently from the Case IH Magnum tractor manufacturing plant in Racine, Wis., will be on the road for about seven months. It consists of a fleet of specially painted semi-trucks which will take Magnum and competitive tractors to participating Case IH dealerships across North America.

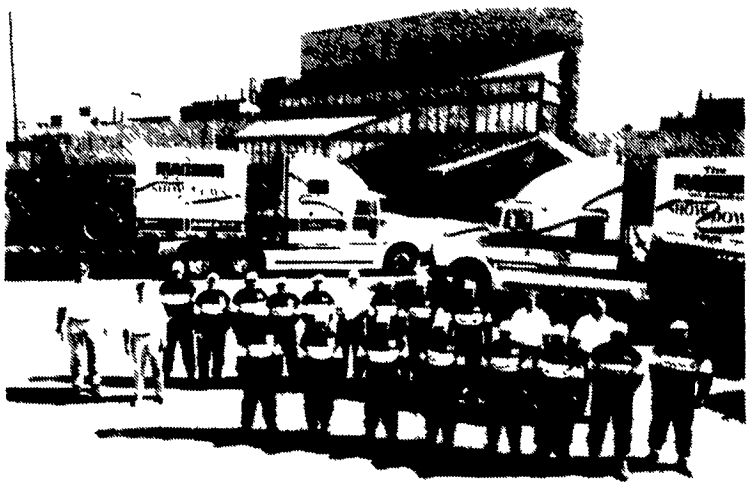
While at the dealerships, Kaiser said, dealership personnel and Case field support teams will demonstrate key Magnum tractor features and advantages to attendees. "But the key is that the farmers will have the chance to get up in the seat and try the equipment out for themselves," Kaiser said.

"This won't be a showroom type setting," he continued. "These tractors are going into the field, and they're going to be put to the test. We want farmers to compare these tractors in real-life farming applications."

The tour was recently announced to Case IH dealers and their salespeople in Phoenix where they were attending a sales and product training program titled Desert Showdown. The theme of the program, according to Kaiser, was based on Case's high level of confidence in its products.

"Every Case IH tractor, every combine, every implement is designed to meet customer needs," he said. "We're proud to deliver superior products — proud enough to call it a 'showdown.'"

More than 1,800 Case IH dealer sales representatives attended the training sessions.



The Magnum™ Showdown Tour, which recently launched from Case Corporation's Magnum tractor manufacturing plant in Racine, Wis., is setting up in fields across North America to give thousands of farmers the opportunity to "try the equipment out for themselves," according to Mitch Kaiser, Case marketing manager, tractors.

Heindel Awarded EAC Designation

YORK (York Co.) — Edward N. Heindel, chief appraiser of York Farm Credit, ACA, has been awarded environmental assessment consultant (EAC) professional designation, according to Dr. Gary Deane, executive director of the National Society of Environmental Consultants.

The designation was conferred after completion of educational requirements, agreeing to a strict code of ethics, and meeting other established criteria for qualification. Requirements also included preparation of actual real estate environmental risk reports.

"Each member designated as environmental assessment consultant has agreed to subscribe to the highest professional standards of conduct required by the organization's code of ethics," said Deane.

The Society certifies those members of real estate related industries who have attained a high degree of excellence in the art and science of environmental assessment.

Elanco Names

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Elanco Animal Health has named Lee Gervais poultry sales representative for the Mid-Atlantic region.

Gervais will supervise all sales activities in Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, and Virginia.

Gervais comes to Elanco with diverse experience in the poultry industry. Prior to joining Elanco, Gervais worked as a territory manager for Rhone-Poulenc Animal Nutrition. In that position, he supervised four product lines, provided support and training to major feed companies and premix blenders, and developed national marketing plans.

Previous positions include district manager with Wayne Feed Division of Continental Grain and general manager with Fluegel Elevator Inc., Rosemount, Minn. Gervais was graduated from Ohio State University with a bachelor's degree in animal science.

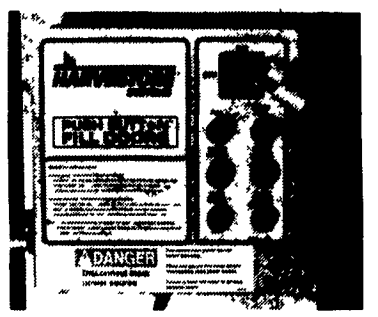
Harvestore Presents Push-Button System

DEKALB, Ill. — A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc. (AOSHP) introduces a new push-button system that will automatically open and close the center fill and air exhaust door on top of a Harvestore® structure and position the center fill chute.

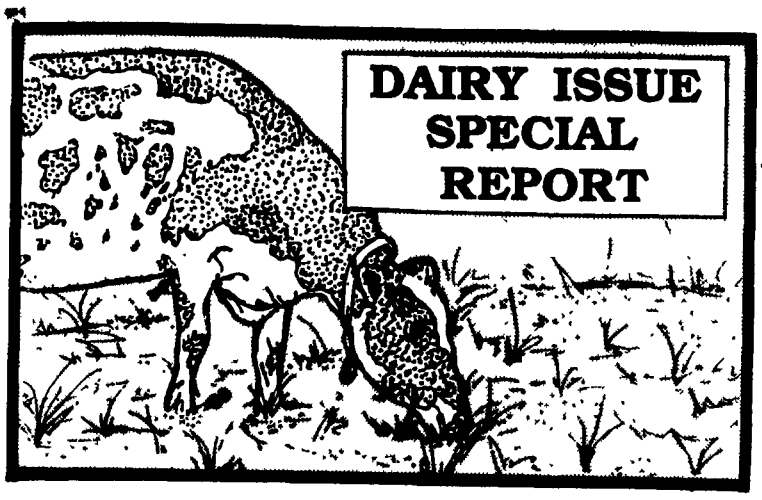
Operated from a simple convenient control panel at ground level, the new Push-Button Fill Doors™ system works with the Harvestore brand Model 135 center fill assembly for loading grain and forage into a structure.

This automated, touch-of-a-button system replaces the need for climbing the structure to open and close doors before and after filling. Push-bottom technology allows for repeated opening and closing of the doors during filling breaks of any length.

This option in technology is now available for installation on all new and existing Harvestore structures with external breather bag systems.



A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc. (AOSHP) introduces a new push-bottom system that will automatically open and close the center fill and air exhaust door on top of a Harvestore® structure and position the center fill chute.



WILL THERE BE DAIRIES?

Walter B. Wurster
Chester County
Extension Agent

Will there be dairy farms in Chester County in the year 2025? If there are, what will they be like?

I would disagree with the doomsayers who predict that Chester County will be engulfed by metropolitan Philadelphia. I believe there will still be a substantial dairy industry in the county 30 years from now because of the character of the people who farm and the quality of the land that they till.

Thirty-six years ago I purchased a farm in Bucks County and I began milking 22 cows. Many people felt it was a foolish venture because farms were supposed to be sold for houses at that time in the county.

The operation changed over the years. Cow numbers increased to 40 in the old barn, 65 in a new stall barn, and finally to 100 with the addition of a freestall barn. In addition to the 132-acre home farm, rented land increased from 40 acres to 160 acres.

The biggest changes over the years, however, were in management practices. Replacing a feed scoop with a TMR mixer, two-plow gasoline tractors giving way to diesel-powered tractors with chisel plows, and basic feed rations being replaced by sophisticated computer-generated dairy rations are just a few of the changes.

Today the farm is in the Pennsylvania Farmland Preservation Program and has been sold to a dairyman and his family who will continue a dairy operation. Granted, the number of farms and particularly dairy farms has steadily decreased over the past 36 years. However, there is still a place for the dairy family that wants to continue.

In Chester County, the dairy industry is a major segment of the agricultural community, especially in the western part of the county. How will this strong dairy farming heritage survive and prosper in the next century?

The key words are "change with the times." If I had stayed with the practices that I learned in college and were prevalent in the 1950s, my farming operation would have disappeared years ago. I don't believe all dairy operations are going to become large cow milking factories. There will still be a place for smaller low input, low-cost operations, but even these farms must keep up with the latest technology in order to remain competitive and prosperous. As one dairyman said, "I want to milk just enough cows so that many family can have enough income to do the things they wish."

Of course there needs to be some other changes, such as tax reform to relieve farmers of an unfair property tax burden. Also farmers and their suburbanite neighbors will have to learn to live together. This will take common courtesy and understanding on both sides. Homeowners in an agricultural area must realize that there are odors and noise that accompany a farming operation at certain times of the year. In order to enjoy fields of waving grain, new-mowed hay and grazing cattle, certain farming practices must take place.

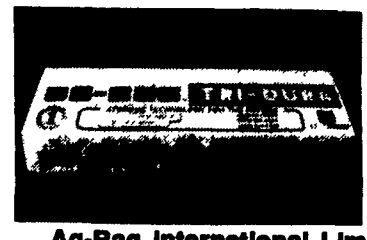
Farmers, on the other hand, cannot have the attitude, "I was here first and I'll farm however I want." They should try to keep the inconveniences to their neighbors to a minimum by plowing down manure, allowing traffic to pass on the road when possible, and in general being a good neighbor.

The moral of this discussion is that the dairy farmer that will be operating in Chester County in the year 2025, whether he is large or small, will be using up-to-date practices. The message is that a person's education never stops. Those who take advantage of educational opportunities from extension and agribusiness, and collect information from publications, televisions, and computers, and implement new practices on their farms, will be the ones who will be successful in the next century.

Bag Has 3-Ply Construction

WARRENTON, Ore. — Ag-Bag International Limited has introduced Ag-Bag® Tri-Dura™ bag.

This bag with its three-ply construction, is unique to the silage bag industry because of its three layers and high-tech engineering. The outer white layer protects from the ultraviolet rays of the sun. The clear middle layer provides strength. The black inner layer keeps silage and grain cooler. This prevents the greenhouse effect of the monolayer films of other bags.



Ag-Bag International Limited has introduced Ag-Bag® Tri-Dura™ bag.

The Dura Film™ used in this process is a stronger, more resilient film. Dura Film™ is a new, proprietary materials process only found in Ag-Bags® bags.

Calf Raffle Highlights Wills Fair

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

WEST FRIENDSHIP, Md. — The Wills Spring 4-H/FFA fair, one of four regional spring livestock shows for Maryland youth, was held at the Howard County fairgrounds here recently.

Exhibitors and animals alike struggled to keep cool as the temperature soared to 96 degrees.

The fair is named in honor of the late Richard N. Wills, who was a leader for Maryland youth involved in agricultural activities for more than 50 years.

This year's fair was dedicated to Catherine Rauschenberg, longtime Carroll County 4-H volunteer and rabbit department superintendent, in appreciation of her dedication and support of the rabbit department.

A highlight of the day was a calf raffle with proceeds going to support the Maryland 4-H dairy judging team's trip to Edinburgh, Scotland in June for the international show. The summer calf, MD-Maple-Lawn Slocum Lilac, is from a dam that has more than 25,000 pounds of milk as a 3-year-old. She was donated by Maple Lawn Farm, Fulton, Md., and Sire Power. Tickets were purchased by people as far away as California and even some foreign countries. Gary Flook of Damascus, Md. won the calf.

One hundred eighty animals were exhibited in the dairy department. There was one show for Holsteins and one for all other dairy breeds. Judging the dairy shows were Allen McClure, Kelly VanSant, Mike Iager, Gus Schwartzbeck, and Roy Coale.

Supreme dairy champion was C. Blondin Astre Preference, the grand champion Holstein shown by 15-year-old Amy Iager, Howard County. The senior 2-year-old Starbuck daughter is milking 85 pounds a day. Amy, the daughter of Gene and Kathy Iager of Fulton, Md., also showed the junior champion Holstein, Tri-Day Jenny Jones, a summer yearling. Amy is a member of the Howard County dairy club and the Howard County dairy goat club.

No reserve supreme champion was named.

This was the first year the rabbit show at Wills was sanctioned by the American Rabbit Breeders Association (ARBA), according to Michael Wade, rabbit show committee co-chairperson. Two hundred seventy-one rabbits and cavies were entered in the show. Judge for the show was Owen Yates.

Best in show honors went to a castor Rex buck exhibited by Jen Wade of Carroll County. The senior buck was also voted best of breed. Jen is the 16-year-old daughter of Michael and Sherry Wade of Sykesville.

The grand champion large breed rabbit went to a French Lop shown by 15-year-old Danielle Antenberg of Frederick County. Danielle, a member of the rabbit and cavy specialty club, is the daughter of Ed and June Antenberg.

In the poultry building 81 birds were exhibited. Judges for the poultry show were Doug Empie, Don Schrider, and Tim Ballenger.

Overall grand champion of the show was a Belgian d'Anver bantam hen shown by 13-year-old Angelique Livesey, Harford County. The bird was a home hatch, according to Angelique. It was also the grand champion Bantam. In addition, Angelique had the overall reserve grand champion, a Black Cochin Bantam hen that was also the reserve grand champion Bantam. Angelique is the daughter of James and Josephone Livesey of Bel Air, Md., and is a member of the Harford County Pioneers Club.

The grand champion large fowl was a single comb Rhode Island Red hen shown by Jason A. Ridinger, Carroll County. The reserve champion large fowl was exhibited by Amy T. Ridinger. It was a single comb Rhode Island Red cock.

Grand champion commercial bird was the champion heavyweight, a Sal Link hen shown by Evinn Pollock, Howard County. He also had the reserve grand champion commercial bird, a White Leghorn hen that was the champion lightweight fowl.

In the beef show, judges were Bruce Bennett and Danny Jones. One hundred fifty-seven steers were shown, and 56 beef heifers.

A 1,006-pound black Angus steer exhibited by Brett Fogle was named grand champion steer. Judge Danny Jones said the steer represented the breed in today's market exceptionally well. Brett, age 18, is the son of David and Sabra Fogle of New Windsor. He is a member of the Woodbine Winners Club in Carroll County.

Reserve grand champion steer went to a crossbred steer exhibited by Adrienne Wojciechowski. Judge Jones called the steer "the ideal crossbred."

One hundred nine breeding sheep were shown in the sheep show. Judging the show was Chris Seymour.

Andrew Keller showed his 150-pound yearling Dorset ram, "Thunder," to supreme champion ram. Judge Seymour selected the ram for his frame, size, and overall correctness. Thirteen-year-old Andrew, a member of the Frederick County 4-H club, is the son of Gary and Joyce Keller of Middletown.

"Exceptionally sound, with exceptional crimp, luster, and shine of fleece," was how Seymour described the supreme champion ewe, a yearling Rambouillet shown by Chava Roth. "Peppermint Twist" was a homebred ewe, according to 12-year-old Chava. Chava is the daughter of Bruce and Betty Roth, Eldersburg. She is a member of the West Friendship 4-H Livestock Club in Howard County.

Dairy goats were judged by Donald Marston. Fifty-three animals were shown.

Best doe in the show honors went to "MEM," a 3-year-old milking Alpine exhibited by Jason A. Ridinger. She was selected for her beautiful mammary system, according to judge Marston. Jason is the 11-year-old son of Arthur and Teresa Ridinger of Taneytown, Carroll County. He is a member of the Progressive Clovers 4-H Club.

Seventeen-year-old Anne McKeever of Laytonsville, Montgomery County, had the best baby doe in the show with Pocahontas Pride SFV - Hazel, the Nubian junior kid champion. The judge liked the kid's feet and legs and her dairy character.

Following is a list of fair results.

Isn't it time you updated that old milking parlor too?

You'll milk more cows in less time with Kipe Steel stalls, gates and rails. Updating your present herringbone parlor or switching from stanchions to a flat barn increases your throughput. Add a crowd gate and entrance lane and you'll move 15% more cows an hour.

You can modernize your existing barn. You don't need expensive construction because Kipe Steel customizes your new stalls to fit your present space. And our modular construction means anyone with farm welding skills can install it. (Kipe Steel guides you through the process with detailed instructions and phone support.)

You'll cut maintenance. You can hose down our clear span design in a lot less time. Even after years of daily cleaning, it stays rust-free. And Kipe Steel uses 12 gauge galvanized square tubing for strength and more durable weld joints that stand up under heavy use.

You'll spend less than you think. Compare the dollars and you'll find Kipe Steel is competitively-priced. But add in Kipe Steel's durability, easy installation, custom-sizing, and labor-saving design, and your investment will pay for itself.

FEEDING DAIRY COWS IN DIFFICULT TIMES

Jud Heinrichs
Dairy and Animal Science Dept.
Penn State

We keep seeing headlines that tell us the cotton seed inventories are very low, winter wheat has been devastated in many states, and of course the corn and soybean supply is so very low. This has got to be some of worst set of circumstances that we have had to face in many years in relation to dairy feed prices.

So what do we do about it? First and foremost, remember that Pennsylvania is a forage-raising state. Our strength as a major dairy state is that we generally do a good job at raising our homegrown forage.

High grain prices should only make us do a better job at this — if at all possible. Several items that will help us to do a better job with forage making are as follows:

- Cut alfalfa and grass at the proper stage of maturity. This may mean letting some corn silage go unplanted until after first cutting is off. This means starting a little early, so that on average your crop is cut by the proper stage of maturity.
- Harvest forages at the proper moisture levels. This means checking moisture levels when you think it is time to harvest. This may mean smelling up the kitchen because you need to use the microwave oven and don't have one (or a Koster Tester) in the barn office or feedroom yet. This may mean adding preservatives or additives to your forage if you know that you are harvesting near the edge or outside the window of optimum moisture levels.

The second item to help with the high price of grains is to work very closely with a competent dairy nutritionist. These people are professionals at what they do. They need to be aware of current prices and best alternatives for your program. You should insist on least-cost balanced rations.

Pay attention to the few particular feed additives that you may need, but minimize additives if at all possible. We are not at the point where you should cut back on grain, but we are at a point where we should not be overfeeding grain or using any unnecessary and costly extras.

Mt. Valley Farms Becomes Outstanding Cooperator

YORK SPRINGS (Adams Co.) — The Adams County Conservation District recently held its 21st annual awards dinner at the York Springs Fire Hall.

In all, more than 150 people came to honor the 1995 award winners and to hear guest speaker Walter Peechatka of PDA. Awards presentations included the Outstanding Cooperator, Farmer of the Year, and the Bill McCleaf Conservation Leadership Award.

The Outstanding Cooperator is given annually to a longtime District Cooperator who continues to work closely with the Conservation District and NRCS and exhibits good stewardship and conservation of our natural resources. Historically this awward has been given to a farmer or a farm operation. However, the 1995 honorees were not only recognized for the agricultural conservation work they have done but also the fine stewardship they have exhibited in the area of timber harvesting as well. Mountain Valley Farms and Lumber Products Inc. became a district Cooperater in 1956. At that time, Ken and Henry Taylor requested assistance with controlling erosion on the orchards they operate near Arendtsville. The practices they installed included contour orchards, grassed waterways, subsurface drainage, water control structures, and terraces. In more recent times, the timber harvesting side of the Mountain Valley Farms operation has shown the great care and respect the Taylors have for the environment. Mountain Valley Farms is meticulous at obtaining the necessary permits for stream and wetland encroachment activities if they should be necessary for a logging site.

During a logging operation, best management practices are consistently applied tocontrol erosion and sedimentation. They include wooden mats for wetland crossings, temporary bridges for stream crossings, and carefully placed logging trails and landing pads.

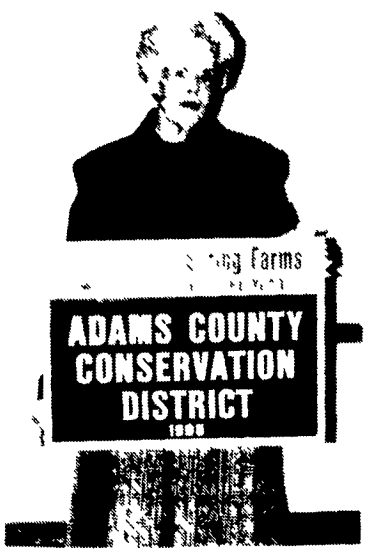
It is also worth noting that Company Forester Mike Waldron is an associate director of the conservation district board and he has worked very closely with the district in developing workshops to train other loggers in proper erosion control and best management practices. In order to thank them for their efforts in being good stewards of the land, Ken and Henry Taylor and Mountain Valley Farm and Lumber Products Inc. were honored.

The 1995 Farmer of the Year recipients were Margaret and Skip Strayer of Gettysburg. This award is given to honor the farmer who completed the greatest amount of conservation work over the past year.

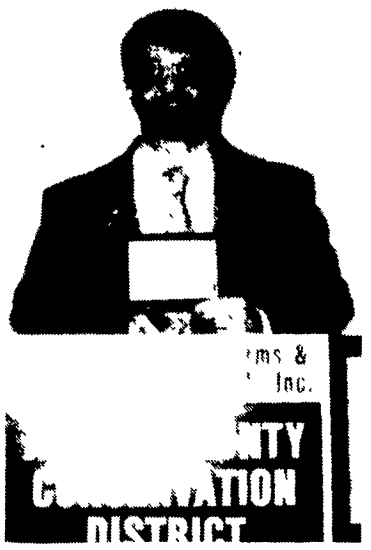
One look at the accomplishments of the Strayers in 1995 and it is plaim to see why they received the award. They applied to the Chesapeake Bay Program in March 1995 to receive assistance in controlling erosion on their 85-acre farm near Hunterstown, just west of Gettysburg. The District and NRCS identified several practices necessary to address the erosion none of which were easy to install nor cheap. However, it did not take much to coax Margaret and Skip into doing the work. Not only did they agree to do the work, they wanted to complete it all in one year. By September of 1995 they did just that. In five short months, they installed 2,140 feet of diversions, 1,260 feet of grass-lined waterways, 2,235 feet of storage terraces which included 1,400 feet of underground outlet pipe, and 2,500 feet of subsurface drainage. The estimated erosion reductions from these practices is more that 940 tons. For this staggering amount of work, the district honored the Strayers with a sign identifying them as the 1995 Farmer of the Year.

In 1994, the conservation district wanted to make a lasting tribute to retired employee Bill McCleaf for all the outstanding work and dedication he has contributed to the conservation movement in Adams County over his 35 years of service. In his honor, the district initiated the Bill McCleaf Conservation Leadership Award to be presented to a person or organization that promotes conservation of our natural resources not only through leadership but also by example. Getty Acres of Gettysburg, exemplifies this statement. Getty Acres, a partnership between the families of Larry, Ed, and Dan Wilkinson, has an impressive history of soil and nutrient conservation work and leadership in the agricultural community. Getty Acres is a 200 head dairy operation and 2,712 acres of owned and rented cropland. A small list of the acomplishments include soil conservation measures installed on both the owned cropland and rented ground, a Chesapeake Bay Contract for the enlargement ad improvement of an existing manure storage and the installation of a silage leachate containment system, and Larry received the Farmer of the Year Award in 1979 for the completion of the erosion control practices on the home farm and Ed and Dan received the same award in 1991 for the installation of an extensive amount of conservation work on a farm they rent. The Wilkinsons have participated in many of the district workshops never hesitating to give their opinion and encouraging the agricultural community to invest in sound soil and nutrient conservation practices. To better educate our urban neighbors about agriculture, the Wilkinsons hosted the 1995 Farm-City Festival where they opened the farm to more than 1,100 visitors anxious to learn about farm-life. To thank a famiily who always maintains a positive attitude toward the conservation of our natural resources, who leads in both word and action, the district was pleased to honor the leadership tradition established by Bill McCleaf by presenting the Bill McCleaf Conservation Leadership Award to Getty Acres.

A special award of appreciation was resented to Brad Cool, an employee of Jerry Justice Excavating, Gettysburg. Cool worked very closely with district and NRCS employees in the construction of a large amount of conservation practices on several Adams County farms in 1995. In total, Cool constructed the following in 1995: 4,245 feet of grass-lined waterways, 2,530 feet of diversions,2,235 feet of terraces, and two manure storage ponds. Also honored at the banquet was former chairman of the district board of directors, John K. Lott. Lott provided nine years of tireless dedication to the district and completed his term in December of 1995.

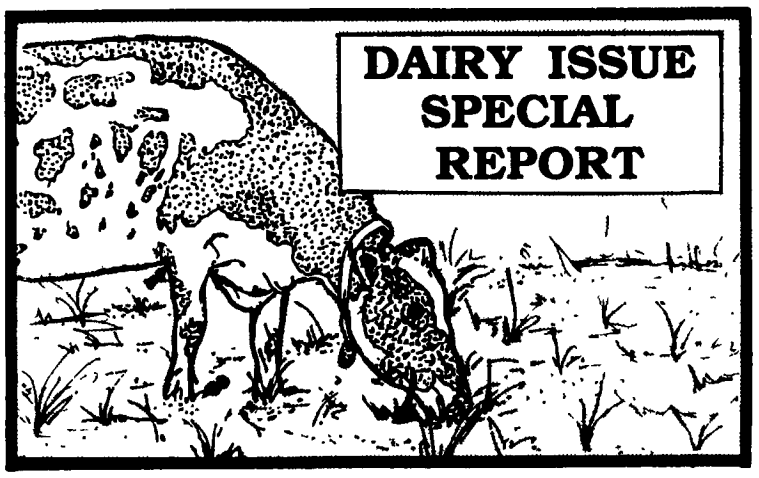


Margaret Strayer, owner of Indian Springs Farm, Gettysburg, displays the sign she received at the 1995 Farmer of the Year at the Adams County Conservation District Awards Banquet.



Henry Taylor of Mountain Valley Farm and Lumber Products Inc., Arendtsville,PA accepts a plaque and sign as Outstanding Cooperator at the 1995 Adams County Conservation District Awards Banquet.

Brad Cool, employee of Jerry Justice Excavating, received a certificate of appreciation from the Adams County Conservation District at its annual banquet in recognition of the outstanding amount of work of conservation practices he constructed in 1995.



COMMENTS ON ECONOMIES OF SIZE

Bud Schwart And Danny Klinefelter
Professors & Extension
Economists
Texas A&M University

Size is a relative concept. In the southwest, a 160-cow dairy is a small operation and a 700-cow operation is a small large dairy.

In the upper Midwest, a 50-cow operation is small and a 200-cow operation is a small large operation.

A 62-cow dairy operation may have lower per unit costs than a larger dairy, and if all things are equal but size, the lower cost operation will survive.

The size issue is a complicated puzzle. Studies done at many land grant universities over the past 20 years indicate that there are economies as firms increase in size. In other words, the per unit cost of producing 100 pounds of milk declines as a dairy increase in size.

These findings are consistent with economic theory. There are reasons for these cost decreases.

Inputs are not neatly divisible. For example, a double six herringbone will handle from 12 to 1,400 cows in a day. All other factors held constant, the cost per cwt of milk produced goes down as more milk is produced using it. Production can be increased either by increasing production per cow or by increasing the number of cows milked or a combination of both.

A principal objective of any dairy is to increase net worth. For most agricultural producers, land appreciation is the major mechanism for increasing net worth. A dairy milking 62 cows may produce 1,584,100 pounds of marketable milk per year or about 4,340 pounds per day. The dairy may gross $205,933 per year ($13/cwt) and net $31,682 per year (total expenses are estimated to be $11/cwt.). Out of this amount have to come family living and principal payments on term debt.

Assume those annual principal payments on term debt amount to $107 per cow per year. At this debt load, it is hard to build equity except through appreciation if family living withdrawals take out $25,000 and principal payments take the remainder.

A large dairy may milk 700 cows per day and sell about 49,000 pounds per day. The large dairy may gross $1,967,350 per year ($11/cwt.) and have total expenses of $1,788,500 or $10.00/cwt. The large dairy nets $178,850. Assume all principal payments on term debt amount to $107 per cow per year.

Also assume that family living totals to $36,000 per year for the large dairy. After subtracting debt service and family living, the operation would have $67,950 that would be reinvested into the operation.

External economies affect dairy survival. The 62-cow dairy markets 4,340 pounds of milk per day. The large dairy markets 49,000 pounds per day. The handler picking up the small dairy has to make 10 stops at dairies milking 62 cows and only one or, at most, two stops at 700-cow dairies to collect a day's marketings. At $10.00 per stop, it costs the handler $100 a day to pick up a route consisting of small dairies. If it costs $25 per stop to collect the milk from the 700-cow dairy, the handler has saved as much as $75 per day.

Input suppliers save money dealing with large operations as opposed to smaller operations. In fact, many times suppliers will pass part of this cost savings onto large operations as discounts or rebates.

Many times large operations are able to divide management among a team of specialists or hire consultants. Each specialist can concentrate on one aspect of management in order to maximize returns or minimize costs. In small operations, management is in the hands of one person. This single person likely must split managerial time and labor between several enterprises and parts of the dairy operation. It is unusual that one person can be an expert in all aspects of a dairy operation.

Consequently, some aspects of the operation do not operate at the most efficient level. Extension specialists have not blindly adopted a "get-larger-or-get-out attitude." Realistically, survival strategy is the prerogative of the operator. There are economies of size in dairy production.

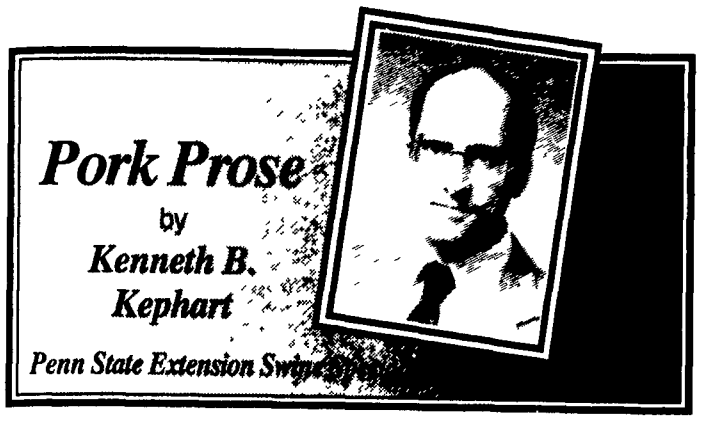
Farm Credit Awards Scholarships

YORK (York Co.) — Two new students joined the ranks of York Farm Credit scholarship recipients on Thursday, April 11 at the annual meeting in Chambersburg.

Kenneth C. Ketterer, board vice chairman, presented $750 college scholarships to Matthew D. Day and Mark R. Mosemann.

Matthew, a senior at St. Maria Goretti High School in Hagerstown, Md., plans to attend Penn State University at University Park in the fall. He will study veterinary science. Matthew, who is involved in various 4-H activities, is the son of Curtis and Ann Day, Shippensburg.

Mark, a 1995 graduate of Southern Fulton High School, is a freshman at Penn State, University Park. He is pursuing a dual degree in dairy and animal science and agriculture systems management and is involved in the Dairy Science Club and the Ag Student Council. Mark is the son of Richard and Linda Mosemann, Warfordsburg.



SUSTAINABLE SWINE PRODUCTION

Beginning this summer, county livestock extension agents and myself will be implementing a program to assist swine producers in the economic production of a residue-free product. We have entitled the program "Sustainable Swine Production." It has four components in which you can participate:

- Improving Percent Lean
- Implementation of Pork Quality Assurance
- Dietary Modification to Reduce Nutrient Excretion
- Environmental Quality Assurance.

Producers who successfully enroll in any of the components potentially benefit from improved productivity and enhanced product quality. Each producer will receive a certificate of accommodation for participating in the program and, if they agree, will be recognized publicly.

Improving Percent Lean

Information is recorded for each load of hogs marketed from your farm: lean percentage, live weight, carcass weight, fat depth, muscle depth, sort penalty.

Each quarter your county agent will provide you with a summary of the data. As you know, these factors are affected by genetics, feed formulation, and the precision of market hog selection. You and your agent, with my input as needed, will decide which factors need to be changed and develop strategies for improvement.

Many producers have made solid progress on this front, and may need little or no improvement. Others are in a position to make subtle shifts in management that could have a significant impact on the bottom line.

Implementation Of Pork Quality Assurance

The Pork Quality Assurance program is administered by the National Pork Producers Council and involves three levels. Level I and II provide the producer with the background and importance of handling of medications properly. Level III requires a more thorough understanding of the critical control points and involves a written commitment by the producer to maintain the enterprise within the guidelines of the program.

The enrollment on the Pork Quality Assurance program in Pennsylvania and surrounding states has not been a high as we would like:

Table 1: Number of farms enrolled on Pork Quality Assurance

As of 10/95	Level I	Level II	Level III	% Producers
Delaware	6	15	6	45
Maryland	20	71	9	21
New Jersey	3	3	2	24
New York	10	14	16	64
Pennsylvania	140	159	244	11

If you're already at Level III or working closely with a veterinarian on the Pork Quality Assurance Program, then you will probably not get involved with your agent on this aspect.

Dietary Modification To Reduce Nutrient Excretion

Several opportunities exist in this component to save money and to reduce the amount of nutrients wasted in the enterprise:

1. Adjusting protein and lysine levels to meet the genetic potential of the market hogs. With the advent of aggressive grade and weight programs, many producers increase dietary protein to maximize the lean content of their hogs. This is sometimes effective, but in many cases the response is either negligible or not economical. The result is a waste of nitrogen. Your county agent will help you review your lean percent averages, feed formulations, and average feed intake to determine optimal protein and lysine percentage.

2. Optimizing dietary phosphorus. Phosphorus levels should be reviewed to be certain that diets are not oversupplemented. In addition, an enzyme called phytase, sold under the trade name of Natuphos, is now approved for use in swine diets. This makes phosphorus in grains more available to the pig, which in turn allows you to feed a diet with a lower phosphorus concentration.

3. Use of crystalline lysine or lysine-HCl. Swine diets typically contain grain as the primary energy source and soybean meal as the primary source of protein. The amount of each ingredient is adjusted to meet the amino acid requirements for the pig. For most ingredients used in swine diets, the first limiting amino acid is lysine. When we formulate the feed to meet the lysine requirement for the pig, the amounts of all other amino acids will be adequate, but slightly higher than their respective requirements

By adding lysine to the diet, we can reduce the amount of soybean meal. This also reduces the crude protein (and therefore the nitrogen), but you can maintain the levels of all essential amino acids at or above their requirement.

This decreases nitrogen waste from your swine operation without sacrificing performance. The use of lysine is generally cost competitive, so that the low-protein diet is as economical as the standard diet. The substitution rule is 96.5 pounds of corn + 3.5 pounds of lysine-HCl = 100 pounds of 48 percent soybean meal. At today's prices of corn at $5.55/bushel, lysine at $1.26/pound and soybean meal at $14/cwt, both sides of the equation are worth about $14.

Environmental Quality Assurance

REDUCING THE POTASSIUM CONTENT OF FORAGES THROUGH FORAGE MANAGEMENT

Dr. Marvin H. Hall
Penn State

In recent years, potassium (K) content of forages has become a major concern on dairy farms because it plays a major role in cation balance of the feed ration which is a contributing factor for milk fever.

Increasing K level in the soil, due to current manure management strategies and excessive K fertilization, has resulted in relatively high K levels in many of our forages.

High K content, of forages increases the difficulty in balancing the ration with respect to divalent cations such as magnesium and calcium. However, there are a few management practices that can be implemented to reduce forage K content and minimize the potential problem before it occurs.

1. Apply manure or potassium-containing fertilizers only where they are recommended through soil testing. When soil potassium exceeds recommended levels it accumulates in forage plants without a concurrent increase in forage yield. This situation results in forages with excessively high K content.

2. Allow forages to mature as much as possible before harvest. There are some obvious forage quality trade-offs associated with this practice. However, K levels can be reduced by about 25 percent (e.g. 2.3 to 1.8 percent) if alfalfa is allowed to mature from bud to 25 percent flower before harvesting.

3. Harvest the forage as low to the ground as possible. The tops of forage plants contain higher concentrations of K than the base of plants. Harvesting close to the ground will result in lower K content forage.

4. Practices that keep more leaves in harvested forage will reduce K content because K tends to accumulate in the stem.

5. Include a grass the forage mixture. Grasses tend to have lower K content than legumes. However, on soils with excessive K levels grasses can also contain excessive amounts of K.

For all of these management practices to be effective, a good system of forage monitoring and inventory must be in place. Segregating forages based on K content and matching this with the needs of animal groups is essential. If high forage K levels persist then substituting some low K forage, such as corn stalks, for the high forage can help bring the total forage K content to a more manageable level.

Pork Prose

This program parallels the efforts by the National Pork Producers Council.

You and your county agent will review the manure handling and housekeeping practices for your operation. To become certified in Environmental Quality Assurance, your swine operation must have a nutrient management plan, you must show evidence of taking steps to minimize odors and tc being a cooperative neighbor in the community.

Your County Agent May Be Contacting You Soon

1. If you're not already at Level III for PQA, you should be. Here's an opportunity.

2. Becoming certified for Environmental Quality Assurance fits into the Nutrient Management Law, which will be mandatory for many operations anyway. It also helps you avoid complaints from odor or runoff and provides an opportunity for recognition for your stewardship efforts.

3. Improving lean percent and minimizing nutrient excretion need no justification, because they're directly related to profit.

If you don't hear from your agent in the next few weeks, feel free to contact me at (814) 863-3671.

Pulse Of The Dairy Market

SENECA FALLS, N.Y. — Federal Order 2 blend price for April is $13.48/cwt the same as the previous month. This is $1.23 more than the same month last year. This is good news for the hard pressed dairy farmer. Normally we can expect a downward slide in prices through the spring months reaching bottom in June.

It now appears that prices will not follow the normal seasonal pattern. We can expect prices to continue to climb through November. Conservative estimates are for the price to peak in November at $15. Optimists hope for $16 to $18 milk this fall. This would be nice but do not go to the bank with it at this time.

Class I utilization was up .6 percent in April over March, and all class prices were higher than a year ago.

Unfortunately rising feed prices will continue to eat away at the additional income resulting from higher prices. Corn prices continue to show increases in the futures market as well as in your grain bill.

Weather conditions in the Midwest and Northeast have delayed field work and retarded pasture growth. Late planting, even with good weather will result in lower yields. This will keep feed prices up during most of this year.

The Basic Formula Price (BFP) took a sudden jump in April of 39 cents. This unexpected change kept the price up for April milk.

On the National Cheese Exchange prices for cheese remained constant from March 1 through mid-April. In one week the price jumped 9.5 cents for barrel cheese and 10 cents for 40# blocks. Prices then remained at this increased level since that date. Barrel cheese is now $1.4475/pound and 40# blocks $1.4925 pound. Grade AA butter took a similar jump in mid-April on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange going from 72 cents to 82.5 cents. As of May 10, butter was being sold at 85 cents.

We should see an increase in the butterfat differential when the ice cream demand increases. Cool spring weather in many parts of the country have slowed demand.

Cow numbers continue to declilne but increased production per cow more than offsets the reduction in the national herd. Poor cull cow prices have slowed the declilne in cow numbers. Cull cows and calf prices have shown some strengthening in recent weeks as have dairy cow prices.

Demand for dairy products remains strong. Commercial disappearance of milk increases from year to year, but may be below last year's increase of 3.2 percent.

In 1995, 54 percent of New York cheese output was Italian cheese. Mozzarella products were up 10 percent. The new special added cheese pizzas has have helped fuel the demand.

CCC Assessment Passage of the 1995 Farm Bill, formally known as the Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform Act (FAIR) of 1996, eliminates the CCC assessment as of May 1996. Currently the assessment is 10 cents/cwt. Assessments collected in 1996 will be refundable to dairy farmers who produce less milk in 1996 than 1995. Applications can be filed starting January 2, 1997.

USDA announced that 37,896 producers received refunds of their 1995 assessment totaling 81.9 million dollars.

USDA has also announced that fluid milk processors voted to continue the fluid milk Promotion and Consumers Education program. Processors will pay 20 cents/cwt for all fluid products packaged for consumers in the contiguous 48 states. — United Ag Services May Newsletter

Structure Of The U.S. Dairy Farm Sector

RONALD D. KNUTSON
and
ROBERT B. SCHWART JR.

Milk is produced in every state within the United States.

Traditionally, milk has been produced on small diversified crop/livestock farms primarily concentrated in the Upper Midwest and Northeast; however, over the past decade milk production has been increasing dramatically in the Southwest and West.

Dairy farms located in the Southwest and West are typically very large (1,000 cows or more) and are specialized, producing very little if any crops.

In the past four decades, the number of U.S. dairy farms has decreased dramatically and the average size of dairy farms has trended sharply upward. While distinct regional differences in structure are apparent, the trend toward fewer but larger farms is evident throughout the country.

Structural Changes

There are many alternatives that could be used to measure structural change in the milk producer sector (e.g., changes in farm numbers, herd sizes, asset values, and employment in the sector). Traditionally, most of the emphasis has been placed on tracking changes in farm numbers and the number of cows on farms.

There is a great deal of controversy over the exact definition to use when determining the number of dairy farms.

The 1992 Census of Agriculture reported 155,339 farms with at least one milk cow in the United States. Using the number of farms having at least one dairy cow would tend to overstate the number of commercial dairy farms in the United States. For example, a farmer could have a milk cow on his/her farm and be classified as a dairy farm without ever selling any milk.

A second method used to define the number of farms is the Standard Industrial Classification (SIC) Definition.

Of the 155,339 farms defined by the Census definition, only 113,412, or 73 percent of the total were identified as dairy farms according to the Standard Industrial Classification, farms primarily engaged in the production of cow's milk having 50 percent or more of their sales from the dairy operation.

A third method that is often used identifies the number of dairy farms with annual sales of $10,000 or more. In 1992 there were 128,523 dairy farms with more than $10,000 in sales. The number of dairy farms with sales of $10,000 or more is 17 percent lower than those with one cow and is approximately 13 percent higher than the number with at least 50 percent of sales from dairy.

It is quite apparent that, depending upon the definition used, one could come up with a wide range of dairy farm numbers.

Regardless of the definition used, each indicates the number of dairy farms in the United States is decreasing. The number of dairy farms and the number of dairy cows has declined over the past nine agricultural censuses (38 years) while the average number of cows per farm has increased (Table 1).

Using the broadest definition of a dairy farm (farms having one or more cows), from 1954 to 1992 the number of farms decreased from just over 2.9 million to 155,339, a decrease of 95 percent.

While the number of dairy farms with small herds in the United States has been declining, the number of farms with large herds has been increasing (Table 2).

* In each region, the upper number is the percent of U.S. milk production in 1980 and the lower number is the percent of U.S. milk production in 1994.
Source: USDA, NASS, various years.

In 1964 about 96 percent of U.S. dairy farms had less than 50 cows (Table 2). By 1992, about 60 percent of the farms had less than 50 cows but over one-half of the dairy cows were located on farms having more than 100 cows (Table 3).

This means that while in terms of farm numbers the U.S. dairy industry is still dominated by relatively small herds (less than 50 cows), the majority of the production is on farms with more than 100 cows.

The changes in the national dairy herd have been significant but aggregate numbers tend to mask the regional shifts in milk production.

The seven regions indicated in Figure 1 account for about 90 percent of U.S. milk production. The regions designated are designed to encompass the major U.S. milk production areas while at the same time being relatively homogeneous in terms of structural trends and production conditions.

The upper numbers for each region in Figure 1 indicate its percentage of U.S. milk production in 1980. The lower number represents the region's percentage of U.S. production in 1994. Production has been shifting in the direction of those regions having the largest average herd size.

As indicated in Table 1, the average number of cows per farm in the United States had increased substantially. However, all regions have not experienced the same rate of increase and there is also a wide disparity in the average herd size across regions.

Three regions (Pacific, Southern Plains, and Southeast) have experienced more rapid growth in herd size than the remaining regions. As of 1992, the average number of cows per farm in the Pacific and Southeast regions were about five and three times as large as the average herd size in the Upper Midwest region, respectively.

The average herd size in the Upper Midwest, Corn Belt, and Appalachian regions had not reached 50 in 1992.

There are numerous factors that have contributed to the structural change in the dairy industry. One of the most basic is the difference in cost of production across regions of the United States.

Costs of Production

Table 5 presents the USDA average cost of production results for the 1990-92 period by region. The data are very revealing in terms of short-run and long-run economic forces affecting the U.S. dairy industry.

The bottom line returns to management and risk per cwt were the highest in the Pacific, Southeast and Southern Plains regions which are characterized by large dairies (Table 4). These were likewise the regions with the lowest total economic costs per cwt.

In these three regions, the milk price ranged from $11.79 per cwt. in California to $15.46 in Florida. The low California price reflects the cost and profit based policies of its state pricing agency. The high price in Florida reflects federal order geographic basing point pricing policies that raise the class I price based on distance from Eau Clair, Wisconsin.

The highest total economic costs are in the Appalachian and Corn Belt regions. These regions have experienced the greatest decline in share of U.S. milk production (Figure 1).

The traditional milk production areas of the Upper Midwest and Northeast have total economic costs in the $14-15 per cwt. range. The Northeast receives the benefit of a higher milk price — being located farther from the Eau Clair basing point.

Of all regions, the Upper Midwest has the lowest cash expenses of $9.71 per cwt. This reflects costs to farms that grow much of their own feed and have plentiful supplies of roughage in the region.

The low variable (cash) costs in the Upper Midwest suggest that, in comparison with other regions, they are relatively insensitive to short-run declines in milk prices.

However, one of the key economic indicators for long-run adjustment of $1.62 per cwt. compared with only 73 cents in the Pacific region.

The Upper Midwest, like the Northeast, Corn Belt and Appalachian regions has large amounts of capital tied up in buildings and equipment. The salvage value of the buildings (dairy barns and silos) is very low outside dairying. With this situation, dairy farmers in these regions continue in dairying up to the point where replacement of physical facilities becomes a necessity. At that point, many of them drop out of dairying.

However, there is a set of aggressive next generation dairy farmers in the Upper Midwest and Northeast. They are developing the means for expanding their operations utilizing free stall housing.

Business Organization

The 1992 Census of Agriculture categorizes the business organization of the 113,412 dairy farms as follows:

Individual/family dairy farms	80.43%
Partnership dairy farms	15.54%
Corporate dairy farms:
a. Family held	3.54%
b. Other than family held
1. Fewer than 10 stockholders	0.13%
2. More than 10 stockholders	0.02%
Not classified	0.35%

Clearly, while many dairy farms are large, most are family owned and operated. Dairying is not dominated, in any sense of the word, by corporate ownership.

The fundamental observation that can be made relative to the dairy farm organization data is that family dairy farms continue to be the basic production unit in the milk industry.

Structural Change

Various hypotheses have been advanced attempting to explain why the structure of dairy farming is so diverse across different regions of the United States.

Factors such as differences in topography, climate, history, cultural base, complementary and alternative farm enterprises, and resource endowments and economies of size have generally been identified as explanations for the differences.

A number of factors have combined to bring about the changes in structure of the milk producer sector that have been noted. The overriding factor can simply be described as the increased productivity of milk cows. Increased production per cow has meant that fewer milk cows were needed to supply the market. Given the increase in average herd size, it is likely that fewer dairy farms are needed to sustain the dairy enterprise.

In 1994, milk production per cow in the United States reached a record 16,128 pounds. The 1994 level represented a 204-percent gain over the 5,314 pounds per cow average achieved in 1950. On the average, production per cow increased by 246 pounds each year through the 1950-1994 period.

The primary impact of these increases in production per cow, given the fact that aggregate demand has increased at a slower pace (up by 32 percent, from 114 billion pounds to 150.6 billion pounds over the 44 years from 1950 to 1994) has been the requirement for fewer milk cows.

Between 1950 and 1994, milk cow numbers decreased by 12.4 million head, or by 57 percent. Yet, total production increased due to the increase in production per cow.

In effect, where two cows milked before, only one is needed now.

Obviously, other factors have entered the picture, especially the substitution of capital for labor. But productivity as measured by production per cow, has been the fundamental factor pushing the changing structure of dairy farming.

The Next 10

Two basic questions need to be addressed regarding future structural change:

- Are technology and competitive forces going to continue or even accelerate productivity gains such that concentration of the milk producer sector will move at an even faster rate into the next century?
- Should dairy price-income policy be designed to preserve a certain structure of dairying; or should policy be more concerned with providing alternatives for dairy farms that are no longer competitive in the milk industry?

The evidence with respect to continued productivity gains seems clear. The 1992 report on agricultural technology of the Office of Technology Assessment includes the following comment:

The dairy industry will most likely be the first to adopt technologies from the biotechnology era of the 1990's, and also will feel the first profound impacts of the emerging technologies. Biotechnology advances in reprodutive technologie, animal health technologies, and growth promotants will make major contributions to the sector. In particular, bovine somatotropin (bST) ... will significantly increase milk production. Bovine somatotropine ... will increase milk yield per cow in 1 year to what it would take 10 to 20 years to achieve with current reproductive technologies.

While the productivity gains projected by OTA may be high most agree that substantial increases will occur.

With the anticipated large gain, average production per cow could reach 19,000 pounds in only a few years after adoption and would continue the competitive squeeze across the milk producer sector.

Demand projections for the year 2000 indicate that the market will approximate 170 billion pounds of milk at that time.

A national dairy herd of only 8.95 million cows averaging 19,000 pounds of milk per cow would produce the required 170 billion pounds of milk.

A national dairy herd of 8.95 million milk cows represents an 11 percent reduction from the present herd of 9.5 million milk cows.

Given these generally accepted observations regarding key market forces affecting the U.S. milk industry in the next 10 years, including the wide variability in farm size and profitability, it is evident that in pursuing the more market-oriented dairy price-income policy begun in the early 1980s and accelerated in the dairy title of the Food, Agriculture, Conservation, and Trade Act of 1990, the number of dairy farms will continue to decrease at a significant rate.

Making Young, Thin Cows Think They're Fat Helps Reproduction

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Adding protein to a young, thin cow's diet could increase its chance of being bred again, said Stephen Boyles, Ohio State University Extension beef specialist.

Cows in good body condition have the best reproduction rates. However, the long, cold winter left many of Ohio's cattle too skinny. Researchers at New Mexico State University have been investigating how protein may act as a switch to turn on the reproductive system of young, thin cows, Boyles said.

Fatter heifers have higher blood concentrations of the hormone insulin. And insulin injections have been shown to increase the ovulation rate in thin cows, Boyles said. Protein stimulates the release of insulin in a cow. When a thin cow eats additional protein, its insulin level can increase to the level in normal cows.

Protein sources that cause the greatest release of insulin also cause the greatest release of lutenising hormone, or LH, Boyles said. LH is the hormone that stimulates a cow's ovary to produce eggs.

"They think the added nutrition increases insulin, which turns on the reproductive system sooner than it normally would," Boyles said.

The protein source needs to be carefully selected. The best way to get protein into an animal is by feeding a ruminally undegradable or bypass protein as part of a feed supplement, Boyles said. These proteins bypass the cow's stomach and are digested in the intestines, causing a greater release of insulin.

The sources used in the studies were feather meal and blood meal. Other sources are fish meal, corn gluten meal, brewers grains and 20 percent dehydrated alfalfa.

Bypass protein should be fed in combination with a nonbypass protein, such as soybean meal or urea. The feed supplements used in the research studies were about half protein, Boyles said. The other half can be either hay or grains. A cow shoul receive 1.4 to 2 pounds of this supplement daily until breeding.

This technique does not work well in older cows, because the influence of insulin seems to less important for their reproduction, Boyles said. In fact, increased insulin appears to be of little or no advantage for improving reproduction rates in cows over three years of age.

"Most condition problems are normally with young cows, because they are still growing and nutrients that could go into reproduction are going into skeletal growth," Boyles said.

These supplements shouldn't be fed to cows that are not thin. To a normal cow, the bypass protein could actually have a negative effect on fertility. Observation is the best way a producer can determine which cows would benefit from this technique.

"If you can tell a yound cow has lost some weight by looking at it, it probably would benefit from the supplement," Boyles said.

THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

"HOW WILL YOU BE STORING YOUR VALUABLE FORAGES AND GRAINS IN THE 21st CENTURY?"

It's not too early to begin planning your storage and feeding systems for the year 2000 and beyond.

As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency: this can have as great an influence on PROFIT as milk price changes.

Protect your valuable feeds from the elements... increase the efficiency of your feeds, your animals, and your labor.

At SOLLENBERGER SILOS CORP. we know a lot about feed storage and handling... we've been in the business since 1908. If your plans call for new feed storage, give us a call... we'd like to contribute to your success!!

"IT'S NOT WHAT YOU HARVEST, BUT WHAT COMES OUT OF STORAGE THAT COUNTS." QUALITY AND QUANTITY...

MEMBER: International Silo Association/PA Forage and Grassland Council/AM. Society of Agricultural Engineers/Crop Storage Institute.

Quality Trusses Must START with QUALITY LUMBER!

MSR Lumber
Truss lumber presents unique challenges! We cannot tolerate warp, bow or twist in the chords and maintain absolutely straight roof-lines and flat ceilings.
Years of selection has shown MSR (Machine-Stress Rated) lumber quite immune to such problems.
Further selection involves tree-species and growing climate. The close-grain, straight-grain, tiny-knot characteristics of SPF (Spruce-Pine-Fir) grown in the Pacific Northwest has come out best in further immunity - and has become the Black Bear Standard. Eastern and southern lumber simply falls short in those essentials.

Laser-Layout
LASER-LAYOUT of each truss on the assembly table verifies alignment and saw-cut of each chord, web and joint - plus size and positioning of each connector plate. At this stage with this lumber, what LAYS STRAIGHT, STAYS STRAIGHT!

The Best of the Best

The Wheeling 2 oz. Seal of Quality coating represents the best of the best in the Wheeling Corrugating line of premium galvanized roofing and siding. Every panel that carries the 2 ounce coating assures you are getting the toughest, the most durable, the most corrosion resistant galvanized sheet available in today's marketplace.

2oz. Seal of Quality Wheeling

Genuine Old-Time Quality

Every Wheeling 2 oz sheet is manufactured from heavy gauge steel, topped with an extra thick zinc coating, and formed into profiles that contribute strength and good looks Build with a Wheeling 2 oz sheet and you'll be working with the kind of durability and dependability that's been a standard in the industry for almost 100 years

The Proof is in the Process

The performance behind the Wheeling 2 oz Seal of Quality is possible because of Wheeling's patented Cook-Norteman manufacturing process This technology allows a more consistent quality product, and a more uniform coating with unsurpassed zinc adhesion The process takes more handling and more time, but the end result is a super premium panel that has its own limited 20 year performance warranty

Dimensions and Specifications

If your building plans call for roofing and siding materials with exceptional corrosion resistance minimum upkeep and old time toughness you ll want to check the specs of Wheeling 2 oz Seal of Quality galvanized

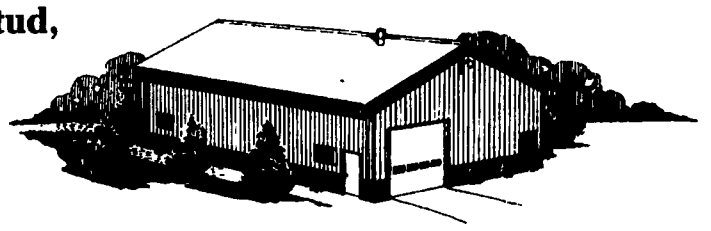
The Building you want. The Lease you need.

Whether your new farm or commercial building is of pole, timber column, stud, steel or block construction; choose Telmark lease financing.



Telmark has been leasing equipment for over 30 years. Did you know that we've been leasing new buildings for that long too? Consider the features:

- Tax deductibility and accelerated write-offs: Lease payments are income tax deductible over the term of the lease compared to 20-year depreciation of farm buildings and 39-year depreciation of commercial buildings. Could reduce tax liability this year.
- Low upfront costs: Beginning costs may be as little as one monthly lease payment.
- Flexible lease term: Building lease terms start aggressively at five years but may be as long as ten, twelve, or fifteen years.
- Customized payment schedules: Lease payment schedules match your cash flow. Payment options include monthly, quarterly, annually, as well as, skip or specially designed seasonal payments.

How do you start leasing a building from Telmark? Talk with a qualified builder to determine your needs and building cost. And call your Telmark representative:

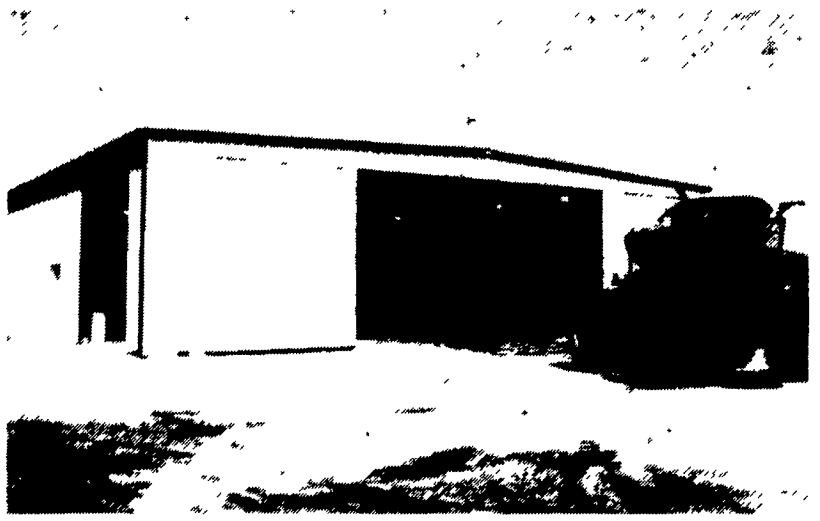
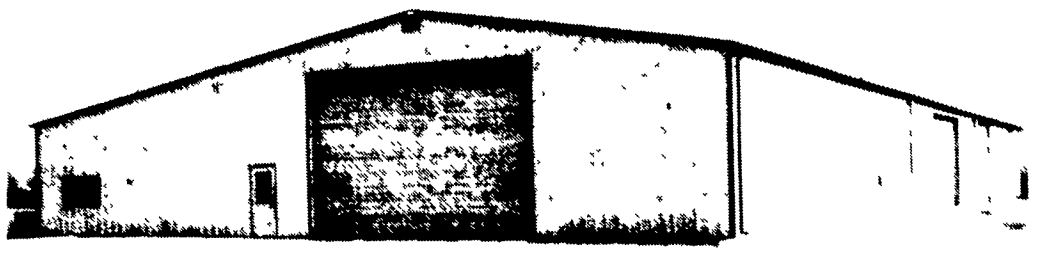
BUTLER™ RURAL-BUILDER

No matter what type of building you're looking for shop, retail store, community building or storage facility - we build durable Butler® rural steel buildings with attractive architectural appeal.

Butler shop buildings are built to give you years of high-use value, low maintenance and maximum comfort. Solid, practical design and rugged steel construction make Butler buildings durable and functional for years to come.

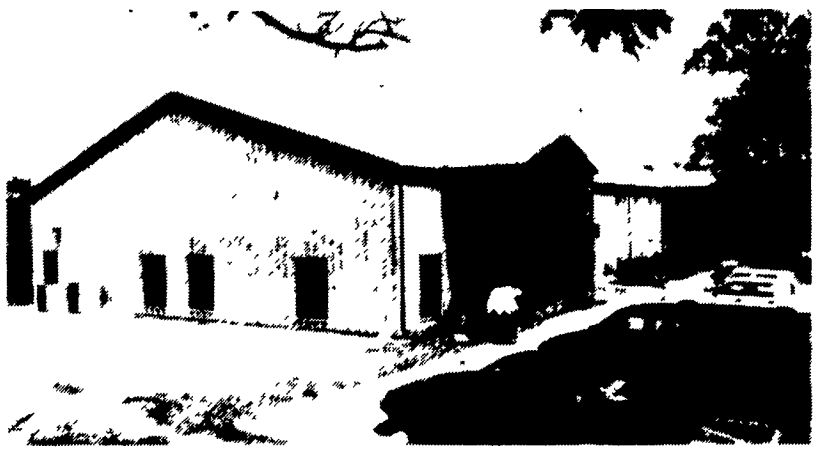




Outside: Your Choice

The appearance of your new building is a critical factor. You just tell us what you'd like and we can build it!

Our structural systems are designed to give you complete freedom in planing the size and shape of your building.



Products that Perform from the Building Systems Industry Leader

You can count on Butler to provide the best materials available.

For example, our standard exterior coating for painted panels is Butler-Cote® 500 FP finishing system, a full strength, 70% Kynar 500® & Hylar 5000® coating. Our coating will resist chalking and fading better than industry standard coatings.

Our fasteners represent another area where Butler offers more for your money. The Scrubolt™ fastener by Butler, available on the Butlerib wall and roof systems and the Shadowrib® wall system, is larger and more resistant to the pull-out forces of wind than industry standard fasteners.

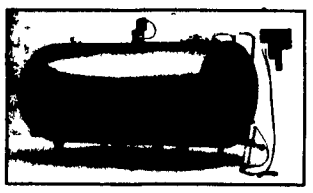
MUELLER
DAIRY FARM EQUIPMENT

Scroll-Compressor Technology

New in 1994



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

Equipment cost is not the only cost of cooling milk

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31 000	$28 000
Cost of electricity @ 08 kW for 12 000 lbs milk day for 10 years	$17 550	$22 850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48 550	$50 850
Savings	$ 2 300

INTRODUCING...

SWEETCAKE 16NU

FEED SUPPLEMENT BLOCKS FOR THE LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY

- High Natural Protein • No Urea • Fat Enhanced
- Balanced Supplementation • Safe For All Livestock Classes

Sweetcake Advantages

- Aids in making the best use of your available forage
- Promotes a more even herd consumption, with 24-hour availability to all cattle
- Reduces labor to save you money and give you more time to make important management decisions
- Supplies much-needed vitamins and minerals that forage lacks to help your cattle perform to their genetic potential
- Supplies fat in most formulations to enhance energy intake

For Dairy

- Replacement heifers that grow out soundly and economically
- Body condition on dry cows so they can return to lactation, producing at the maximum potential
- Healthier herds, with essential trace minerals that help prevent metritis, retained placenta and other health problems
- Prompt re-breeding, thanks to essential nutrients

For Beef

- Stronger, healthier calves at birth
- Heavier Calves at weaning
- Cows that cycle better for improved conception rates
- Cows that milk better to raise a better calf

- AVAILABLE IN 200 LB. SIZE -

9 HORSES & MULES

Cut stall clean-out time by 50% with a Millcreek Compact Spreader.

"The spreading efficiency sure outweighs the price. This is a wonderful machine. I couldn't be more pleased."
EARL SINKS - Brock, Texas

Say "Good-Bye" to back-breaking manure handling and cut stall clean-out time in half. Hook an affordable Millcreek Compact Spreader to your 10 hp garden tractor, take it right to the stall for easy loading. No more wheelbarrow

Millcreek Spreaders last and last
Since spreaders are our specialty, we put more into each one For example our 20-year guaranteed floor will never rust or rot. Positive chain drive provides excellent spreading action. And tough steel construction holds up to rugged farm use Seven sizes, for 1-horse barns to 50-horse stables. PTO and ground drive models available

Have you tried toasted grains?

Consider these advantages over traditional roasting methods:

- ◆ Consistent by-pass proteins and low moisture levels
- ◆ Improved energy density of your rations.
- ◆ Excellent quality control.
- ◆ Exchange programs with feed mills.
- ◆ Economical storage, rolling and grinding available
- ◆ We also buy corn and soybeans

SURVIVAL TACTICS

The current status of the beef industry dictates there should be some kind of plan in place to simply survive for the next couple of years.

There is no expectation of profit in the cow-calf enterprise, and profitability in feedlots will be dictated by the size of the corn crop.

The last time feeder calf prices were at this level, calf sales represented about 50 percent of annual cow cost. This year calf sales are barely covering 25 percent of annual cow costs.

Survival, then, will not be in sales, but in cutting costs. The following ten tactics represent some of these cost-cutting practices.

1. Buy the best bulls you can to put in the pasture. It seems out of place to encourage a purchase as a means of cutting cost, but that is just how important and profitable the selection of bulls can be to the cow herd. Breed, show records, and the fact they are registered means almost nothing. Performance records, EPDs, and reputable breeding programs are the only things that really count in making the selection of a bull. We have clear evidence to show a better bull can increase sale weights in the calf crop by 50 pounds or more per calf in many herds.

2. Ruthlessly cull the cow herd. The price of feed is simply too high to put up with low- or non-producing cows. Scrutinize records to see which cows are getting later in the calving season or weaning the tail-end calves every year.

3. Use pastures to their best advantage. Most of the needs of a cow herd can be met with good pasture, so try to extend grazing as far as possible. This may include adopting a rotational grazing program, using some land for grazing small grains or annuals, or simply finding some more grazing land at a low cost.

4. Schedule breeding seasons. The only way to effectively organize the management of a cow herd is to get calving seasons in a defined, workable period of time. Sixty to 90 days will be right for most herds. This is the only way to get the nutrition, management, and marketing programs to work the way they should. To end a breeding season, put the bull on one side of the gate, the cow herd on the other side, and close the gate until the herd is preg-checked.

5. Palpate the cow herd. Have a pregnancy test done on the cow herd about 60 days after the breeding season is over, and immediately sell the open cows. There is no good reason to feed an open cow.

6. Do the things that make money. Castrate bull calves early (most of them should be done by now.) Implant steers and heifers that will not be bred (there will be an $8 return for each $1 invested in implants.) Use preventive medicine programs that work for you. Seek the advice of your vet and examine the medical history of your herd to determine what should be done — and not done.

7. Know the nutritional value of your stored feeds and match it with the needs of the herd. This is no time to be over- or underfeeding a cow herd. Use nutritional supplements that give you a return. Beware of the "special ingredient" syndrome that costs "just a little more." Seek delivery systems that can lower costs. For example, how much is the convenience of a lick tank worth if a protein supplement can be poured in a bunk every day and accomplish the same thing?

8. Keep good records. There is no way to know where you are going or where you wish to go if you do not know where you started.

9. Seek markets that will give a premium. Freezer beef markets, feeder calf pools, direct sales, and other methods have their problems, but they also have their rewards. Make the calf you market "value-added" so it is distinctive enough in value to command a premium by preconditioning and packaging your product.

10. Early wean the calf crop. There is considerable evidence to show that one way to reduce the feed cost in a cow herd is to wean early. As soon as the bull is out, go ahead and wean calves at 4-6 months of age. Put them back on the pasture and feed the cows the lower quality feed you may have. Their energy requirement goes down by about 43 percent when the calf is weaned, and it is more efficient at that stage of the lactation to have the calf eat feed energy itself rather than through the milk production of a cow. You will get lower weaning weights, but this loss, particularly at present feed and calf prices, will be easily offset by reducing the feed costs into the cow herd.

June Pasture Walk Set

FREDERICK, Md. — The next Pasture Walk for Frederick County, Maryland will be held on Wednesday, June 5, from 10 a.m. until noon. Ron and Kathy Holter will be hosting the event.

Holterholm Farms started grazing last year with the heifers and dry cows. After installing fences, a watering system and planting the farm to perennials, they now have the 90 milk cows plus all the replacement heifers on pasture.

The purpose of the pasture walk is to allow livestock producers a chance to learn more about the use of rotational grazing as a wy to increase agricultural profitability. Most of the time will be spent walking through the pastures discussing plant growth, fencing, watering systems, and animal performance.

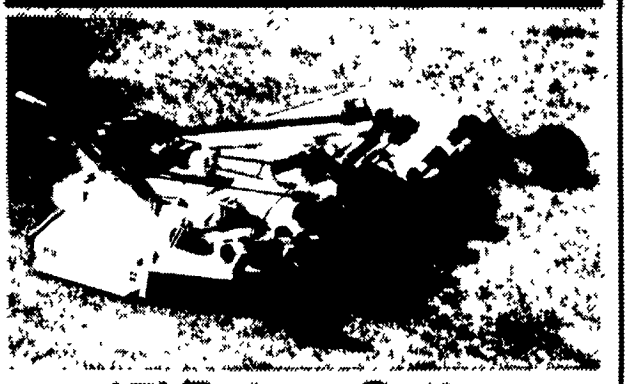
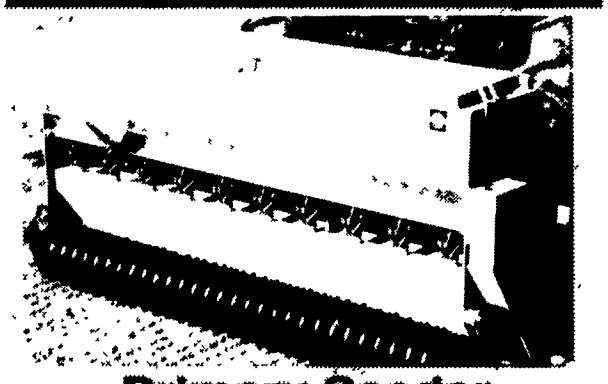
Cuts Farm Maintenance Down To Size



15' Rotary Cutter

- 15' folding unit
- Reinforced 10 gauge deck
- Wings fold up for 96" transport width
- Mowing height from 2" to 14"
- Cuts material up to 2" thick

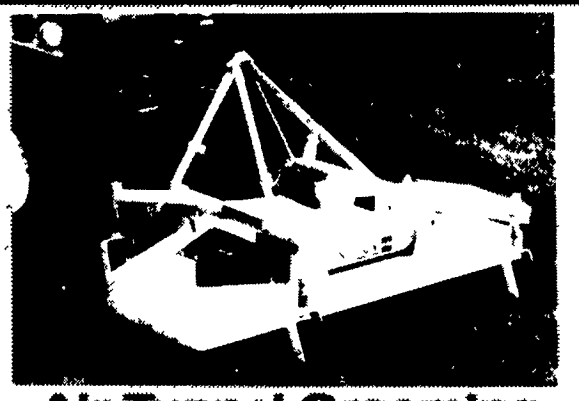
Solid Features... Solid Stand



Primary Seeder

- Large capacity six bushel seed hopper with paddle style agitator
- 10 non-corrosive, fluted seed cups
- Full width seeding pattern
- Track removers
- Narrow side panel construction for close seeding

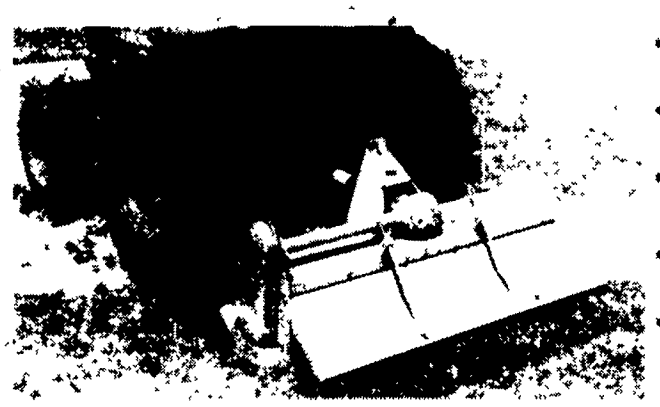
Built Tough . Smooth Cut



Air Tunnel Grooming Mowers

- Air Tunnel design available in 60", 72" and 90" widths
- Tubular steel chassis absorbs shock
- Floating hitch and swiveling top link for superior contour following capabilities
- Four wheel with front roller options

Reverse-Till Rotary Tillers



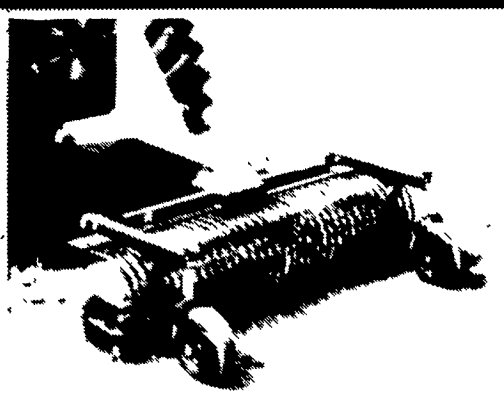
- 42", 48", 55", 62" and 70" widths available
- Spring loaded rear deflector keeps debris in and levels seedbed
- Built tougher than conventional tillers
- 6 tines per flange for superior pulverizing action
- Coil tines sift out large soil particles and growth, leaving the top layer just right for seeding

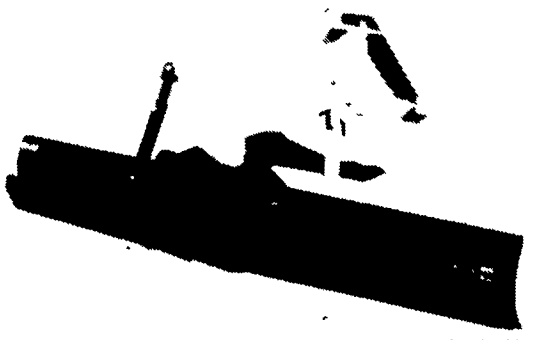
Parallel Arm Hydraulic Rotary Cutter

Land Pride's new Parallel Arm Hydraulic Rotary Cutter is an excellent addition to an ever-expanding line of cutters. Designed for pond and roadside embankments, ditches, fence rows and many other hard-to-reach places, the Land Pride 5' Parallel Arm Cutter offers features to make these mowing conditions simple, as well as less time-consuming.

Landscape Rakes

- 20-60 hp - 5 widths
- High carbon, spring steel teeth
- Heavy-duty A-frames
- Optional flip-down grader blade
- Gauge wheels and hydraulic angling are available





Rear Blades

- 17 models in 6 series - from 48" to 120" widths
- 20 hp to 150 hp
- Heavy duty rolled moldboard
- All models feature adjustable angle; some have tilt and offset capabilities
- Heavy-duty A-frames

Cotton To Judge Limousin Show

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. — Ryan Cotton of Clarkesville, Ga. will judge the Eastern Regional Junior Limousin Show at the Middle Tennessee State University Livestock Center in Murfreesboro, Tenn. June 14-16.

Cotton, herd manager for the Georgia division of Ankony Angus, will begin show ring placings at 9 a.m. on June 15 with the Limousin heifers, followed by the bred and owned heifers, bred and owned bulls and steers.

Outside the show ring, Limousin juniors will test their knowledge of the Limousin breed and the cattle industry as they compete in the quiz bowl on June 14.

In addition to the junior show and activities, the Southeastern Spotlight Sale will take place on June 15 and the Southeast Summer Classic Open Show on June 16.

"The Eastern Regional Show gives Limousin juniors across the eastern United States an opportunity to come together and compete with other Limousin juniors in their region," said George Hubbard, director of marketing, shows and junior activities for the North American Limousin Foundation (NALF).

The Eastern Regional Limousin Show is sponsered by the Southeastern Limousin Breeders Association (SELBA) and the North American Limousin Junior Association. For more information, contact George Hubbard at the NALF office at (303) 220-1693 or Ryan Sullivan, SELBA executive secretary, at (615) 822-9363.

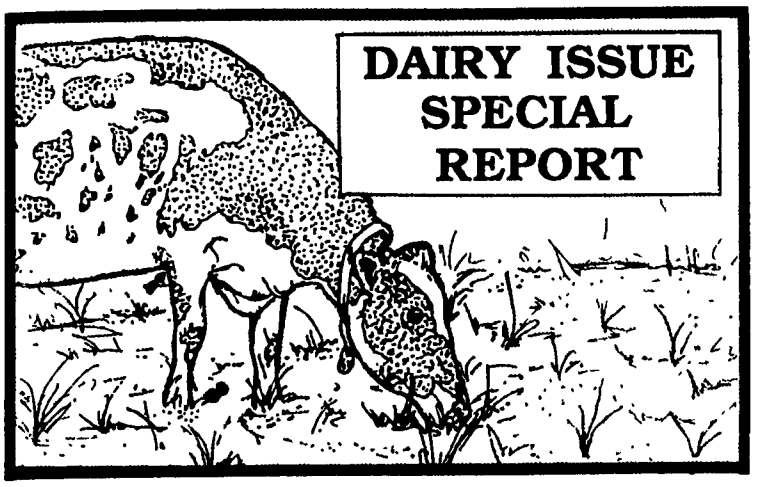
Dealing With 'Batty' Neighbors

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — As the only major predators of night flying insects, bats play an important role in controlling many insect pests.



In fact, a single bat can consume as many as 500 insects in just one hour, or nearly 3,000 insects every night. A colony of just 100 little brown bats, the most abundant species in the Northeast, may consume more than a quarter million mosquitoes and other small insects each night.

Sometimes, when homeowners understand the important role that bats play in controlling insects, they decide to allow a colony to remain in the attic or eaves. Other homeowners may not wish to allow bats to roost in their attics. The best way to safely and permanently evict a colony is to batproof — that is, seal off the colony's entrance.

The timing of batproofing is critical and should be done from January through April. Otherwise, the young, flightless bats may become trapped inside the building. To batproof your home:

- Find out where the bats are getting in. Bats commonly enter at points where joined materials have warped, shrunk, or pulled away from one another.
- Seal the holes to prevent their entry. For small cracks, use expanding foam insulation or chalking compound. For larger gaps or louvered vents, use window screening or hardware cloth. Bats will not gnaw new holes.
- Provide an alternative roost, or bat box for the colony to occupy. If a displaced colony cannot find a new roost, it may leave the area or die. They will not join other bat colonies in a new location.

If batproofing must be done while bats are inhabiting the building, it should be done by installing a one-way door after mid-July when the pups are able to fly. One-way doors are designed to allow bats to leave and not reenter a building.

A variety of myths and misconceptions surround these small, nocturnal mammals. However, bats are not vicious animals that carry diseases and get tangled in hair. In fact, most bats are clean, healthy, and unaggressive toward humans.

Rabies is rarely transmitted to other kinds of mammals from bats. In the past 40 years, fewer people have died from bat rabies than have died from dog bites or bee stings in a single year.

Penn State Cooperative Extension's publication, "A Guide to Northeastern Bats and Bat Problems" has more information on bats and public health, batproofing, bat box construction plans, and more. Call (717) 963-6842 today for your free copy.

4-H FAIR TO FEATURE DAIRY, GOAT SHOWS

Terri L. Packard
Adams County 4-H Agent

Plan an exciting and eventful outing for your entire family at the Adams County 4-H Fair.

The fair will be held Saturday, August 3, at the South Mountain Fairgrounds near Arendtsville.

More than 600 Adams County 4-H members will have more than 1,000 4-H projects on display. Items range from dairy cattle to pygmy goats, from rockets to photography, from ceramics to microwave foods, from cake decorating to clothing, and many other areas.

The exhibit area will be open from 2 p.m.-6:30 p.m. and admission is free. Every display area will present original and exciting ideas created by 4-H members.

If you are interested in large animal shows, they take place throughout the day. The goat fitting and showmanship contest will begin at 9 a.m. with both dairy and pygmy goats. The dairy show follows at 11 a.m. with several breeds represented.

Champions will be chosen for fitting, showmanship, and type. The beef fitting and showmanship contest will begin at 2:30 p.m. The 4-H Horse Show will be held at Halcyon Farm, Dillsburg on July 27. The show begins at 9:30 a.m.

The Adams County 4-H/FFA Swine & Sheep Show & Sale will be held at the South Mountain Fairgrounds on July 30. The swine show begins at 8 a.m., followed by the sheep show at 11 a.m. The sales are held in the evening, with sheep beginning at 7 p.m. and swine following at 7:45 p.m.

There are several fun family activities scheduled throughout the day. These include fun festival at 9:45 a.m.; horse demonstration at 11:30 a.m.; penny carnival at noon; sheep demonstration at noon; swine demonstration at 12:30 p.m.; shooting sports demonstration at 1 p.m.; ice cream eating contest at 1:30 p.m.; calf dressing contest at 2 p.m.; bale toss contest at 2:30 p.m.; bicycle rodeo at 3 p.m.; rocket shoot-off at 4 p.m.; and Seeing Eye Puppy demonstration at 5:30 p.m.

TRI-WHEEL CART
Liquid or Dry Fertilizer Application

A handy tool for nearly every program, this tri-wheel cart is available in 500 and 1000 gallons and with 3-16.5x16.1 ply tires, it can be used to pull behind planters, cultivtors, booms and toolbars. Only 10' long, a unique caster steering front wheel assembly allows it to turn inside it's own wheel track. A ground drive piston and hydraulic pump are an option.

Binkley & Hurst Bros. Has Heavy Duty Gehl Pull Type Disc Mower Conditioners In Stock Ready To Work

ONLY FROM GEHL
Gehl's exclusive, full width, totally enclosed cutterbar support frame extends beneath the entire cutterbar. The cutterbar (outlined in yellow) is protected from direct impact with rocks or other field obstructions.

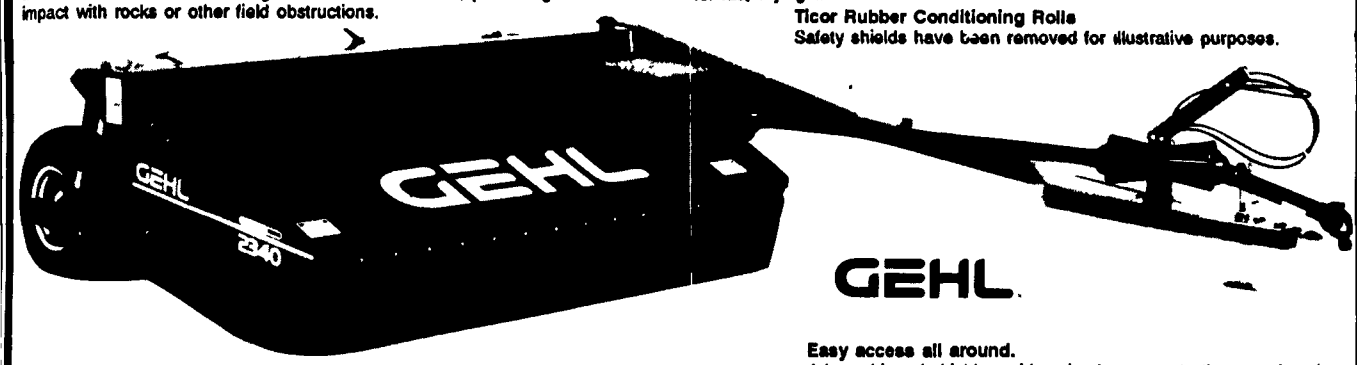
High-speed Cutting With Unmatched Durability

Gehl's reliable, proven disc cutterbar features gear-driven discs rotating at 3,000 rpm. The gears operate in an oil bath for less wear and long life. Each disc features two heavy-duty reversible knives for twice the cutting life. Specially designed v-blades and built-in lifters one each disc smoothly lift the cut crop into the conditioning rolls.

The skid shoes are attached to the support frame for added strength. There's one skid shoe beneath each cutting disc for additional support.

Today's Most Advanced Disc Mower Conditioner

A Gehl disc mower conditioner delivers exceptional cutting and conditioning even in your most difficult crops and conditions.
Rugged high-speed cutting discs, spinning at 3,000 rpm, easily slice down and tangled crops or dense wet undergrowth to deliver a clean cut.
The cut crop is delivered to Gehl's specially designed intermeshing rubber conditioning rolls for thorough, yet gentle crop conditioning. They'll condition your crop for fast drying.
Designed with the operator in mind.
These disc mower conditioners were designed from the ground up with the operator in mind. They're built extra-strong for more years of reliable service.
Unlike competitive units that use the cutterbar as a frame member, the Gehl disc mower conditioners feature a sturdy cutterbar support frame that extends beneath the entire cutterbar. This design cradles the cutterbar, protecting it from direct impact with rocks or other field obstructions.
In addition, the rugged trailer main frame is formed from a four-by-eight-inch structural steel tube for added strength and long life.
The 540 or 1000 rpm driveline features an equal angle hitch for smooth power transfer. A combination slip clutch/over-running clutch provides overload protection.
The rugged transmission delivers power to the cutting discs and conditioning rolls. The gear-driven discs operate in an oil bath for extra-long life and dependable service.
The cutterbar carries a full two-year warranty.
WIDE ROLLS FOR BETTER CONDITIONING
Conditioning rolls are as wide as the cutterbar to deliver more uniform conditioning. The full-width machined intermeshing conditioning rolls gently condition your crop for fast drying and maximum nutrient retention.



Ticor Rubber Conditioning Rolls
Safety shields have been removed for illustrative purposes.

Easy access all around.
A large hinged shield provides simple access to the cutterbar. In addition, hinged shielding allows easy entry to the conditioning roll drives for maintenance and adjustment.
Backed by Gehl.
Since 1859, Gehl Company has been serving world agriculture with products that have gained a reputation for dependability and innovative design. These disc mower conditioners continue that tradition.
An equal angle PTO delivers smooth, chatter-free power transfer.
Three-point flotation support provides quick response. For uneven terrain, the three-point header flotation delivers a full 11 inches of oscillation. That's more lateral movement than four-point systems. You get clean fast, cutting with protection from rocks and other field obstructions.

Maneuverability and capacity of a self-propelled...at a pull-type price

Available For Immediate Delivery at Binkley & Hurst Inc.

Gehl center-pivot swing frame mower conditioners deliver high volume cutting and conditioning with outstanding maneuverablity Two new models are available the 2245 with 12 3 cutting width and the 2275 with 14 3 cutting width

These machines pivot at the center of the frame for easy header positioning So you can cut back and forth across the field from either the right or left side of the tractor or tow the unit directly behind the tractor for road travel

Change from windrow to swath in seconds without tools With stationary windrow shields and adjustable fluffer you can match drying conditions with high standing fluffy windrows or full width swaths

When it comes to cutting and conditioning these swing frames can t be beat Gehl s reliable simplified drive system powers the sicklebar for clean cutting The crop is gently swept to the augers and delivered to the wide 109 inch conditioning rolls for the thorough gentle conditioning needed for quick drying and maximum nutrient retention

If you re ready to cut hay in a big way see your Gehl dealer today

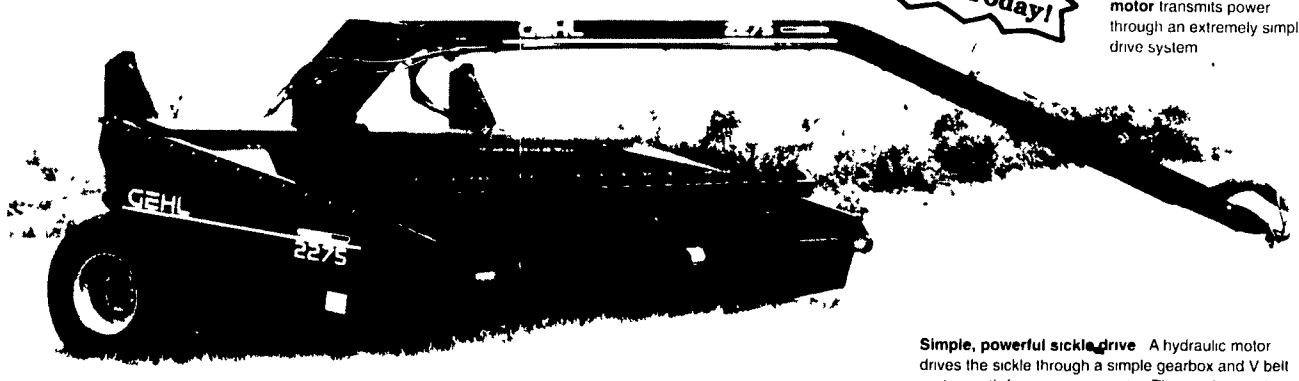
The auger is powered by a chain drive with shearbolt protection
The reel is powered by a simple belt drive system that provides overload protection

Model 2245 Ready to Mow At Binkley & Hurst Today!

Hinged shielding provides quick and easy access for adjustments and routine maintenance

Easily adjustable guard angle The guard angle adjusts from 6 to 14 degrees to match any field condition

The powerful hydraulic motor transmits power through an extremely simple drive system



Gentle crop transfer The 22 inch diameter fixed auger gently transports the crop to the conditioning rolls The auger speed is adjustable for varying crop conditions

43-inch diameter 4-bat reel sweeps your crop gently to the auger The reel position and speed are fully adjustable for varying conditions The riser pan is set at a steeper angle so the tines track closer to the pan for more even feeding of short crops

High header clearance The frame design permits a high lift height Built-in cylinders make it easy to clear tall windrows when exiting the field

Three point flotation support provides both lateral and vertical flotation The header is carried on two outside arms and pivots on a center link for clean fast cutting in uneven fields This fast reacting system provides outstanding cutterbar protection from rocks and other field obstructions It s easily adjustable for varying field conditions

The center pivot tongue is also the oil reservoir and oil cooler with a capacity of nearly 28 gallons

Easy to use transport lock centers the unit securely in place during road travel

Simple, powerful sickle drive A hydraulic motor drives the sickle through a simple gearbox and V belt system with fewer moving parts The single swaybar delivers more power at the sickle head 1500 strokes per minute means smooth cutting at higher ground speeds

109-inch wide machined intermeshing conditioning rolls provide thorough uniform conditioning for fast drying and maximum nutrient retention

Self-contained hydraulic system powers the cutterbar reel auger and conditioning rolls Gehl s high capacity hydraulic pump is powered by the tractor PTO

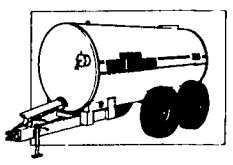
Dynamic Duo!

SERIES 5000 LAGOON PUMPS & SPREADER TANKS

Van Dale Tanks are built to last with 1/4 steel plate and the best warranty in the business. And there's one built to match your needs in sizes from 2700 - 5500 gallon capacities. Whichever you choose you won't go wrong with A Waste Handler from Van Dale.

Strength power and reliability It's all here with the new Series 5000 Lagoon Pumps These pumps have the perfect combination of agitation volume and pressure needed to break up hard surface crust or bottom manure solids with speed and power And with up to 5000 G P M agitation capacity it can blast a stream of manure 100 or more in any direction to create an easy pumping and spreading slurry The new Series 5000 trailer mounted or 3 point hitch by far the fastest and easiest to operate pumps on the market



THE VAN DALE ADVANTAGE

CHECK OUT THESE FEATURES
- Dependable Bearing Assembly
- Hydraulic Control from the Tractor Seat
- Aggressive 26" High Pressure Impeller
- Adjustable Nozzle
- Heavy-Duty Drive Shaft

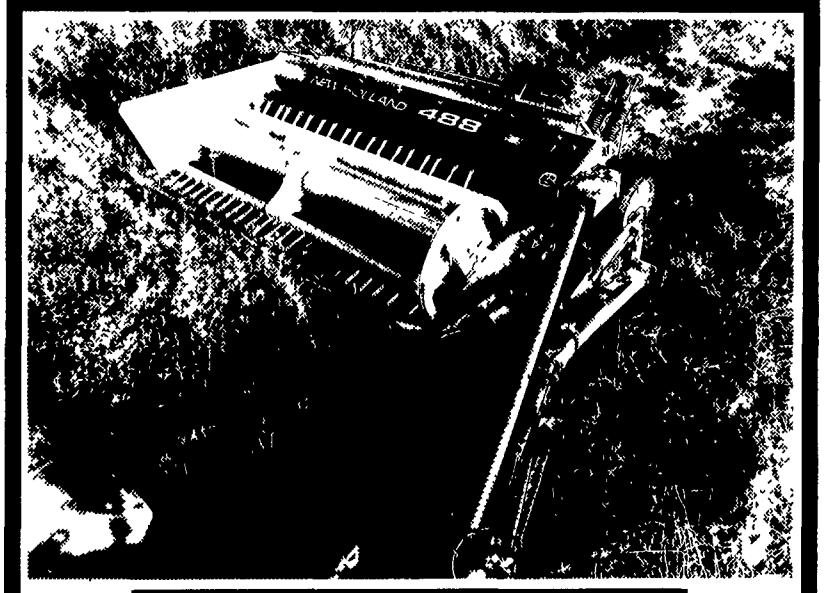
AFFORDABLE QUALITY

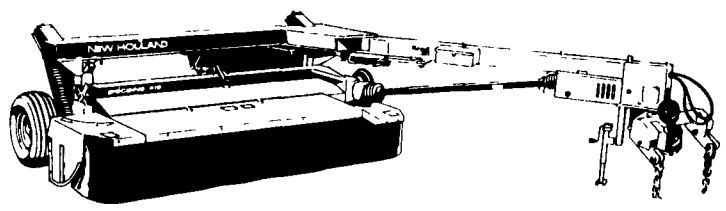


TROUBLE-FREE HAYMAKING

You don't sacrifice a bit of quality when you buy the affordable nine-foot Model 488 Haybine® mower-conditioner. This trouble-free hay conditioner has a clean-cutting header, rubber conditioning rolls, no-tools adjustments, and a choice of swath or windrow

NEW HOLLAND

415 DISCBINE®



WIDE CUT-EVEN CONDITIONING

You'll love the wide-cutting performance of the Model 415 Discbine® disc mower-conditioner. Seven discs make an 11-1/2-foot cut through your toughest crops. And with the New Holland torsion-bar roll-pressure system, you get consistent conditioning even in uneven crop conditions. Plus, roll pressure decreases automatically to let slugs pass through.

Stop in and see the big performance of the "415".

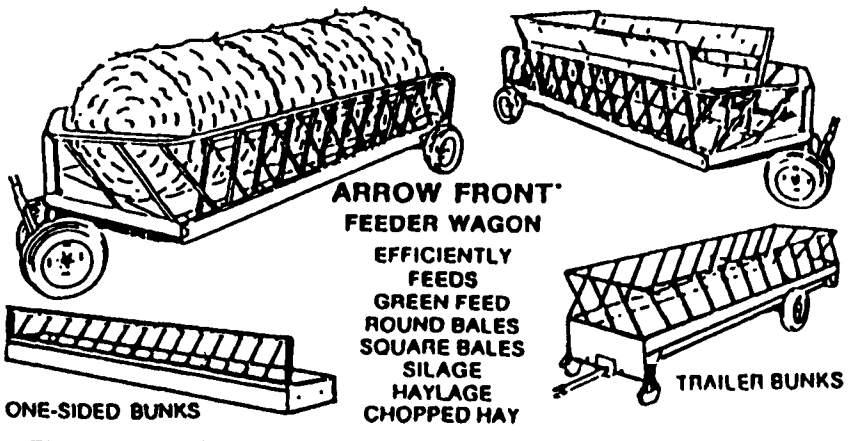
S.I. FEEDERS

REBATE

$100 ON ALL ARROWFRONT® FEEDER WAGONS
$20 ON ALL BUNKS UNTIL JUNE 30, 1996



The S.I. Feeder is designed to minimize feed loss. This is done with functional slant bars, low set design, proper pan depth, feed saving edges, and other concepts to reduce waste.

The S.I. Feeder Wagons have the versatility to feed any type of grain, forage, or even a total mixed ration. Four foot high inserts are options to increase load capacity and to control the downward flow of feed.

The Arrow Front design replaces the old goose-neck concept, eliminating 90 degree welded joints, making it stronger and more durable.

Get an S.I. Feeder now to get maximum efficiency of your quality feeds.

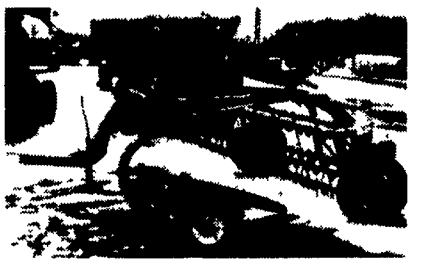
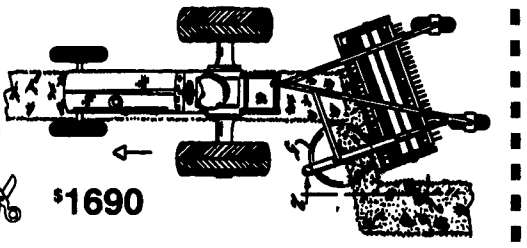
HAY B.R.A.T.T.



Clip & Save



$1690

HAY B.R.A.T.T.: Bar Rake Attached Turn Table is an attachment to existing hayrakes that catches a windrow at the top of the roll as it rolls off the hayrake carrying the windrow on a disc leaving it inverted, allowing the hay to dry faster

DESCRIPTION

- The Hay B.R.A.T.T. is a disc driven by friction off the top of a single ground driven wheel mounted on a caster allowing alignment with the direction of travel.
- The Hay B.R.A.T.T. was designed asymmetrical enabling the one model to be assembled for a right or left-hand delivery rake models so as to keep parts inventory low
- The Hay B.R.A.T.T. was designed to be self-cleaning and highly resistant to wrapping of hay The wheels position pulls the hay off the caster frame A loop guard prevents hay coming up the back of the tire. The bearings are protected by shields
- Angle adjustments on the Hay B.R.A.T.T.'s disc are done by a single 3/4" wrench
- Two adjustable square tube frames support the caster of the Hay B.R.A.T.T allowing for rake and crop condition adjustments The ends can be changed for different rake models.
- The mounting of the Hay B.R.A.T.T to the rake is done with 2 Hitchpins mounted on the rake frame using existing bolt holes This allows for quick attachment and removal of the Hay B.R A T.T
- The Hay B.R.A.T.T can be locked into a transport position and be suspended from the rake frame for road transport or storage
- Because of the position of the Hay B.R.A.T.T on the rake a 2 ft 6 in extension to the front hitch of the rake is needed to provide clearance during turns

ADVANTAGES

- The Hay B.R.A.T.T. fully inverts the windrow, leaving it fluffed up and improves the drying of the hay.
- The Hay B.R.A.T.T. is ground driven and requires no hydraulic or PTO drives. It operates best at speeds from 3½ to 9 miles per hr (the limit of most rakes)
- When raking swaths into a windrow a hay rake would roll the hay in to a tight rope like windrow. The Hay B.R.A.T.T bunches and carries the hay forming a fluffed up windrow allowing the hay to dry better
- The Hay B.R.A.T.T. can be used to combine two windrows of a 6' or 9' haybine in one pass or a 12' or 14' haybine in two passes of opposite directions
- Stone Removal is accomplished during the two directional changes of the windrow by the Hay B.R.A.T.T., The weight of the stones tend to resist the change of directions by the windrow, thereby throwing the stones clear of the windrow
- The Hay B.R.A.T.T will increase the demand on roll bar rakes, especially the models that are 2'6" extension capable.
- The Hay B.R.A.T.T can be installed on most roll bar rakes and cost less than most windrow inverters of today so demand will be great and should last as long as there are roll bar rakes around.

CUT HAY THE DISC WAY!

- High speed discs - Each disc has two knives to slice through the toughest crops and conditions; the disc gear drive operates in an oil bath for long life.
- Sturdy frame - Cradles the cutterbar for extra protection and durability.
- 540 or 1,000 rpm driveline with equal-angle hitch for smooth power transfer.
- Standard hydraulic tongue - Makes it easy to position the unit without leaving the tractor seat.

John Deere Rotary Hoe Wheels...

Tough Action, Explosive Price

Tough curved teeth on John Deere rotary hoe wheels enter the soil straight down, and then exit at an aggressive angle, "exploding" the soil to kill weeds and shatter crust. That's the kind of tough action you expect from John Deere parts. John Deere rotary hoe wheels... don't miss the tough action on the price either!

Rotary Hoe Wheels
Replace worn or damaged hoe wheels for improved crust-busting and weed-killing action. See us for new bearings, too.

LESS SCOURS
BETTER MIXING
FASTER GAINS

We have been using Aim for 8 months and I have been very pleased with the results. The calves find it very palatable from the first bottle. It mixes very easily. (No Lumps) I find the calves putting on weight and flesh at a very good rate. I also see problems with scours as minimal

Ridge Names Secretary Of Horse Racing Commission

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — On behalf of Gov. Tom Ridge, Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius announced the appointment of Benjamin Nolt Jr. of Dauphin County as the executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Horse Racing Commission.

"Benjamin Nolt has a long and distinguished record of service in the industry and to Pennsylvania agriculture," Brosius said. "We are fortunate to have such an experienced individual serving the Commonwealth in this important position."

Nolt, a Grantville resident, has served the Pennsylvania State Universitiy's College of Agricultural Sciences for almost a decade.

He was appointed as coordinator of the 4-H Therapeutic Riding Programs at Penn State in 1986 and has been a 4-H club leader since 1972. Nolt then was appointed to his most recent position as coordinator of the 4-H Animal Science Programs at Penn State in 1994. As coordinator, he co-authored and instructed the University's first Equine Facilitated Therapy course.

Nolt has served as president of the Pennsylvania Equine Council and is a member of the American Youth Horse Council, Pennsylvania Council on Therapeutic Horsemanship, Camp Horsemanship Association, and the Pennsylvania Draft Horse and Mule Association. He is also active in the American Horse Council and the Pennsylvania Percheron Association.

In 1985, Nolt co-founded and became president of the Capital Area Therapeutic Riding Association, which offers a quality therapeutic horseback riding program to the Harrisburg area.

He also served in the U.S. Air Force from 1962-1972, and in the U.S. Air Force Reserves from 1972 to 1978, receiving an honorable discharge in 1978.

Nolt will oversee the regulation of thoroughbred racing and parimutual wagering throughout the commonwealth. He will also work closely with the Harness Racing Commission to help merge the leadership of the two commissions and build coalitions to strengthen the equine industry in Pennsylvania. The commission licenses all racing participants and enforces regulations and laws governing horse racing events.

MOW YOUR PLANET.

Whether your world is municipal park land or a thousand-acre sod farm, your mower has to be able to cut it-day in and day out. Which means you can't rely on just any machine. Fact is, you need a Batwing®.

Available in 12, 15, and 17 foot cutting swaths, the new Woods Turf Batwing finish mower is engineered for high-productivity mowing. Not only will it handle the wide open spaces, but specially designed gauge wheels make this mower a top performer on hills, too. What's more, we've built the Turf Batwing to deliver years of trouble-free mowing, with a tough three-joint driveline, and long-lasting tapered roller bearings in every wheel, spindle, and gear mechanism.

Call your local Turf Batwing dealer. But you'd better call soon. You have a world of mowing to do.

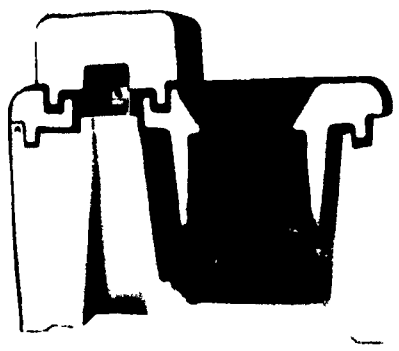
Real Versatility...
An Electric-Free Fountain from Ritchie



Our unique disc-shaped closure could make the Ritchie Thrifty King the most versatile fountain on the market.

Unlike a ball closure, our disc "tips". The higher water level means livestock don't have to lean in so far to drink. That makes drinking easier for smaller animals and with our tapered opening, it's easier for larger animals too. Water both from the same unit.

Ritchie Protects From The Cold Too
If you worry about freezing, Ritchie's patented water seal and insulated drink well keep cold air from getting to the valve and prevent heat loss. Plus, our nonmetallic float and valve have proven their resistance against corrosion and cold, with 30 years of time-tested reliability. For extra protection, the optional thermal tube helps prevent supply line freeze-up.

Discover the versatility and freeze protection of a Ritchie Thrifty King electric-free fountain, all backed by 75 years of dependable service.

Rugged Construction
The WaterMaster from Ritchie is built for long life . . .and we'll guarantee it for 10 years. With its one-piece body construction of durable impact-resistant roto-cast polyethylene plastic, the WaterMaster won't deteriorate like concrete.

Dependable, Economical Water Delivery
Sealed urethane foam insulation protects water from cold, allowing the unit to operate longer before the constant flow is turned on, creating a reduction in water waste. An optional supplemental electric heater is available. Ritchie's nonmetallic valve delivers 18 gallons of water per minute at 60 psi, with 30 years of time-tested reliability.

Easier to Maintain
WaterMaster fits over an existing stem wall and unlike concrete is lightweight and easy to install. Built-in overflow and drain eliminate troublesome standpipes. Plus, the WaterMaster is easier to clean and service than concrete Top cover opens without tools, for ease of service. Smooth, rounded trough slopes toward a protected 3" drain for fast, easy cleaning Durability, easy maintenance and reliability — with less water waste All backed by 75 years of dependable service Guaranteed Just ask a user, then .

If you think you can't afford to build a parlor, you probably can't afford not to build a parlor

The bottom line in milking is making the most with what you've got. And if you thought that making the most of your current dairy operation would cost you an arm and a leg, then you need to find out more about an Alfa Laval Agri™ parlor. Talk to your local independent Alfa Laval Agri dealer about how you can milk more cows per hour, save the labor of one complete person and upgrade your existing stanchion barn to an Alfa Laval Agri parlor, for a price you can live with, and feel good about.

Why settle for less, when you can have more with a parlor from Alfa Laval Agri.

Holstein Association™ NEWS

Holstein Junior Members To Fort Worth

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Holstein Association junior members will head to Fort Worth, Texas, in late June to "get their kicks in '96" at the National Holstein Convention.

According to Kelli Devino, Educational Coordinator, juniors from around the United States will gather in the Lone Star State June 22-25 for awards and recognitions, farm tours, meetings, workshops, and still have time for fun.

A highlight of the event will be the Dairy Bowl finals, a culmination of quiz bowl contests around the country, with both junior and senior teams competing for top honors. Another highlight is the selection of six Distinguished Junior Members from 12 semifinalists, following a series of final interviews.

Juniors will also have a chance to take part in a number of workshops, featuring topics like advertising and career development. They will visit several large dairies in the Stephenville, Texas, area, participate in a junior forum, and have a chance to bid on Holstein cattle in the Convention Sale.

For more information about the National Holstein Junior Convention, contact Kelli Devino at (800) 952-5200, ext. 2124.

Panora Acres Learns To Cope With Changing Landscape

JOANNE E. MORVAY
Maryland Correspondent

MANCHESTER, Md. — When Norman Sellers took over the northern Carroll County, Md. dairy farm that has been in his family for six generations, he christened the spread "Panora Acres."

The "Pa" in Panora represented his wife, Pat. The "nor" was, of course, for Norman.

Today, the "Pa" in Panora actually represents Norman's younger brother, Paul. Pat and Norman Sellers are still happily married after 39 years. But Norman's lifelong partner in the milking parlor has turned out to be his only brother.

Paul wasn't working on the farm when Pat and Norman took over so many years ago. He was away in the Marine Corps and it wasn't clear if he was going to return to the family homestead or make a career out of the military.

But Paul eventually did come home. And his older brother had no trouble finding a place for him in the family business.

"They had to expand to fit Paul in and they've been expanding ever since," joked their mother, Alice Sellers.

Twenty-eight years later her two boys are still working side by side. And no one could be prouder than their 91-year-old "mom."

"They respect each other and they've never had a falling out," Alice Sellers said.

She's not the only one who's seen the strong bond between her sons. The owner of the local machinery dealership "told me he's never seen two boys like they are," she said. "He can't get over how they always agree."

Not that Norman, 55, and Paul, 50, don't ever hold differing opinions. Norman's son, Harry, who sees both his father and his uncle daily, is witness to that. And Harry's got their typical exchange down pat: "Dad'll say something and Uncle Paul'll argue and Dad'll say, 'OK.' And Uncle Paul'll say, 'Do what you want,' and that'll be the end of it," Harry said, with a laugh.

A five-year age difference meant Norman and Paul had little in common as children. "He was too growed up to play with me," Paul teased.

But in the years since, the Sellers boys have learned to trust and depend upon each other in a way few brothers will ever experience.

Panora Acres supports four families: Paul, his wife Ginny and their 16-year-old son Eric who plans to study civil engineering in college; Norman and his wife Pat; Norman's son Harry, his wife Natalie and their kids — 12-year-old Josh, 9-year-old Brittany and 6-year-old Ashley; and Norman, Jr and his wife Sherry. Paul also has a 23-year-old daughter Stephanie Hahn, who's married and out on her own.

Norman's daughter Lori Sellers is a state milk inspector. His other daughter, Tina Seivers, lives with her husband and three sons in Hagerstown.

If the Sellers brothers didn't get along, the operation they've built couldn't survive.

Fortunately, "we've got enough work for everybody to keep out of everybody else's way," Paul said with a grin.

The Sellers' milk 160 grade and registered Holsteins twice daily at about 5:30 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Their milk is shipped to Md.-Va. Milk Producers. Their rolling herd average recently reached 21,999 — the highest it's ever been, said Norman. In April, their cows averaged 72 pounds of milk per day.

Norman and Paul own 200 acres of ground and rent upward of 500 more to raise corn, soybeans, wheat, and the alfalfa and grass hay they use for feed.

The work is divided and everyone knows their job. Paul sprays and harvests. Harry and Norman plant the crops. They're also responsible for artificial insemination. Harry and his son, Josh, feed calves — "A job I've been doing since I was Josh's age that I've just never been able to move on from," Harry joked. Josh also runs the skid loader and tractors when needed.

Norman Jr., who joined the operation in January, helps with feeding and milking. Last year, the family lost a longtime friend and farmhand, Craig Miller. Miller, who'd been working at Panora since high school, was killed in a car accident.

The Sellers' favor Allis Chalmers equipment and have a close relationship with the local Allis dealer just a few minutes away in Lineboro, Md. They have their own grain storage bins and drier and make their own feed with concentrate they get from a local mill.

JOANNE MORVAY
Maryland Correspondent

Joanne E. Morvay is a freelance writer and a part-time milk maid at Weant-Haven Farm outside Taneytown, Md. She and her husband, Todd Weant, were married last June.

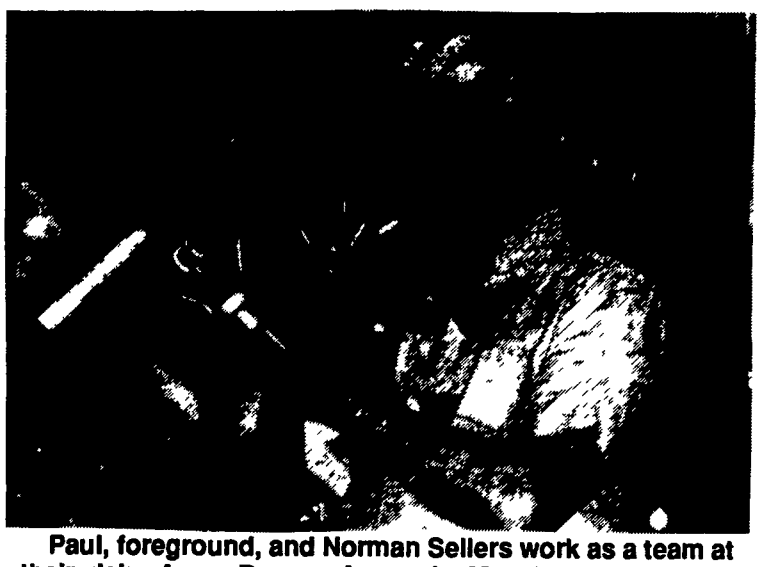
Together with Todd's parents, Carl and Grace, they milk 81 grade and registered Holsteins on a farm that has been in the family for five generations.

Joanne grew up in suburban Montgomery County, Md., but has quickly adjusted to her new life. Her parents, Jim and Katie Morvay, have even learned to milk and do fieldwork.

Joanne and Todd are building a show string of red and white Holsteins centered on the first gift he gave her — a red and white calf she named Valentine. Before she married, Joanne spent 10 years as a newspaper reporter.

Alice Sellers is flanked by her two sons, Paul, left, and Norman, right. Mrs. Sellers, 91, incorporated her farm when her husband Edgar died more than 30 years ago and then sold shares of stock to her sons so they could gradually take over the operation. Panora Acres has been in the family for six generations. Mrs. Sellers still keeps an eye on things — and her two boys — from her home across the road.

Norman and Paul Sellers are brothers who've been farming together in northern Carroll County, Md. for 28 years. The Sellers' raise all the animals born at Panora Acres in Manchester. They're shown here with the steers they're finishing, which are sold for meat to local butchers and at area livestock auctions.



Paul, foreground, and Norman Sellers work as a team at their dairy farm, Panora Acres, in Manchester, Md. The brothers meet twice daily to milk 160 Holsteins in a DeLaval computerized double 10 parlor.

Norman, foreground, and Paul Sellers milk 160 Holsteins at Panora Acres in Manchester, Md. Their rolling herd average recently reached 21,999 — the highest it has ever been.

Norman and Paul have been farming together for 28 years. Norman's son, Harry, 31, has been working on the farm full-time since high school. Norman Jr., 37, joined the operation in January. Harry's son, Joshua, 12, helps out when school permits.

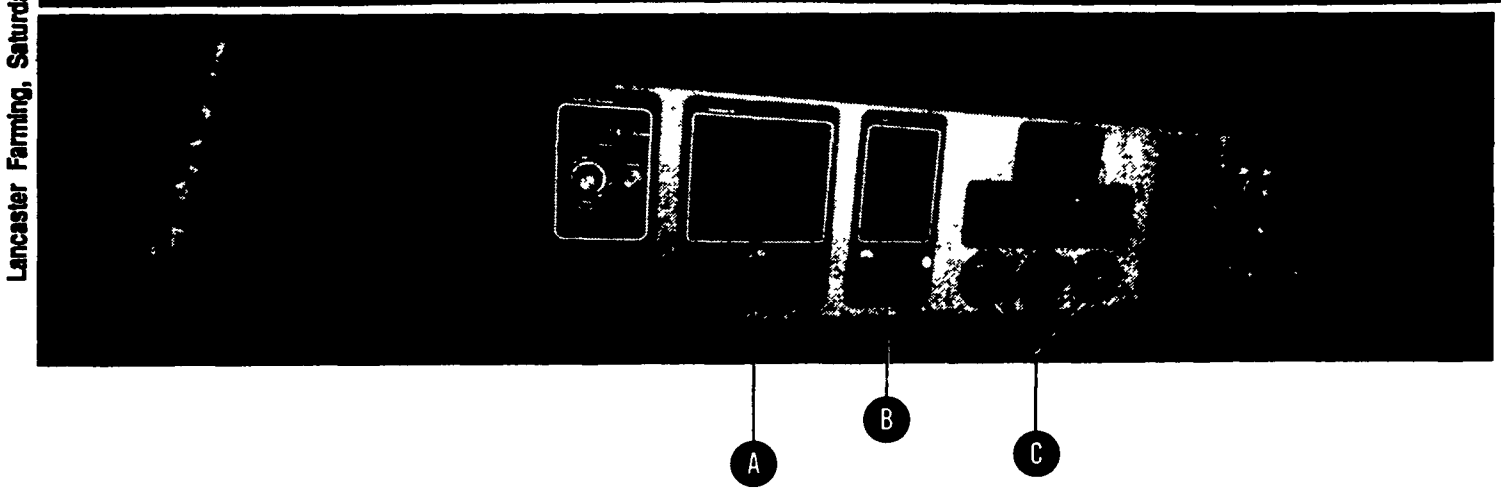
The Heart And Soul Of GLEANER



Our Monitoring System Lets You Concentrate On The Job At Hand.

You won't need to second-guess how well your combine's performing. Because in every GLEANER rotary combine, there's a state-of-the-art monitoring system that constantly watches key functions like the rear-feed conveyor and discharge impeller/chopper. When attention is needed, you'll be alerted either visually or audibly. Just another way GLEANER combines are engineered for better returns.

A Tattletale III

Monitors the speeds and signals when a function has slowed down or stopped.

B Tattletale V

This warning system monitors the engine and other important features and warns both by an audible alarm and warning light. It even tells you when the grain tank is full.

- Engine Overload Alarm
  Alerts you with an audible alarm when the engine rpm has dropped 100 rpm below rated speed. And tells you when the combine efficiency has cropped.
- Bin Level Monitor
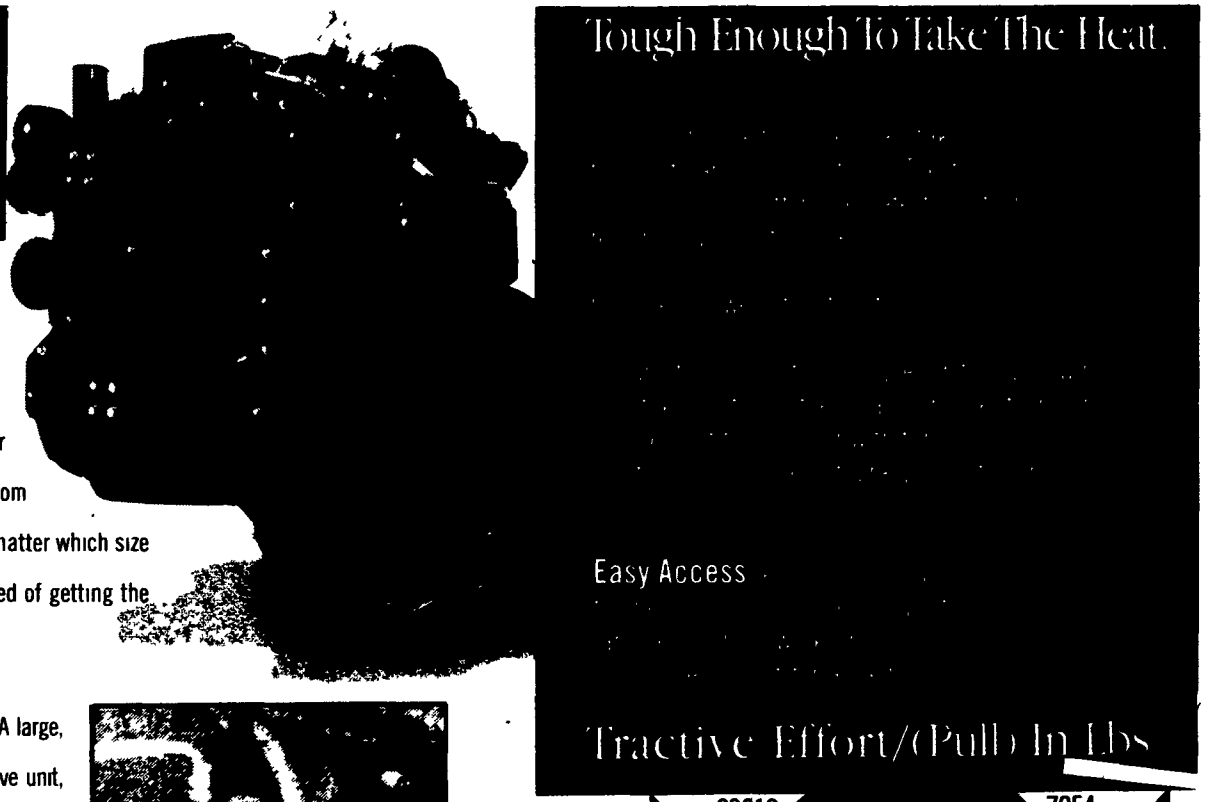
  Lets you know when the bin is full or near full. Sensors in the grain tank can be set to your specifications.

C Oil pressure, Oil/Collant Temperature and Voltage Meter

These gauges are in addition to the same functions monitored on Tattletale V but with separate sending units to give you added reliability and performance.



Cummins® Diesel Engine. With this engine, you get to choose the kind of horsepower you want. Just take your pick from the 185 to 330 hp engine No matter which size you go with, you can be assured of getting the most power for your money.

Drive/Propulsion System. A large, high-torque, split hydrostatic drive unit, coupled with a four-speed transmission and a choice of tire and ply sizes provide a powerful Drive/Propulsion System

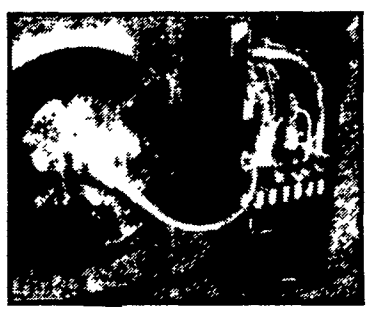
Hydraulic System. Electro-hydraulic controls were first introduced by GLEANER in 1972 and provide ease of operation with exceptional reliability.



Touch control switches provide current to the hydraulic valve stack which activates (magnetizes) the solenoid(s) for immediate operation

Contrary to their mother's teasing, Panora Acres is not exactly expanding at warp speed. The farm's DeLaval computerized double-10 milking parlor was put in just two years ago. They added 30 cows then to reach the 160 mark, but the parlor could handle double that, Norman said.

Up to that time, the Sellers' had been milking in a flat parlor with one row of stanchions and 10 milkers. "It's a lot more enjoyable milking this way. We just wanted to make it easier on ourselves," Norman explained as Paul chuckled appreciatively.

The parlor at Panora is a male-dominated arena, since none of the women in the family help milk.

Norman and Paul are usually present at both daily milkings with Harry, Norman, Jr., and Josh helping out at different intervals. Friends routinely stop in and the staccato drumbeat of the milkers is often accented by hearty laughter and the good-natured barbs the men exchange.

The parlor was a "major investment," Norman said. "For the first three days it was pretty hectic and we were practically putting the cows in one at a time, but by the end of two weeks the cows had picked up the routine," he said.

The parlor has saved them some milking time, but "a lot of times there's still three of us in here and that's fine," Norman said. Reducing the number of people in the parlor — and therefore the attention paid to each cow — wasn't one of their goals, he explained.

"You like to get all the milk you can, but we don't have a set goal," Norman said. "We'd be happy to stay at 22,000 or 22,500" pounds annually.

The farm is going to its first total mixed ration this spring. The Sellers' had used computerized feeders for a decade, before going back to more conventional methods. They said they're hoping a TMR will produce better results.

The Sellers' raise all their own stock and keep a closed herd. They finish almost all of their bull calves into steers. About half of their freezer trade is through private sales. The rest go to the Westminster Livestock Auction.

Their late brother-in-law, Eugene Miller, was a partner in Maurer & Miller Meats, a long-time Manchester butchering operation. Paul worked with Eugene and his sister, Margaret, through high school and both he and Norman continue to sell cattle to the Maurer family today. Norman said there's not much labor involved in raising steers and the return is usually far beyond what farmers get when they sell bull calves.

Occasionally, the Sellers' raise their own calves as bulls to service first-calf heifers. Norman said it depends on the size of the bull, since calving ease is the first thing he and Harry look for when choosing sires. They work exclusively with Select Sires and use a computerized mating program to choose from the stud service's top 10 to 15 bulls.

The Sellers' dry cow barn includes sick and maternity pens. Cows are culled if they don't get ed or if production falls. Paul said they don't like to see a cow's production go below 40 pounds per day. The average age of the cows in their herd is six years old. They have a few eight-year-old cows. Norman said most of their cows average three to four years in the milking string.

At present, keeping the somatic cell count in line is their biggest challenge. "I'd be happy to stay below 300,000 all the time," Norman said. "We'll go down to 250,000 and then bound as high as 380,000 or 400,000."

That said, Panora Acres has still come a long way from when their mother and late father, Edgar, started farming there in 1927.

"We had nine cows, two horses, two mules and no tractors," Alice Sellers recalled. She and Edgar raised four children there — Dorothy, Margaret, Norman and Paul.

Her kids weren't angels, she admitted. But she can't remember ever having to punish them for misbehaving.

"They didn't have time to get into mischief because they all had chores to do," Alice Sellers said with smile.

When her husband died in 1965, she formed a corporation and let her boys buy stock in the farm. That company is going through some changes this year, which Alice Sellers expected. "In farming — as far as my experience goes — as soon as you make a couple dollars you want to improve or there's something to fix," she said, with a laugh.

Like many people who farm in developing areas, Norman and Paul are beginning to face the pressures of growth. Their farm is outside of Carroll County's "growth corridor" along Md. 30 through Manchester and Hampstead. But this year they've been told that some of the ground they rent may grow houses instead of corn. In one case, they may have to give up ground that the farm has been renting for half the century, since Edgar Sellers was in charge.

They're even looking at shuffling their heifers around since one property in question holds a heifer barn. "We're going to have to bring them home and put up a new barn, split the pasture, and go to fenceline feeding," Paul said.

The Sellers have been able to cope with the influx of people that have moved to the area over the years by striving to be good neighbors. "You've gotta watch the wind," said Paul. "We're not here to make trouble."

Many of those who live nearby are farmers or had farmers in their families, "so they know what to expect" which helps, he said.

Acquiring more citified neighbors is the least of their worries about farming. Norman said he is troubled by how fast the laws and regulations seem to change. "We've always had changes, but it seems like they affect you more nowadays than they used to," he said.

They try to stay active with farm organizations to keep a better eye on change. Norman serves on the local board of directors for Sire Power and the Hampstead Southern States Co-op. Paul is on the Carroll County Farm Service Agency Board. And the farm hosts children from area schools and daycare centers throughout the year in an effort to show dairy farming to the general public.

But as the brothers try to devise the best way for each of them — and their offspring — to get equity out of the farm, they worry how agriculture's next generation will be able to continue.

"Unless you give half of it to the kids, how can they afford to buy it?" Norman said.

Like many farmers, the Sellers' worry about commodity prices that don't keep pace with inflation. And with corn planting in Carroll County more than two weeks behind this year, they wonder if they'll be able to take advantage of the sudden upswing in grain prices.

"Five-dollar corn looks good on paper now, but when you don't have a bushel to sell it don't matter if it's $20 corn," Paul said.

That said, the Sellers' brothers are still dedicated to their profession. "You get up and do an honest day's work, " said Paul. They learned the satisfaction in that a long time ago from their parents.

"You can't always look at the money part of it," advised Alice Sellers. "It's what you're happy doing that counts."

Regs Require Licensing Before Spraying

NEWARK, Del. — As the weather warms up, so does the chance of insects and pests invading buildings.

In the past, maintenance personnel would routinely use over-the-counter pesticides to control these invaders. But new regulations, effective July 1, require any employee who sprays pesticides in an apartment building, day care center, or school to be licensed by the state.

"The new regulations are another step toward ensuring people's health and safety," said Dr. Susan Whitney, cooperative extension pesticide specialist at the University of Delaware. "The change in regulations will provide an extra layer of protection for consumers."

With Delaware's Department of Agriculture, Whitney has planned a training program that will prepare maintenance personnel for the exam they need for licensing.

"Maintenance applicator training is targeted to sanitarian personnel, building and grounds maintenance and janitors who use pesticides," she said.

Cooperative Extension is offering maintenance applicator training, free of charge, at two sessions on Monday, June 10, and again on Friday, June 14, from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m. at the Deparment of Agriculture building in Dover.

Topics covered will include pests and pest control, storage and spills, rinsing and disposal, record keeping, pesticide law, personal protective equipment, poisoning symptoms, integrated pest management, and labels.

The last portion of each training session will be devoted to the exam, administered by the Department of Agriculture. On successful completion of the exam, trainees will be eligible for licensing.

Request For Preproposals Generates New Ideas

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The United Soybean Board (USB) received more than 435 responses from prospective subcontractors worldwide to its "Requests for Preproposals" for Fiscal Year 1997 projects for the international marketing, domestic marketing, new uses, and production national checkoff program areas.

"There's been a tremendous response this year to USB's request for pre-proposals," said USB Chairman Jerry Slocum, a producer from Coldwater, Miss., "especially considering this is the first time the board has used a preliminary step to the actual request-for-proposals process."

During the past few years, the USB has used the "request for proposals" (RFP) process to help find viable marketing and research projects to improve the quality, use, and profitablility of soybeans.

However, Slocum said the USB is looking to the preproposal process as a way to streamline both the proposal procedure and the actual FY97 project solution.

Because the RFPP responses are much briefer, this new process is helping us look through a large variety of ideas and expert suggestions in a fairly short amount of time. Then our directors can choose to review full projects that most wisely invest checkoff dollars to benefit producers.

"Ultimately, we're searching for entities to develop and implement quantifiable programs and activities that increase the end use and consumption of U.S. soybeans, thereby, enhancing the profitability of U.S. soybean farmers," he said.

The number of responses each committee received by the April 29, 1996, deadline are international marketing-87, domestic marketing-152, new uses-117, and production-82.

Preproposals are reviewed by the program committees, professional staff, consultants, and legal council. The USB will ask selected preproposal entrants to submit complete project proposals by June 17, 1996.

Old Favorites At Kempton Country Fair

Old favorites and new names are among the country music stars selected to head this year's 42nd annual Kempton Country Fair, Friday through Sunday, June 21 to 23.

New to audiences this year is the fair opener, Midnight Special, a spontaneous group who will appear on stage at 7 p.m. and again at 9:30 p.m.

Topping the bill on Friday evening, Tommy Shafer and The Blue Mountain Ramblers make their multi-time appearance at the 8:15 p.m. and 9:15 p.m. shows. A group who have been around for two generations — the band originally was organized in the middle of the depression in the mid-thirties — and today has a third generation involved, their music has been headlined in a number of impressive musical events.

Saturday afternoon features another newcomer to Kempton. Craig Thomas Moore, also known as the New York Cowboy, has been called "the country sound of the '90s." A song writer, he and his guitar have shared billings with Willie Nelson, Loretta Lynn, Tammy Wynette, and other country stars. He'll perform at 3 p.m.

Another returning star, Ronnie Smith, will appear at two shows, one at 6 p.m. the other at 9:15 p.m. Saturday. Remembered for his blue grass and polka music and his square dance calls, Ronnie sings gospel music and has a new tape, "Ronnie Smith - I Believe." He is a grandpop with five grandchildren and a fan club with some 1,400 members.

Smith is a regular performer on radio station WWVA in West Virginia and has made a guest appearance on Grand Ole Opry.

Johnny Paycheck hit pay dirt with his single, "Take This Job and Shove It." With TV variety shows and concert promoters vying for his talent, Johnny soon had six gold and one platinum albums to his credit plus 33 singles.

Saying that he is in control of his life and happier than he has ever been before, Johnny Paycheck will be in The Kempton Country Fair spotlight Saturday evening at 7:15 p.m. and 10:15 p.m.

There's a rare treat in the offing Sunday afternoon when Linette Mertz, the former Miss Kempton Fair and more recently the former Miss Pennsylvania, joins the Country Keys for a featured performance. They'll entertain at 4 p.m.

Many-time performer at Kempton, Billy Walker, makes a return visit by special request when he goes on stage Sunday at 6:15 p.m. and again at 8:15 p.m. The tall Texan has entertained millions, and millions have watched him on "Hee Haw," "Nashville Now," and on the Grand Ole Opry as well as other shows.

Accomplishing much in his life, his latest single, "Adam's Side," has become one of the most requested songs at weddings.

Admission to the fair is $4 on Friday and Saturday with children 6 to 12 admitted half price and kids under six free. Sunday's admission charge is $4 for a carload. All entertainment goes on as scheduled rain or shine. Parking is free.

For more information, call or write Kempton Community Center, Box 42, Kempton, PA, or call (610) 756-6030. During the fair, call (610) 756-6444.

Young Guernsey Breeders To Be Honored

Reynoldsburg, Ohio — Two outstanding young Guernsey farmers will be honored at the 1996 National Guernsey Convention in Baltimore, Maryland, on June 24, 1996

Donna Anderson is the recipient of the Eugene Harding Memorial Watch Award for being named the 1996 National Outstanding Young Guernsey Farmer Growing up with Guernseys, Anderson says, 'The decision was easy to remain with the fawn and white cow"

Anderson was raised on Wagner Guernsey Farm in Illinois She and her husband, David currently reside in Lester Prairie, Minnesota, with their two children, Kevin and Karen Securing their future with Guernseys, they purchased all the heifers and calves from his father and are managing his family's fifth generation farm, Up the Creek Farm

Anderson feels that genetics at Up the Creek Farm are a family affair, and young sires play an important role About 30 percent of the herd is being bred to young sires, while the rest are bred to bulls that are selected from the top 20 bulls available on the A I list Anderson says, "I look at type appraisal scores and analyze bull proofs to determine which sire would develop a more profitable, conformation cow."

Anderson handles the book-keeping and management records for the farm She also milks, feeds and shows the cattle All of the crops needed to feed the 85 head of Guernseys are produced on Up the Creek Farm's 120 tillable acres Donna sees her outside employment at H&R Block as a benefit to the farm as she applies her knowledge of tax laws to their dairy operation

Looking towards the future, Anderson would like to continue the use of high PTI sires and young sires to improve genetics She will also concentrate on improving milk production, feed quality and herd health

Doug Sims of Laurens, South Carolina, will be recognized as first runner-up in the National Outstanding Young Guernsey Farmer contest He and his wife Melanie and their four children reside on Lush Acres Dairy

Sims is the director of farm and grounds on Lush Acres Dairy The title doesn't reflect that he is a "jack of all trades" In addition to running the dairy, he oversees a beef herd, maintains the grounds and is an educator Sims finds the education portion of his job very rewarding and gratifying He said, "The job, as well as the farm, exists for the benefit of the children So, much time is devoted to teaching the children "

Including Sims, there is a staff of six men and 20 to 30 children ages 12 to 17 from the Thornwell Orphanage who are responsible for maintaining an 80-acre campus of trees, turf grass, ornamentals, home areas, playgrounds and athletic fields Alfalfa, corn, sorghum and haylage are grown on the other 350 acres Solid waste is used heavily on the farm Manure, old feed, moldy hay and much more are used for mulching flower beds, planting flowers, roses and trees They roll the water oak and maple leaves in the fall much like hay and square bale them for bedding the cows in the winter

Sims has set goals for the Lush Acres cattle, and they are making great headway towards reaching those goals Three years ago, he set a goal for the herd to have a rolling herd average of 15 000 pounds of milk They started at 12,000 pounds and are up to 14,000 pounds of milk Doug says, "We will make it!"

To resolve problems associated with inbreeding and close line-breeding, Sims concentrates on bull selection He uses 30 to 40 percent young sires to help prove new bulls while increasing his genetic pool He also tries to purchase three to five high-quality heifers and cows per year for the dairy in order to broaden genetics on the maternal side

Sims would like to become more involved in national events, to consign to sales and to purchase high quality animals from other breeders He wants to continue to give the young people at Thornwell Orphanage a supportive outlook on agriculture, farming and Guernsey cattle

Moore To Be Honored For Distinguished Service

Reynoldsburg, Ohio — The American Guernsey Association will honor the late William Lee Moore Jr. of Plano, Texas, for his distinguished service to the breed at the 1996 National Guernsey Convention in Baltimore, Maryland

Moore was dedicated to ensuring the future of the Guernsey breed and the American Guernsey Association, serving as chairman of the Guernsey Foundation and on the association's board of directors Moore devoted much of his adult life to supporting and promoting the Guernsey breed Each year since the early 1950s, he awarded a top-notch heifer to the youth who won the competition in verbal, written and showmanship skills during the Texas State Fair

In addition to raising and promoting Guernseys, Moore was owner of Bookkeeping Services Company located in Dallas, Texas Many family members and friends were fortunate to have a bird's eye view of Moore's pilot skills His Bonanza provided many hours of enjoyment and entertainment for the accomplished aviator

A graduate of Highland Park High School, Moore attended SMU where he was a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity World War II interrupted his studies, sending him to officer's training school in Plattsburgh, New York After completing his military duty as a lieutenant, Moore returned to SMU, graduating from the School of Law in 1949

W Lee Moore Stock Farms was established in 1936 by Moore's parents It originally housed chickens, turkeys, Tennessee Walking Horses and a few Guernseys In 1952, it was renamed Lavon Farm and became a permanent home for registered Guernsey dairy cattle Today Lavon Farms is owned and operated by Moore's sons, Todd and Jon His widow, Janeice, maintains her interest in the Guernsey breed and involvement with the breeders

Brown To Be Honored For Distinguished Service

Reynoldsburg, Ohio — The American Guernsey Association will honor the late Frank D Brown Jr of Port Deposit, Maryland for his distinguished service to the Guernsey breed at the National Guernsey Convention in Baltimore, Maryland

Brown was an active leader on the local, state and national level in the dairy and beef industries for much of his life He was the owner and operator of Mt Ararat Farms in Port Deposit, Maryland, and managed the family beef farm, Broseco Cattle Ranching Operations, in Omaha, Texas Carrying on the family tradition, Brown sold high-quality milk and dairy products wholesale and retail until 1979 when the economics of the business became too complicated

Fulfilling his role as a leader in the dairy industry, Brown was active in numerous business and civic organizations In the 1960s, he served as president of the American Guernsey Association (then the American Guernsey Cattle Club) and the Purebred Dairy Cattle Association He was also a 4-H leader and dairy cattle judge Devoted to agriculture, Brown was a founding member of both the Cecil County Fair Board and the Maryland Agricultural Fair Board In addition, he served on the Board of Directors of the Mercantile Safe Deposit and Trust Company, Western Beef Corporation, Harford Memorial Hospital and the West Nottingham Academy.

The Top Ten CPI Cows

REYNOLDSBURG, OHIO — Ten of the most genetically superior Guernseys are being recognized by the American Guernsey Association with the release of the top 300 cows for Cow Performance Index (CPI). The top 300 list showcases animals that produce, reproduce and pass on desirable traits to their offspring. To qualify for the high CPI list, cows must have calved on or after October 1, 1993. Animals must be alive according to the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) information, and must have an appraisal score assigned by the American Guernsey Association. The CPI list, calculated bi-annually, is frequently used as a screening tool by artificial insemination organizations for selecting bull mothers that will produce tomorrow's hottest young sires and A.I. bulls.

1995 Top Commercial Guernsey Herds

REYNOLDSBURG, OHIO — The American Guernsey Association will present a new award to recognize commercial herds at the National Guernsey Convention in Baltimore, Maryland The AGA will recognize the top herd for protein corrected milk that is at least one and one-half times larger than the average size herd on the Total Performance Evaluation (TPE) program. In 1995, the average TPE herd was 41 cows therefore, the requirement for the 1996 commercial herd award is that there must be at least 61 complete lactations in the herd. This award recognizes both TPE and non-TPE herds of registered Guernseys

The formula for protein corrected milk is (lbs. protein x 7.20) + (lbs fat x 12.95) + (lbs milk x .327)
